Red-Hot Nats Pop Chisox, 8-5, for 5th Win in Row

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Unruffled by the novelty of playing by daylight, the Nats successfully renewed their new hobby of winning ball games, and collected as their latest exhibit an 8-5 victory over the White Sox yesterday—their fifth straight.

In mopping up the three-game series with the Chicago club, they introduced a technique quite new to the Nats—power. They ripped into the frayed pitching of the White Sox for 12 blows, three of them triples, and three of them two baggers and they climbed into third place.

The power squadron was comprised chiefly of Roberto Ortiz who belted home three runs with a three-bagger and double, and Sam Mele who chimed in with a two-run triple. The day was a resounding success for Bucky Harris' right-handed hitting outfield corps.

The White Sox were the victims of a pair of their own weaknesses—pitching, and their failure to hit enough home runs. John Ostrowski and Cass Michaels both walloped homers into the left center bleachers, but that pair didn't suffice.

Joe Haynes was the winning pitcher for the first time this season, but he required Mickey Harris' relief job to get him home with that distinction. Haynes departed suddenly in the seventh with the White Sox chopping away at his 6-4 lead.

The White Sox used up four pitchers in an attempt to check the Nats' display of muscles. Lefthander Billy Pierce started, and didn't last out the third inning. Mickey Haefner, Bill Connelly and Jack Bruner later figured in the carnage.

A crowd of 4089 was assembled in Griffith Stadium when the Nats first demonstrated they were an around-the-clock ball club by banging three runs home against Pierce in the first inning.

They got their first run quickly, on a walk to Yost, and Dente's lengthy double to center that moved Yost all the way home. Two outs later, Mele walked and when Ortiz doubled over Zernial's head in left field it was laden with two more runs.

Mele Hits Long Triple

Haynes' 3-0 lead was pared to 3-2 in the third when his control lapsed. He walked two, and then Michaels clubbed him for a two-run double to center.

The Nats bounced back nicely in their own half of the third to match that pair. Coan set the stage by beating out a drag bunt to Appling, and Robinson drew a walk. Mele's contribution was an enormous line drive triple to center that scored both.

That blow dispatched Pierce from the action, and in the Nats' fourth against Mickey Haefner, Haynes himself set another run in

Attlee Cautious In Welcoming Steel-Pool Plan

London, May 11 (NYHT).—The Big Three Foreign Ministers today began their three-day search for means of strengthening the defenses of the Western Powers and at the same time bolstering their economies.

Today's meetings of Secretary of State Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman was devoted to a survey of most of the military and economic problems confronting the West.

The ministers, examining the cold war, particularly noted areas where the policies of the West have succeeded in resisting Communist pressure and others where new measures may be needed to strengthen the Western position.

The problem of bringing Germany into the Atlantic community—a major issue at this meeting—was not discussed today. It presumably will be discussed Friday when, it is expected, the Foreign Ministers will discuss also Schuman's proposal for pooling the coal and steel resources of Germany and France under some form of international authority.

"A Notable Contribution"

Although Schuman's scheme was not discussed by the Foreign Ministers today, Prime Minister Attlee made a special statement in the House of Commons welcoming it cautiously.

It was significant, however, that Attlee saw the French proposal as an important step toward unity and peace of Europe, but he avoided any reference to its potentialities in promoting the economic integration of Western Europe, as Acheson noted last night.

"It is the declared policy of the Western Powers to promote the entry of Germany as a free member into the comity of European nations," Attlee said. "The French proposals are designed to facilitate that process and must consequently be regarded as a notable contribution towards the solution of a major European problem.

"The proposals also have far-reaching implications for the fu-

8 Millions Allotted to Aid Red China

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Flood and famine victims in Communist China can look forward now to American help—if their Communist rulers will let it come in.

Senate and House conferees agreed yesterday to earmark eight million dollars of unexpended China-Formosa recovery funds "for relief on humanitarian grounds through the American Red Cross or other voluntary relief agencies."

The agreement was the first offer of any kind of American help to Communist China since the Communists swept the Nationalist forces from the mainland. It provided that the relief could be used "in any place in China suffering from the effects of natural calamity," under presidential safeguards to assure nondiscriminatory distribution and proper publicity as to the American source.

This was exactly what President Truman had asked for earlier this week in a speech at Laramie, Wyo. The State Department has been consulting on the subject with United States Attorney George Morris Fay is investigating to determine if Gambler Frank Costello committed perjury in testifying before Congress last month, it was disclosed last night.

Fay confirmed reports that he had received a transcript of Costello's testimony of April 27 before the Senate Commerce Subcommittee from Chairman Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.).

The Senator said he had received outright allegations from Radio Commentator Robert Montgomery and from "two persons in New York" that Costello's testimony before Congress conflicted with that he gave a New York grand jury in 1939.

Report on Army Finance Center Alleges $157,596,000 Shortage

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A House subcommittee yesterday issued a blistering report of the Army Finance Center at St. Louis, Mo., charging Communist infiltration, falsification of records, and overpayments of $157,596,000 in allotments to military dependents.

The House Civil Service subcommittee sternly warned that St. Louis conditions had imperilled security.

"The strategic importance," the report stated, "of the Army Finance Center cannot be overemphasized. The records at the Finance Center show the disposition of our troops and their numbers, grades and types; also the names and addresses of families of men and women in military service."

Issuance of the report brought these developments:

1. Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, director of Army Public Information, said a thorough investigation by the Army Inspector General reveals there was no fraud and no major irregularities. He said there is outstanding only 35 million dollars in overpayments, some of which may yet be recaptured.

2. Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), of the House Committee on Armed Services has named a seven-man subcommittee headed by Representative Paul J. Kilday (D.,

Probers May Ask Tax Data On Gamblers

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Senate crime probers are expected to ask President Truman for an executive order letting them examine income tax returns of big-shot racketeers.

This was learned yesterday as the five-man special committee named Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) as chairman during its organizational meeting.

Under the law which keeps individual tax returns a well-kept Government secret there are certain exceptions. One of them is the President's right to make any return available to a congressional committee.

There is an excellent precedent for the Kefauver Committee in asking to see the tax returns. When President Truman, as a Senator, headed the Senate War Investigating Committee he sought and obtained from President Roosevelt an executive order to look at tax returns. None were made public but they furnished important leads for the committee.

Not to Be Public

The Kefauver committee would not be expected to make public any individual's return. But the information on such returns would furnish highly useful leads as to where the big gamblers and other underworld figures get their huge incomes. It is generally agreed that the only Federal law these characters fear is the income tax law, the one that has nailed a number of big shots beginning with prohibition's Al Capone.

For that reason, it is understood, the big shots have "come clean" in making their returns, opening their books to Internal Revenue agents and, in fact, frequently overpaying their taxes just to be on the safe side.

Since income tax returns require, under oath, a true statement as to the source of income, these returns will be a gold mine of information for the crime committee's investigators. They will show, when sifted and correlated, the major sources, with specific details, of illegal wealth in the United States.

Must Name Counsel

The Senate committee's first job will be to select a staff. A chief counsel probably will be named within a short time. A request for the income-tax data is not expected for some time.

At yesterday's meeting three subcommittees were named, including one to look into the narcotics traffic. Senators Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Wiley (R., Wis.) will do that. But, it was learned, their first job will be to check with Federal agencies such as the Treasury's Narcotics Bureau on the possible need of adding this angle to the general crime probe.

The committee got started in a kleig-like atmosphere with the newsreels grinding.

Truman Asks Civil Rights Enactment

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Aboard Truman train, May 11.—President Truman late today asked Congress to enact his civil rights program in his first mention on this tour of the Senate-shelved antidiscrimination bill and the filibuster now in progress.

He voiced "sincere hope" it will be passed this session in a speech accepting a "certificate of merit" award from Gonzaga University at Spokane, Wash.

Discrimination "violates the basic moral principles of our society and our Government," he told students of the Jesuit University.

Earlier, at Coulee City, Wash., site of the Columbia River's big Grand Coulee Dam, he tackled an almost equally controversial subject.

In a dedicatory speech, he served notice of a fight to the finish with the private power lobby and all other alleged "selfish interest" opponents to public power.

"We shall not be stopped by those who are timid or shortsighted or selfish," he told a crowd at the world's largest power plant. "We shall not be stopped by discredited claims or by tattered slogans."

'Last Mile to Socialism'

Mr. Truman mentioned the private power lobby by name and said it was "wrong" in its opposition to a Columbia Valley Authority and other river valley developments.

He alluded just as clearly to Republican opponents, though not by name. He labeled "ridiculous" what he said was a charge that his is "another step down that famous last mile to socialism."

The merit award to Truman from Spokane's Gonzaga University was based on his stand against Godlessness and tyranny anywhere in the world.

In the speech that followed, Mr. Truman said we are moving toward "greater freedom and equal opportunity for all citizens" and each must strive to achieve it in his daily life.

In his single reference to the Senate filibuster he said "one case that requires collective action is engaging our attention in the national legislature. This is the problem of preventing discrimination in our country because of religion, color or national origin. . . .

"I sincerely hope that the Congress will enact legislation at this session to protect the rights of all citizens, to reduce discrimination based upon prejudice and to insure that every citizen can participate equally in our national life."

At Gonzaga University, Bing Crosby's alma mater, a crowd of about 3500 applauded the President's anti-discrimination stand.

Senate Kills Truman's Plans To Revamp NLRB, Treasury

The Senate yesterday killed two of President Truman's Government reorganization plans.

One would have reshuffled authority in the National Labor Relations Board, which Mr. Truman called a "two-headed freak" in its present form. That went down 53 to 30.

The other called for reorganization of the Treasury Department, to give the Secretary of the Treasury authority over the Comptroller of the Currency. The tally against that proposal was 65 to 13.

A thumping majority of the Republicans and Southern Democrats voted with Senator Taft (R., Ohio) to kill the NLRB plan. Taft charged it was an effort to nullify the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

On Wednesday Taft engineered a coup against Mr. Truman which set aside a Senate civil rights debate to bring his resolution of disapproval before the Senate.

The principal aim of the now defunct NLRB reorganization plan was to take away the present independent status of the board's general counsel and vest those duties in the board and its chairman. The general counsel—Robert L. Denham—and his staff investigate all charges of unfair labor practices and decide whether to prosecute them. The five-member board judges the cases Denham chooses to bring to trial.

In a letter to Vice President Barkley, read by a Senate clerk yesterday, Mr. Truman called the present set-up a "two-headed freak" and urged the Senate not to disapprove the reorganization plan.

But Taft, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley Law which established the general counsel as an independent officer, told the Senate that if the President's plan were allowed to take effect it would result in "a real labor dictator" in the chairman of the NLRB.

He charged bluntly that Mr. Truman's proposal was "part of a general plan to nullify the policies and provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law."

The plan was one of 21 the President sent to Congress March 13. Each takes effect automatically on May 24 unless the House or Senate, by a clear majority of its membership, disapproves a specific plan.

Taft and other opponents of the NLRB plan whipped together four more votes than the straight majority of 49 needed to kill the NLRB proposal. Thirty-five Republicans voted to kill it; so did 18 Democrats—all except Senator Gillette (D., Iowa)

Twenty-five Democrats and five Republicans supported the President's proposal. Four of the Democrats were from the deep South.

Denham, happy over the vote, said "maybe now we can find some way to get along without this nerve-wracking bickering." There was no immediate comment from Chairman Paul M. Herzog or other members of the labor board.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson, chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report, called on the country to get behind the remaining reorganization plans. He said the initial Senate vote yesterday was not a true test of the over-all reorganization program because the proposed NLRB change contained provisions beyond those recommended by the Commission on Reorganization of the Government, headed by former President Hoover.

Taft said yesterday that if the President finds he can use the reorganization law to repeal statutes Congress has approved, "we will have all sorts of reorganization plans."

He said that the general counsel had been referred to as a dictator, but that the President's plan would

Strike Idles 130,000 Railmen As Further Cutbacks Near

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

More than 130,000 railroad workers were idle yesterday as 18,000 locomotive firemen effectively continued for a second day their strike against four of the Nation's major lines.

The struck rail systems announced further personnel cutbacks would be made within a few days unless the walkout is settled.

There was no indication of a quick settlement. If anything, there was an increased bitterness between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, which called the walkout, and the Carriers Conference Committee, representing the Nation's railroads in the presently deadlocked peace negotiations.

Although the strike dispute involves all the railroads, the brotherhood called its firemen out Wednesday morning only on the Southern, the Pennsylvania west of Harrisburg, the New York Central west of Buffalo, and the Santa Fe.

Thus the strike, while tying up an estimated fifth of Nation-wide freight movement and a third of pasenger traffic, aims at falling short of a national emergency and consequently at averting seizure or other drastic Federal action.

The situation on the four struck

Congress Gets Bill to Lend D. C. $23 Million for Water System

By Edward F Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington's Commissioners yesterday delivered to Congress a bill for the Federal Government to pay in full for water it gets from the District.

The same bill also carries authority for the District to obtain up to 23 million dollars in Federal loans to finance expansion of the Washington water system. The loans would be issued over the next 10 years, and repaid in the following 20 years out of income from the expanded water system.

The proposition that the Federal Government should pay for water like other consumers was delivered to the Capitol the day following a House-imposed cut of 10 percent in the Federal payment to the District. The House cut reduces the payment for the fiscal year starting next July from 12 milion dollars to 10.8 million. District officials are looking to the Senate to restore the funds.

From the current payment, fixed by a 1947 law at 12 million dollars, one million dollars is paid to the city's water fund. In the last fiscal year, the Commissioners told Congress, this water fund payment fell $250,000 shy of covering the cost of water supplied the Federal Government. The deficit was made up by charges to other consumers.

This was brought out in a letter from Commissioner John Russell Young to Speaker Rayburn. Young pointed out that the 1947

U. S. Castigated For Too Many Antitrust Suits

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Lashing out at the Justice Department, a Federal judge said yesterday that businessmen no longer felt any "stigma" attached to a conviction for antitrust law violations.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff declared from the bench that the Justice Department brings too many Sherman Antitrust Act indictments against corporations when the acts charged bear no "malevolence or immorality."

Judge Holtzoff made the statement during final arguments of the trial of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association and seven distributors here. They are charged with criminal conspiracy to fix retail milk prices in the Metropolitan area.

The arguments will continue this afternoon, with decision probably to be announced on Monday, according to the judge.

Attorneys for the defendants declared their clients were men of experience, integrity and high purpose. Also, they asserted that acts of the association and local dairies assured Washington a steady supply of sanitary milk of high quality.

In response to this, Prosecutor E. Riggs McConnell said the Government was not contending the defendants were "vicious or predatory."

It was then that Judge Holtzoff began his blast.

"Then why did you proceed by indictment?" he shouted. "Irrespective of how the decision goes in this trial, the court has the feeling that this matter should have

Nearly 200 passengers were jolted yesterday when a Pennsylvania Railroad train from Philadelphia overran the track limit at the Union Station and hit a stop block. No one was injured, railroad officials said.

Independent Education Body Proposed in New Measure

A bill to establish the United States Office of Education as an independent Federal agency has been introduced in the House and Senate by Representative Carroll D. Kearns (D., Pa.) and Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.).

Kearns told The Washington Post the measure is a continuation of his campaign to get the Office of Education out from under the "political control" of Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing.

The measure proposes the creation of a Board of Education in the Federal Government to consist of 11 members to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, with not more than six members from the same political party.

After the first appointments, which provides for overlapping terms, each member of the board would serve for 11 years. The board would be nonsalaried but members could receive a per diem subsistence allowance for the time on duty.

The board itself would name the Commissioner of Education who would serve for a term of years specified by the board. He would receive $18,000 a year.

The measure has the backing of the National Education Association, the National Council of Chief State and School officers, the American Association of School Administrators, the County and Rural Area Superintendents of Schools, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education and the State Education Board Association.

Lay-Off Note May Be Sent To Many as Precaution

Agency Heads Plan No Hiring, Due to Economy Slashes Ordered by House

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

A "freeze" will be slapped on personnel in most Federal agencies.

Vacancies and new jobs won't be filled with people from the outside in many cases until Congress reaches a final decision on the House-approved economy riders that would wipe out more than 200,000 jobs in the next year.

Top Federal officials, who were stunned by the unprecedented House action, yesterday were debating whether to follow up no-hiring orders with these sweeping steps:

1. To hand out provisional 30-day lay-off notices on June 1 to protect themselves if the House amendments were made the law of the land. The notices could be canceled if the Senate, as expected, modifies the riders.

2. To immediately stop employes from getting permanent Civil Service status on the theory that enough career people will have to be fired anyhow if the House provisions are approved. Also, it's argued, most agencies must begin immediately to compile reduction in force lists and that it would complicate matters to change the status of employes from war service and temporary to permanent.

Payless Pay Days

As if Federal employes didn't have enough troubles, another major worry cropped up yesterday—payless pay days next month for tens of thousands of them.

Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee announced that the general deficiency bill would be delayed in committee. The measure carries about 100 millions to pay the salaries of most employes outside of the Defense agencies for the remainder of the 1950 fiscal year that ends on June 30.

The money is needed by scores of agencies to help them meet the costs of the 15 different bills Congress enacted last year to boost the pay of Government people.

Cannon said the 1951 District appropriation bill would be scheduled for House action ahead of the deficiency bill. But the deficiency bill carries funds, too, to avert payless pay days that now loom for some 5000 District employes May 23, for District teachers on June 1, and other employes later in June.

Chairman Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.) of the District Appropriations subcommittee, said he had been informed by leaders the District money bill will not come up next week. With the deficiency bill behind that, there's no sign when the pay delay might end.

However, a study has been started to get from each agency its exact situation on money to pay employes. This may be ready for Chairman Cannon within a few days.

Among the many agencies that

The air space over Washington, which is forbidden to airplanes, was returned to prewar size by President Truman's order yesterday.

The restricted area had been enlarged just before Pearl Harbor to cover all of downtown Washington and a large part of the Northwest section of the city.

The new area extends from the Lincoln Memorial along the Potomac River to the Titanic Memorial, then north to Washington Circle, east along K street to the railroad bridge behind Union Station, south to Stanton Square in the Southeast section near the Capitol, and westward to the Lincoln Memorial. It still includes all of downtown Washington.

One new protected area was added. Planes will not be allowed to fly within a half-mile of the Naval Observatory on Massachusetts ave. nw. so that the delicate instruments there will not be disturbed.

Lewis Investigation Blocked by Lesinski

John L. Lewis escaped a congressional investigation of his alleged "secret strike signals" yesterday when Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.) blocked it.

Lesinski, chairman of the House Labor Committee, simply cut off subpena powers of an inquisitive subcommittee, leaving it helpless.

This group, headed by Representative Jacobs (D., Ind.), wanted to dig into the story of a miner who said Lewis had secretly encouraged his United Mine Workers to defy a Federal court anti-strike injunction last February.

"There will be no investigation," Lesinski told reporters after the closed-door committee session. At this meeting he rescinded a previous order abolishing Jacobs' subcommittee. But he immediately revoked its authority to demand appearance of Lewis and other witnesses.

Jacobs agreed "there's nothing I can do." He added:

"This is just one of the results you get from the system of senility, which they call seniority around here."

This was a reference to selection of committee chairmen on the basis of length of service in the House.

Yesterday's action climaxed a long-standing feud between Jacobs and Lesinski.

Jacobs indicated he will get in another dig later. Reinstatement of his subcommittee permits him to file a report of its activities. It was set up to investigate "union democracy" and labor union practices.

Jacobs told reporters that his report "might be worth reading."

Jacobs had announced Monday that his group wished to check the story of Lloyd H. Sidener, ousted president of the UMW local at Canton, Ill. Sidener said he lost his job and was fined $50,000 by the union in a dispute which developed when he returned to work after Lewis had issued a public order for compliance with the court injunction. Other miners ignored the court order and stayed on strike.

Sidener told reporters that Lewis "gave one signal for the court and public, and another for the men."

Jacobs said the subcommittee wanted to know whether Sidener was thrown out of his job "through undemocratic and unfair procedures."

At the same time, Jacobs announced he had ordered subpenas for Lewis' appearance next Monday. But on Tuesday, Lesinski accused Jacobs of taking "high handed" action for which he had no authority, and said he was abolishing the subcommittee.

Jacobs called for a committee vote on Lesinski's decision, and yesterday's action resulted. Under a House resolution, the committee's subpena power is lodged with the chairman.

AFL Urges U. S. to Admit Germany 'Into Community of Free Nations'

Philadelphia, May 11 (AP).—The AFL said today the United States should quit "fighting World War II all over again" and accept Germany "into the community of free nations."

The union's executive council said in a statement, this is necessary for "the decisive defeat of all Communist attempts to take over western Germany."

The union called "Russian aggression . . . a dire threat to world peace" and said that if it is not met immediately, "humanity will be plunged into World War III."

President William Green said the AFL's recommendations on Germany call for "a fundamental revision of policy toward western Germany."

The German Federal Republic, Green said, "should be recognized as a sovereign state."

"There is no other way of developing among the German people a feeling of firm solidarity with the western democracies and insuring their categoric rejection of all Russian maneuvers and schemes to make their country a so-called neutral or merely another satellite of Soviet despotism."

Green also called on the United States, and its allies to replace the present German occupational statute with a "provisional treaty of peace," under which western Berlin would be incorporated into the German Federal Republic.

United States armed forces must be kept in Germany, Green said "to aid in its defense against Russian aggression and Communist Quisling encroachments on its sovereignty."

The union said it opposes the Allied High Commission's practice of "now and then subordinating the Bonn constitution to the veto powers" of the commission.

"All crippling restrictions on economic activities like steel production and shipbuilding should be lifted," Green said. "Such a policy is all the more imperative in view of the serious unemployment problem in western Germany."

Asia also posed a major threat, the union asserted. Said Green:

"Moscow's drive for world domination and totalitarian communism is being stepped up at a furious pace in Asia."

"We solemnly warn that unless the present conference of foreign ministers takes immediate decisive action to unite the liberty-loving peoples of all continents in defense of democracy, social justice and peace, Russian aggression will not be deterred and humanity will be plunged into World War III."

Among the union's recommendations:

"Immediate economic and military assistance . . . to safeguard Formosa against being overrun by Chinese Communist usurpers equipped with Russian weapons and commanded by Kremlin commissars."

Independence for French Indo-China and "adequate military aid" by the United States "to smash the Moscow-controlled armed bands fighting to force Indo-China into the slave orbit of Russian imperialism."

Rail Strike Idleness Spreads

lines last night was as follows:

SOUTHERN RAILROAD—18,000 of its 38,000 employes furloughed. Continuation of the strike may lead to lay off most of the remaining 20,000 workers, including 1200 in the Washington-Alexandria area.

Of the normal 22 trains running in and out of Washington, Southern managed to keep two in operation between here and New Orleans. An undisclosed number of freight trains were also kept running yesterday. The line asserted that many firemen were refusing to obey the strike call; the union insisted its walkout was nearly 100 per cent effective.

PENNSYLVANIA R. R.—Pennsy made no attempt to run any trains on its struck lines west of Harrisburg, and ordered the furloughing of 85,000 employes—out of 125,000—by this morning. The line's Maryland Division will lay off 1100 of its 8200 personnel; 50 Washington employes of P.R.R. will be affected. Operations east of Harrisburg, such as between New York and Washington, were officially reported to be proceeding normally.

NEW YORK CENTRAL—NYC said 25,000 personnel are already idle and 15,000 other employes will be laid off by the week's end. The line was keeping a few trains in operation with supervisory help.

Santa Fe Closes Shops

SANTA FE—This road was maintaining a few runs between Chicago and the West Coast, but has already ordered the closing of its repair shops because some of the nonoperating employes have refused to cross the strikers' picket lines.

Violence flared up yesterday, both management and union reporting incidents along Southern's system.

D. W. Brosnan, general manager of Southern's Central Lines, said two freight trains were fired on from ambush near a switching yard outside Knoxville, Tenn., with one shot piercing a crewman's sleeve.

H. A. Porch, a vice president of the firemen's brotherhood, charged that union pickets outside the same switching yard were stoned by missiles hurled from inside the company grounds. No strikers were hurt.

The strikers were accused by Brosnan of "some acts of sabotage." Union leadership vehemently denied both the sabotage and violence charges.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, hard hit the first day of the walkout when its own nonstriking firemen refused to run C&O locomotives over tracks leased from struck lines, restored normal service on its Washington trains which use the Southern rails between here and Orange, Va. Union firemen, however, refused to agree to a similar continuation of duties on C&O's Pere Marquette line running through Michigan.

Other lines using tracks or facilities of the struck roads were also partially tied up yesterday. Among these was the Virginian's service along the Kanawah River west of Deep Water.

Impact of the rail strike spread through industry yesterday. Fourteen big coal mines and several smaller ones, producing 12 percent of western Pennsylvania's coal output, shut down for the lack of empty gondola cars. Fear was expressed that 55,000 Pennsylvania miners might be idled by the firemen's strike by next week. Coal mines were also reported to be closing in Indiana. Detroit braced for layoffs if the strike continues into next week.

Nationally and locally, the nonstruck railroads, truck lines, bus lines and airlines for the most part filled the transportation gaps. Business was picking up considerably on some of the lines, and the airlines in particular were preparing for a weekend boom. The Postoffice Department reported that the mail was getting through, albeit slowly in some areas.

The National Mediation Board was standing by in Chicago in hope of reviving peace negotiations between the union and the carriers, but no talks were scheduled.

The brotherhood announced yesterday that just before the strike deadline, the union had made a concession from its original demand: that a second fireman be assigned to diesel locomotives having more than one diesel engine.

Instead, the union asked that the second fireman be assigned to high-speed, streamlined passenger trains.

The union further asserts that the railroads today are utilizing some 5000 special supervisory help to keep an eye on the operations of the diesel motors. This work should be asigned to the firemen in accordance with contract provisions, the brotherhood claims.

'Tomfoolery' on Hill Assailed by Dulles

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

John Foster Dulles said yesterday "there's lots of tomfoolery that should be cut out" in current Capitol Hill discussion of foreign policy.

At the same time, the Republican foreign-affairs spokesman said he had "told my friends on the Hill they are not to cut off frank discussions because I have a desk now in the State Department."

Dulles addressed an overflow audience of more than 600 persons at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon in the Statler Hotel's Presidential Room.

Asked afterward if he had Senator McCarthy's charges of Communists in the State Department specifically in mind when he made his "tomfoolery" remark, Dulles replied: "Not specifically." Dulles has stated that he does not believe there are Communists or Communist sympathizers in the department.

Douglas On Program

Other luncheon speakers were Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court, author of "Of Men and Mountains;" Dr. Daniel A. Poling, "Faith Is Power—For You" and Mrs. Louise Hall Tharp, "The Peabody Sisters of Salem."

"I wouldn't want anyone to get the idea that just because Senator Cooper and I have desks in the State Department that that automatically reestablishes a bipartisan foreign policy," Dulles declared.

President Truman appointed Dulles on April 6 and John Sherman Cooper, former Republican Senator from Kentucky, on March 29 as consultants to Secretary of State Acheson.

But, Dulles added: "I think we're in a way now to reestablish a bipartisan foreign policy."

Pushes Beliefs

Author of the recently published "War or Peace," Dulles reaffirmed his strong conviction that bipartisan cooperation in foreign policy is vital "so our friends and those who are not our friends will respect it as something that has permanency."

Dulles' book must be in a record class for quick work. To a chorus of oh's and ah's he revealed that he started dictating it on January 26 and review copies were out March 30.

"I wrote that book," he told a laughing audience, "without ever having any idea that I would have anything to do with what I had written. I am now in the position of a doctor who has some very unpleasant medicine and then has to swallow it himself."

"Preacher's Kids"

Managing Editor J. R. Wiggins of The Post, emceeing the ceremonies, disclosed that "All members of our panel today are P. K.'s." Preacher's kids, that is.

The luncheon-goers also got a kick out of a tongue-in-cheek letter Justice Douglas said he had received from a man in Ohio.

The man wrote in that he had discovered a Russian had also written a book with the same title as Justice Douglas' "Of Men and Mountains."

"By recent standards of guilt by association, you are going to be in trouble," the man wrote. "It's unmistakable proof of the underground conduit that links you with the Kremlin."

Faith Emphasized

Dr. Polling, editor of the Christian Herald and internationally known religious leader, emphasized the importance of personal faith in God as a keystone of the individual's life.

Mrs. Tharp recalled the time as a child when she shook hands with President Wilson in Washington. She took note of the many physical changes that have taken place since that time and came up with the conclusion that Washington is a much more beautiful city than it was then.

A-Bomb Use By U. S. Allies Is Debated

By The Associated Press

A proposal to confront Russia with revolutionary new atomic defenses in western Europe is being considered by United States officials.

The core of the idea is to place atomic weapons within easy reach of this country's European allies, subject to some sort of United States or allied control, before Russia gets a substantial stockpile of atom bombs.

Coupled with this idea is a new concept of military force, in which fast jet planes equipped to carry small atomic bombs would be relied upon to replace many conventional ground divisions.

United States defense authorities are exploring the highly controversial proposal, assembling military arguments for and against it. Their discussions are still in a preliminary stage and far from a recommendation on which President Truman might base a request for congressional action.

Congressional Approval Needed

Before atomic weapons could be made available to European members of the Atlantic Pact, Congress would have to amend the Atomic Energy Act.

Initial congressional reaction to the idea of sharing atomic weapons with European allies indicates that it will have tough sledding if it reaches Capitol Hill.

Without exception, members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee who discussed the idea with reporters yesterday expressed opposition.

Representative Eaton (R., N. J.), former chairman, said that giving A-bombs to other nations would "mean giving notice to Russia that everybody could use the bomb."

"That would be terrible," said Eaton, who expressed a "hope and prayer" that the bomb can be outlawed in all countries.

Representative Burleson (D., Texas) expressed belief that distributing bombs to other nations would not be a sensible step "under immediate conditions."

"If the time comes to use them, I hope we will be the ones to do it," he said.

"What Fools We've Been"

Representative Smith (R., Wis.) called the idea terrible and predicted that 98 percent of the members of Congress would rebel if it is presented to them. He told a reporter:

"I was home just last weekend and, if there was anything that the people are talking about, it was national security and what fools we've been."

Some military officials share the opinion of these congressmen that it would be unwise to make atomic weapons available to England, France and other members of the Atlantic alliance.

These officials fear that information about improved designs might leak to Russia. They are apprehensive also that the weapons might fall into Communist hands and be turned against America, either as the result of political upheavals or of Russia overrunning western Europe.

Military authorities favoring the proposal contend that safeguards against atom bombs falling into enemy hands could be worked out.

Several possible safeguards have been suggested. One is that Atlantic allies be made ready to help deliver atomic weapons but that the bombs be kept outside Europe, in the United Kingdom or North Africa.

Budapest Rejects Vogeler's Appeal From 15-Year Term

Budapest, May 11 (AP).—The Hungarian Supreme Court of Justice has rejected the appeal of Robert A. Vogeler, American business executive convicted last February of spying, and decreed he must serve his 15-year prison term.

The court upheld also the 13-year sentence of Edgar Sanders, a British codefendant with Vogeler, and the sentences of five Hungarian nationals convicted on the same charges.

A communique on the findings was published today disclosing that the two Hungarians sentenced to death had been executed.

(Vogeler's Belgian-born wife, Lucile, flew to London this week from Vienna. United States Embassy officials said she would see Secretary of State Acheson there Friday.

(Mrs. Vogeler, who contends her husband was tortured into making a confession, indicated she might fly to Washington to see President Truman.)

Reds' Capture Of U. S. Fliers Is Hinted Here

By The Associated Press

The United States won't be surprised if Moscow eventually produces an alleged confession from a crew member of the American Navy plane lost in the Baltic Sea April 8.

A Government official in a position to know said yesterday on the basis of what he asserted to be American "knowledge" that Russia made prompt efforts to salvage remnants of the plane and to pick up its 10 occupants, dead or alive.

He said also that the United States "knows" the following facts, entirely apart from diplomatic interpretations of Moscow's version of the incident:

1. Four Russian fighters opened fire from the rear of the slower moving American patrol plane;

2. The attack took place over the Baltic "more than 30 miles" from the coast of Russian occupied territory;

3. The plane was on fire before it hit the water.

This official said the Government would not reveal how it got this information because it would give vital information to Russia. He said he did not know whether the Russians had any success in finding the plane or its occupants.

He recalled, however, that Communist authorities customarily wring confessions from political prisoners and foreigners involved in incidents.

American searchers, assisted by the Scandinavians, have found no trace of the Navy crewmen in the Baltic and have picked up only secondary pieces of equipment of types the plane is known to have carried.

Although official spokesmen have remained steadfastly silent about how the Government got the information about the Russian incident, experienced professionals suggest the following lines of speculation:

1. A second radar-equipped plane could have been in the air over the Baltic beyond the sight or easy pursuit range of the Russian fighters. Its radar could have picked up a reasonably accurate picture of what happened.

The United States protest to Russia said that the lost plane was the "only American military aircraft" over the Baltic on April 8. There has been no mention of any plane of some other country being in the area.

2. The attack could have been plotted by radar on a surface vessel. No American ship is known to have been in the Baltic on the day of the incident. But this narrow sea is open to commercial ships, some of which carry radar, plying between Great Britain and ports of Sweden and Finland.

3. Land based radar could have "covered" the attack. The only land stations within dependably effective range of the shooting are in Swedish territory. There had been no hint there or abroad that the information came from Swen.

Foreign-Born Scientist Dropped in Canada

Ottawa, May 11 (AP).—An official of Canada's National Research Council today indicated that one or two foreign-born scientists have left the government's scientific organization in the last two years for security reasons.

However, he later said scientists at the big Chalk River atomic energy project were not involved. The council's jurisdiction includes the atomic project as well as activities in radar, supersonic and other vital research.

Johnson Says Reds Aiming at Our Economy

Miami, Fla., May 11 (U.P.).—Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson said today Russia hopes to conquer the United States by "making us overspend ourselves on national defense until our economy is wrecked."

Johnson read a relatively mild prepared speech to the Kiwanis convention. Then he put it aside, announcing that he was going to "take my gloves off now."

"We may stumble into the accident of war," he said, "But war is not on the horizon at the moment."

"But Russia hopes to conquer America by making us overspend ourselves on national defense until our economy is wrecked and fertile soil is ready for Communists to take over."

Johnson promised that the United States was not going to "match Russia tank for tank."

"I pledge," he said, "that we will do the things that need to be done but will stay within the economy that means a sound and prosperous America."

Johnson said it doesn't do any good if the Army, Navy and Air Force are perfect if in achieving that we bankrupt America."

Unit Proposes New Aid Plan

A Senate subcommittee yesterday was urged to pass up rival proposals for Federal aid to the disabled suggested by the Secretary of Labor and Federal Security Administrator, and approve a third plan instead.

Paul A. Strachan, president of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, said that the proposals of the two Government agencies failed to meet the needs of the civilian disabled.

Strachan asked the Labor and Welfare subcommittee to support the federation's own bill, establishing a Federal Commission for the Physically Handicapped within the Labor Department, to handle all activities for the disabled.

The federation's legislation would also create a Federal interagency committee on rehabilitation and employment of the handicapped; an advisory council on affairs of the handicapped; cooperative enterprises for the disabled; grants to States for providing totally disabled $60 a month pensions; educational opportunities; a division for handicapped in the Civil Service Commission.

Strachan charged that under the present aid system, as run by the Federal Security Agency, and under that agency's proposal for expansion, the blind get too large a proportion of the help at the expense of other handicapped persons. He urged that other seriously disabled persons and not only the blind be permitted to operate vending stands in Federal buildings.

MATS Ends Domestic Schedules

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

All scheduled passenger flights in continental United States have been abandoned by the Military Air Transport Service in a reorganization aimed at better readying MATS for its M-Day role.

Hereafter, MATS chief mission will be training for its war-time job of providing military airlift to any part of the globe. Its operations as a peacetime military airline will be strictly secondary and what freight and passengers are carried will be as a by-product of this training.

Thus, free plane rides for military personnel on leave will be sharply cut. Those moving under orders will have to go by other means. Also, as part of the reorganization, MATS service to the west coast of South America will be abandoned and flights to the east coast will be cut to twice a month, terminating at Rio de Janeiro instead of Buenos Aires.

Use Commercial Means

These moves, officials agreed, should result in increased use of commercial airlines and trains by military personnel. They had no firm figures on the number of passengers formerly carried by MATS who will now use commercial transportation, but it was said that MATS completed a total of 81 million passenger miles in calendar year 1949, including flights to Alaska and the Caribbean.

Passenger flights to those points will continue, it was said.

The reorganization also cancels out all MATS scheduled cargo flights in continental United States, except one from Westover AF Base, Mass., to the West Coast, via Air Force depots. "Feeder" transport service maintained by MATS between Air Materiel Command depots also are being discontinued.

Hot Craft to Go

To carry on this work, twin-engined Douglas C-47 transports will be assigned to the depots to replace B-25 bombers and other craft now used by pilots stationed there to "get in their flying time." Instead of taking cross-country flights for such proficiency flying, officers holding down jobs at the depots will haul supplies.

In general, MATS will maintain its present overseas schedules and there will be no cut in the current "ton-mile capabilities" of the overseas service. However, the basis for such flights hereafter will be increased training for MATS personnel.

By requiring officers and men on administrative jobs to fly regular overseas missions, MATS expects to have nearly twice as many air crews trained and available for an emergency.

Reasons for Move

Officials said the reorganization stemmed from three main things:

1. An economy study launched by the Department of Defense Management Committee (McNarney Committee). Personnel cuts of from 1 to 2 percent in MATS over-all strength of 60,000 military and civil personnel are planned.

2. Realization that flying short runs on domestic airways did not properly train MATS personnel for wartime overseas operations.

3. A growing awareness in the Air Force, under the unification program, that it was carrying a lot of cargo and men on scheduled flights which did not need to move by air or at all, simply because the planes were available. Officials said there was realization that the Army did not receive such benefits and was being discriminated against in such "marginal" air transport simply because the Air Force owned the airplanes.

Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, commander of MATS, estimates that under the new system, about 72 percent of the "byproduct airlift" produced by putting his service on a training mission will be available for carrying cargo and personnel of the Armed Forces. Because of the additional air crews trained and some larger planes now being delivered, this should actually increase, rather than decrease, the armed force airlift, he states.

Discipline Worries Reds

Budapest, May 11 (AP).—Communist Party and trade union officials complained publicly today about "lack of discipline" among Hungarian workers, and indicated steps were being considered to remedy the situation.

House Report Assails Army Finance Center at St. Louis; Probe to Continue

Tex.), to launch another investigation—actually the sixth—into the Center. The Armed Services group will probe the military phases of the situation.

3. The Civil Service group, under Representative Raymond W. Karst (D., Mo.), will continue its inquiry. Investigations have been made or are continuing to be made by the FBI, the Army, Civil Service Commission and the General Accounting Office.

Karst said the subcomittee questioned 100 witnesses to "uncover one of the worst messes I've ever seen." He said the Army has complied partially with congressional recommendations in recent months but "there's still a big housecleaning job yet undone, particularly in ridding the center of bad security risks."

Parks said the Army found no more indication of Communist infiltration than one ordinarly would expect to find in a group of 4500 persons, the number employed at the center.

He told reporters the Army is "cooperating fully" with the House Civil Service subcommittee and the GAO in its investigations.

The House group has recommended that Maj. John Mathias, a staff officer for the Chief of Finance be courtmartialed.

The congressional investigators quoted the Army itself as reporting that Mathias "in collusion with Mr. Joseph H. Liebman, AFC, was succesful in discrediting CIC and FBI representatves" in placing falsified documents in loyalty files. Liebman, former personnel director, has already been fired but no action has yet been taken against Mathias.

Parks reported that Mathias, former acting chief of the management division of the office of chief of finance, was secheduled to go to Australia but was brought back here pending completion of the investigation.

The committee recommended that "the representatives of the International Business Machine Co., who participated in a conspiracy to discredit Federal Bureau of Investigation and Counter Intelligence Corps investigations be barried from further official contact with all government agencies."

According to the subcommittee report, Mathias and Liebman conspired to discredit CIÇ and FBI representatives, in one case by getting statements from representatives of the International Business Machines Corp, "such statements being misleading and unfounded."

"The Department of the Army has failed to take disciplinary action against Major Mathias and has not submitted the matter to the Attorney General for appropriate action."

The report stated that during the past three years 63 persons have been investigated by the FBI as security risks at the Army Finance Center, of which 44 have been discharged or resigned while under investigation. Upon a review of all loyalty or security risk cases at the Center requested by the committee, recommendation for removal as security risks were made by the Department of the Army in at least three additional cases.

On the count of overpayments, Parks pointed out that the Army had been specifically prohibited by law since 1942 from making a cross-check audit on military allotments before paying them to soldiers' dependents lest the delay caused by this result in hardship "back home."

He explained that this legislation, while humane and desirable, had resulted in most of the finance center's overpayments, subsequent investigation having disclosed in many cases that numerous "Army wives" had been receiving allotments from five or six "husbands" in the service.

Senate Kills NLRB Revamping

give the NLRB chairman twice as much power as the general counsel ever had.

Speaking for he plan, Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) said that separation of the prosecuting and judicial functions "acts to cripple the very force in labor relations which can contribute most to their improvement—the force of mediation." Ives denied the plan was an attempt to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act.

Senators McClellan (D., Ark.) and H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) sided with Taft in the argument, but Senator Benton (D., Conn.) spoke out against disapproval.

Senator Robertson (D., Va.), sponsored the resolution which resulted in disapproval of the Treasury reorganization plan. He and Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), chairman of the Expenditures Committee which sent the resolution to the Senate, expressed fear the proposed change would "tend to disrupt confidence in our national banking system."

The Comptroller of the Currency, now Preston Delano, has general supervision over national banks, and reports directly to Congress.

Senator Benton, who favored the reorganization, said the supposed independence of the comptroller is a myth: that actually the Secretary of the Treasury has many powers over the comptroller's office and that the reorganization simply would bring this relationship into the open.

Benton blamed the oppostion on a pressure campaign by the banks which, he said, never want any changes made.

Robertson and McClellan both noted that the costs of the comptroller's office are paid by the banks.

'Brushoff,' Says McCarthy of State's Denial of Spy Activity by Diplomat

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) carried on his running feud with the State Department yesterday by promising to refute one of the department's denials.

The previous day, the department had branded as completely unfounded a McCarthy charge that an American diplomatic envoy—whose description fits the person of John Carter Vincent, Minister to Switzerland—was a contact man for a Red spy ring.

That kind of brush-off," McCarthy said, is "typical." He promised to supply proof of his accusation and said, "I can do it and I will do it at the proper time."

If the State Department denial means that "they're going to complete the rape of his (the diplomat's) file," McCarthy said, "I will have no choice but to go about the difficult task of proving the case without the file."

McCarthy had previously charged that this and other files of persons he has accused are being cleared of derogatory information by the State Department. He repeated that accusation again yesterday and said there was an FBI report to a House committee that would support the truth of his claim.

Senator Tydings (D., Md.), on the other hand, has denied the charge and a State Department official has offered to take oath to the fact that the files are complete.

Tydings, chairman of the subcommittee looking into McCarthy's charges, continued his inspection of the files on McCarthy's "81 cases" yesterday, along with three members of his subcommittee. Progress in plowing through the mass of material was reported as slow.

Meantime, there were indications at the Capitol yesterday that the Tydings' subcommittee may be interested in looking into the financial background of the so-called China lobby, which support McCarthy's charges.

That such action would not be resisted by the principal Chinese figures in this country was indicated earlier in the week by Senator Knowland (D., Calif.).

Knowland, a vigorous proponent of a China policy wholeheartedly in support of Chiang Kai-shek, read into the Congressional Record letters from H. H. Kung and T. V. Soong stating their willingness for the United States Government to disclose the accounts of their personal finances.

Kung was longtime Finance Minister of China, and Soong was former premier.

Letters to both men were written originally by Alfred Kohlberg, wealthy New York importer of Chinese textiles, who is allegedly a leading light in the pro-Chiang propaganda group in this country. Several years ago he formulated many of the charges McCarthy has recently repeated.

Kohlberg pointed out that there had been magazine and newspaper stories to the effect that Chinese Nationalist officials "sold out their country by transferring personal funds and assets to the United States."

He therefore asked if Kung and Soong would be willing for the State Department and Treasury Department to make public such data as they had on the two men's finances. They replied they had no objection.

McCarthy, Backers Hit by London Times

London, May 11 (U.P.).—The Times called U. S. Senator Joseph McCarthy and his supporters today "frustrated primitives" suspicious of anyone with intellect.

The Times wound up a two-day attack on McCarthy in dispatches entitled "Calumny in Washington," by its Washington correspondent.

The dispatches said McCarthy was reminiscent of the late Huey Long in his "inflammatory demagogy and lack of scruple" and charged he was a willing tool of the "China lobby."

As for the charges he made against Owen Lattimore, the Times said:

"Nobody would believe for five minutes the tawdry collection of witnesses assembled against Dr. Lattimore if the doctrine of 'treason by brains' were not now acceptable in many quarters."

The Times said the "barbarian anger" of the McCarthy group boiled down to "the cries of simple men, men who are frustrated by the complexities of the international picture today.

Businessmen Debate ITO

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday heard arguments for and against congressional approval of the Havana charter for an International Trade Organization.

A. E. Hohenburg, Memphis, Tenn., cotton merchant who heads a shippers' organization, urged acceptance.

Lee H. Bristol, New York, spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers, called the charter "an unsatisfactory—indeed a dangerous—document."

Hohenberg said the existence of an international agency with the objective of eliminating trade barriers "will give courage and fortitude to the forces of free enterprise all over the world."

Budenz Links Draper, Adler To Red Cause

Hartford, Conn., May 11 (U.P.).—Former Communist Louis Budenz testified in Federal Court here today that entertainers Paul Draper and Larry Adler had a reputation in New York as being "Communist" entertainers "serving the interest of the party."

Budenz, a former editor of the Communist newspaper, Daily Worker, was the first witness for the defense in the $200,000 libel suit brought by the dancer and harmonica player against a Greenwich housewife, Mrs. Hester McCullough.

They have accused Mrs. McCullough of damaging their reputations by calling them pro-Communist.

McDonald Dewitt, counsel for the housewife, asked Budenz what was Draper's reputation in New York. Budenz, who has quit the Communist Party, answered:

"That of a Communist entertainer serving the interests of the party."

Asked the same question concerning Adler's reputation, Budenz replied, "The same."

Budenz was called to the stand when court reconvened at 2 p. m. shortly after Federal Judge J. Joseph Smith had denied two defense motions to dismiss the suit.

Attorneys for Adler and Draper rested their case at 12:30 p. m. It was the eleventh day of the libel hearing and the third straight day Draper had taken the stand to refute Mrs. McCullough's "pro-Communist" charges.

Mrs. McCullough's counsel told the court that Budenz, who said he was a member of the Communist Party national committee from 1935 to 1945, would describe the activities of various organizations classed as subversive with which the defendant claims the entertainers were connected.

As the jurors filed back this afternoon, a court marshal was careful to hold spectators back.

The precaution followed a disclosure this morning by Judge Smith that a spectator had tried to talk with jurors and "influence their opinions."

ture economic structure of participating countries, and this aspect will require very careful study by His Majestry's government and the other governments concerned.

"His Majesty's government," Atlee concluded, "will approach the problem in a sympathetic spirit and desire to make it clear at the outset that they welcome this French initiative to end the age-long feud with Germany and so to bring unity and peace to Europe."

Conservative Leader Winston Churchill, a leading advocate of Franco - German rapprochment, urged Attlee to arrange an early debate on the proposal. Attlee agreed, but declined to say when the debate would be set up.

After today's two sessions of the Foreign Ministers, a communique was issued explaining in general terms the scope of the conference. The three-day discussions, it said, "are directed toward strengthening, by all appropriate means the structure of peace."

"The ministers, in their first day's survey, took note of the great progress which has been achieved in the last two years in the realm of economic recovery and in the return of a large measure of stability and health to the European community and in the development of a coordinated defense system for the protection of the free community of the world," the communique said.

Although Schuman's proposal for integrating Franco-German coal and steel resources will be examined Friday, it is unlikely any major decisions will be made.

39 Contempt Actions Asked By House Unit

The House un-American Activities Committee voted yesterday to seek contempt action against 39 persons who refused to answer questions during an investigation of communism in Hawaii.

The committee's action was announced by Representative Walter (D., Pa.). Walter was acting chairman of the investigating group which went to Hawaii to make the inquiry.

The decision means the committee will ask the House to vote contempt citations.

The committee wants a clear-cut court test to determine definitely the nature of questions a witness may refuse to answer, or be required to answer.

Walter said the reluctant witnesses in Hawaii cited the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions. They contended that answers might tend to incriminate them. The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution says that no one may be compelled to be a witness against himself.

Many other witnesses before the committee in hearings here have taken the same position.

Student at Harvard Called by Committee

Cambridge, Mass., May 11 (AP).—A student at the Harvard University Russian Research Center said today he has been summoned to testify next Tuesday before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

He is Raymond A. Bauer, 33, of Cambridge, a native of Chicago and a Navy World War veteran.

Bauer refused comment on the nature of the testimony he expects to give.

It was believed, however, some of his testimony might center on William W. Remington, Department of Commerce economist, with whom he was friendly while both attended the Navy's oriental language school.

U. S. Diplomats Told to Leave Czechoslovakia

Prague, May 11 (U.P.).—United States Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs today ordered approximately 40 of 60 American diplomatic employes to leave Czechoslovakia after the government warned it would not be responsible for their safety.

Most of those affected will leave for Germany Friday.

In a note of April 28 the Communist government demanded a 66 2/3 percent reduction in the number of American employes in the embassy here and the consulate in Bratislavia on the ground that they were engaging in "anti-state activities aimed against the security of Czechoslovakia."

Last night Briggs was notified that the government considered a "reasonable time" for withdrawal would expire Friday midnight.

Unless the employes were out of the country by Sunday, officials told Briggs, the government would not be responsible for their safety. He was advised also that every item of luggage and personal belongings which those who leave try to take with them must have an export permit.

Vatican Radio Charges Czech Antichurch Plot

Vatican City, May 11 (AP).—The Vatican Radio charged today that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky plotted with Czechoslovak Communist leaders to bring about the complete destruction of the Roman Catholic Church in Czechoslovakia.

The broadcast said that Moscow still is the driving power behind the Prague regime's campaign against the Church.

Vishinsky, the broadcast said, was among Soviet functionaries who attended a secret meeting in Karlsbad to plot against the Church.

The plot, it said, was developed around a so-called "Catholic Action" group which was sponsored by the Prague Communist regime and has been condemned by the Vatican.

Europe Trade Barriers Eased

Paris, May 11 (AP).—Western European nations agreed today to ease the flow of money across their borders in an effort to improve trade.

The 18 areas in the Marshall Plan, heeding an American suggestion, removed restrictions on a long list of "invisible exports," which include insurance, loans, professional services, tourism, exchange of money between relatives in different countries, transportation and other business which does not involve actual shipment of goods.

The decision was announced by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC), which said its experts had been working on the liberalization plan for months.

Truman Urges Enactment of Civil Rights Law in Speech Before Spokane Students

our prayers will follow you" Father Francis E. Corkery, president of the university, told Mr. Truman.

Before leaving Spokane, the President stopped at the old Union Stockyards, where he presented blue ribbons to winners of the stockyard show.

Loud "baa's" from two prize sheep provided the first heckling heard on this trip. But the "baa's" harassed only the introductory speaker, Senator Magnuson. The sheep subsided when the President began to speak.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan accompanied the Trumans to the stockyard show.

Mr. Truman spoke earlier at what was officially described as "dedication ceremonies" of Grand Coulee Dam worlds largest concrete structure, and the biggest producer of cheap power. The Republican National Committee contended it was the "fourth" dedication of the dam and merely gave Mr. Truman as an "excuse" for his cross-country tour.

"The benefits of public investment must be passed on to the people whose tax money is being used," he told the crowd at the site. "Those benefits must not be diverted for private profit. We will continue to fight and win—for that principle."

Arthur B. Langlie, Republican Governor of Washington, joined President Truman in his tour of Grand Coulee Dam and later delivered an official "welcome" on the platform.

Seated near him was Mon Wallgren, whom Langlie defeated. Wallgren, now Federal Power Commissioner, came along with Mr. Truman as his personal guest.

Into this strangely "bi-partisan" set-up was injected another "non-political" note.

Secretary of Interior Oscar Chapman, during an introductory speech, spotted Victor Johnston, secretary of the Senate GOP Campaign Committee, in the crowd. Johnston has been "scouting" the trip by private plane.

Chapman publicly invited Johnston to come up on the platform "because I don't know of anyone who has made the President's trip more of a success."

A crowd police estimated at 15,000 heard the President's speech.

Johnston did not respond to Chapman's invitation. Several Republican legislators from Oregon and Washington were seated on the platform at the time, and Chapman called the crowd's attention to this.

Johnston, accompanied by Philip Willkie, showed up later at the Spokane depot with copies of a speech by Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.)) to put aboard the President's train.

Secretary of Interior Chapman borrowed some of the copies of the Millikin speech and helped distribute them as a gag.

The Millikin statement called Mr. Truman's trip a "party strut" and said he "peddling magic remedies."

Today's Grand Coulee speech marked the crest of whistle stop stumping in the three States for a Columbia River Valley Authority. Launched a Boise, Idaho, yesterday, his CVA drive continued last night in Oregon and Washington.

Introduced by Magnuson

Introduced by Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.), running for reelection this year, Mr. Truman unveiled a dedicatory plaque after a tour of the Iam spillway and east power house.

He told the crowd the vast power plant had to be built "over furious opposition." Today, hesaid the dam's power facilities are repaying the investment, with interest and opponents "are trying to cover their tracks."

Mr. Truman called the proposed CVA "a necessary next step in the sensible, democratic development of the resources of the Northwest" and said similar resources throughout the Nation must be developed "for all the people."

"We will meet opposition from the private power groups," he said.

"We have already met this opposition in building Federal projects and the people have met the same opposition in localities where they wanted to establish local public power agencies, such as public utility districts and REA co-ops.

Sure of Defeating Opposition

"I am sure we will be able to overcome this opposition, just as we already have done in building Grand Coulee."

Slapping at unnamed GOP critics, he said they can't tell the difference between a waste of funds and a sensible investment.

Similarly ridiculing the Republican "Liberty vs. Socialism" slogan, he asked: "Do the people out here have less or more freedom?"

He said the answer was perfectly obvious.

He told the crowd we are engaged "in a great struggle to achieve peace in a world beset with danger and threatened by Communist imperialism."

If we are to win it, he said, "we must display the adventurous spirit and firm courage of our pioneering forefathers.

"We shall not succeed if we follow the advice of those who look backward, sighing for the fancied security of an earlier time."

London, May 11 (AP).—Britain's Labor government tonight defeated a Conservative challenge on an appropriation for Scottish administration by 280 to 252.

It was the eleventh time the Laborites had turned back an assault from Winston Churchill's Conservatives since the general election last February.

Grotewohl Admits He Got a Spanking From Kremlin

Berlin, May 11 (NYHT).—Otto Grotewohl, East German Prime Minister, let it be known yesterday he received a political spanking instead of important concessions from Moscow on his recent visit.

He said the Kremlin is displeased with failure of German Communists to progress, not only in West Germany, but in the Soviet zone itself.

Grotewohl told his supporters they must undertake "big and decisive political obligations this year" to remedy this situation.

The most important, he said, is to conduct an intense political program to Sovietize East Germany.

One of the moves in achieving this aim, Grotewhol said, was to unify political parties in East Germany so they will participate with a single list of candidates to be submitted to voters at the general elections in October.

Millikin and Other Republicans Declare Truman Claims Credit Due 'Teddy' Roosevelt

By The Associated Press

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), sad yesterday that President Truman is claiming Democratic credit for a Western reclamation program which was first approved by Republican President Theodore Roosevelt.

Millikin leveled criticism at the President in one of a series of GOP reples to Mr. Truman's Western speeches.

Carrying out Republican strategy to reply to Mr. Truman every time he makes a speech on his Western trip, a number of other Senators fired statements and speeches at him.

Millikin said Mr. Truman's Casper, Wyo., speech was an effort to "monopolize credit for the advancement of our reclamation programs." But he added the national Reclamation Act of 1902 was approved by Theodore Roosevelt.

"But what does that matter," he said, "during a partisan political trp made at the taxpayers' expense? Heaven on earth did not start until 17 years ago and nothing else is worth mentioning."

Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) had a statement ready for release at the same time the President made his talk at Grand Coulee, Wash.

"In his address at Grand Coulee," Wherry said, "President Truman took the side of those who would pervert Grand Coulee into a gigantic force for Government management of the lives and property of the people of the Northwest."

"Given the facts," Wherry concluded, "the people will make Grand Coulee a servant of free enterprise, and they will not be misled by honeyed words of freedom and prosperity employed by President Truman and his greedy socialistic advisers."

Senator Dworshak (R., Idaho) said the people of Idaho "join the people of the Northwest in opposing the type of autocratic valley authority proposed by the President. The President will find little support for his proposals among the people of the Northwest."

Senator Watkins (R., Utah) said the President has departed from the self-liquidating type of water and power projects planned first in 1902 by Theodore Roosevelt.

"The people of the West repay the cost of these projects and should own and control them when the cost has been repaid," he said. "The President and the Democrats have departed from this sound policy of reclamation, and now propose to socialize all of the giant projects of the West."

116 Italian Reds Get Prison Terms

Lucca, Italy, May 11 (AP).—Prison terms up to 28 years today were given 116 Communists convicted of violence in rioting that followed an attempt on the life of Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti in 1948.

Sentencing of the Communists, who rioted for three days as Togliatti lay near death, climaxed the largest and longest mass trial of Communists in postwar Italy.

The tribunal gave the heaviest sentence to Lugi Forti, charged with kiling a policeman. The court lasted 82 days.

10-Cent Phone Booth Calls Not Considered

Baltimore, May 11 (AP).—A spokesman for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. said today it isn't considering a 10-cent coin box call.

The C. and P. mentioned such a chance in a recent rate hearing but did not press for it. Company figures showed that coin boxes last year yielded $4,099,542, or eight percent of total operating income. A 10-cent call system would not double that figure, since a large part of the revenue came from long distance calls placed through the boxes.

U. S. Agencies Plan Job 'Freeze'

are about "broke" the Veterans' Administration, Internal Revenue, Labor, Agriculture, State, and most independent agencies.

Also, it's clearly possible that the requests for supplemental funds will be given a deep cut by the House committee. It's no secret that some agency officials were given a rough going-over when they appeared before the committee in an attempt to justify additional funds to finish out this fiscal year.

In demanding a slash of the deficiency requests, committee members won't get whatever money is allowed until near the end of the present fiscal year and that there will be little time in which to spend it.

If a major cut is made in the deficiency requests, payless furloughs will be in order for many employes.

All in all, the next two months will be as hectic a period as this hectic-ridden city has ever seen. And the confusion and turmoil will apply to Federal agencies and offices everywhere.

Responsible operating officials won't know what to do and they will be criticized for whatever they do.

They won't know whether to fire or furlough employes; they won't know what projects and offices to operate, and they can't plan from one day to the next. "It's a helluva way to run a railroad," a top official moaned yesterday.

These officials won't know what to do from one day to the next because most of them haven't the money to operate for the remainder of this fiscal year, and it now appears the Congress won't complete action on the 1951 budget until that period begins on July 1.

But under our "system," the operating officials must anticipate what Congress will eventually do on the budget and get their agencies prepared to live within that budget as of July 1. Otherwise, they could be jailed if they run over their budgets.

That's why there is talk of provisional lay-offs, job freezes, and other drastic actions.

However, the Administration will fight both of the amendments to make deep cuts in Federal personnel. They are (1) The Taber-Thomas rider to provide a 10 percent personnel cut under the President's budget for most agencies except the Defense which would be cut 2 percent, and (2) the Jensen amendment to allow only one of 10 vacancies to be filled in most agencies.

Coffee Prices Go Down as Housewives Buy One-Fifth Less; New Hearings Will Begin

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

American housewives are winning the fight against high coffee prices, Senate food investigators report.

In the last four months, they have been buying only four pounds of coffee for each five they bought a year ago.

As a result, coffee prices that went up like a jet plane last fall, have hit the skids. Wholesale prices have dropped about 15 percent from the December 7 high, and retail prices about half that amount.

The Senate Agriculture Food Price Subcommittee, headed by Senator Guy M. Gillete (D., Iowa), will resume hearings into last fall's sudden hike in coffee prices Tuesday. Witnesses scheduled are George V. Robbins, of the Maxwell House division of General Foods Corp., and Angus Mackey, New York representative of several Brazilian coffee firms.

Mackey, one of the best known figures in the coffee business, is being subpenaed to answer questions about a trade letter he recently published. In it he said that Brazil will have five million bags of last year's coffee on its hands when this year's harvest, estimated at 15,500,000 bags, comes in July.

Mackey also alleged that vast supplies, estimated at 4,500,000 bags, have been discovered in interior warehouses.

"Speculation in coffee is rampant in Brazil," Mackey wrote, "even among people who heretofore had not even a remote connection with the coffee business.

"The situation there is comparable to the 1929 stock market here."

The Gillette investigators, however, don't believe that Americans are consuming 25 percent less coffee. Instead, they say, "the people aren't throwing away the fifth cup. They are only making what they can drink."

law resulted in a 25-percent increase in rates to water consumers here.

He voiced the hope that the water bill might be enacted in time for the first loans under the 23-million-dollar borrowing program to be included in the next District budget.

Financing the necessary expansion of the city water system, Young's letter said, "is the principal financial problem remaining to the government of the District for solution at this time."

He said the needed new construction will exceeded the income from current water revenues by 23 million dollars between next year and 1960. After that, the loans can be repaid and additional expansion can be financial out of current income of the water fund, the letter said.

Under the proposed bill, year-to-year loans would be voted by Congress up to the 23-million-dollar limit. Interest rates would be set by the Secretary of Treasury.

U. S. Antitrust Suits Criticized

been brought here by civil suit. It is unfair to indict these men, where there is no malevolent or immoral act. The evidence you have presented is debatable. It is a close question."

Chief Prosecutor Robert Winn then explained that the indictment was procured under a policy announced soon after the war to prosecute criminally all persons restraining trade in goods "essential to life."

"When a person is indicted, in the eyes of the public he stands stigmatized and the stigma is not completely removed even if he is subsequently acquitted.

"Unfortunately, it has gotten to the point where the business community does not attach any stigma to indictments or conviction under the Sherman Act. I believe it is because the Department has brought so many of these indictments."

Judge Holtzoff was a Justice Department official himself for years before he was appointed to the bench.

The judge pointed out that irrespective of over-all policy, the "prosaic and narrow" point he must decide at this time is whether the Government has proved a prima-facie case against the defendants and whether they must start the defense proper of their case.

In summarizing the Government testimony, Winn said that the evidence showed that 80 percent of the District's milk is distributed under a "full-supply" agreement with the producers association. This factor, plus the geographic situation, has resulted in a "Chinese wall" around the city whereby other farmers are excluded from freely participating in the market. As a result, he said, prices can be fixed by the defendants and competition lessened.

McConnell declared that while milk is such a perishable commodity that minimum-price fixing may be allowed, it should be done under the aegis of the Department of Agriculture and not by a combination, as evidenced by the case.

Restaurants Want Milk Order Kept

The Washington Restaurant Association favors continuation of the order permitting importation of milk to the District from areas not inspected by the Health Department, a spokesman said yesterday.

"It assures a good supply of high-grade milk at all times," said Lofton S. Wesley, chairman of the association's legislative committee. "If the outside supply were cut off we would be at the mercy of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association."

The producers' association, which supplies 80 percent of the milk in this area from District-inspected farms, favors the termination of the District Commissioners' wartime order.

As it now stands, the order will expire June 30. The Commissioners had called a meeting yesterday to determine whether it should be extended. The meeting was postponed at the request of the producers' association. No new date has been set.

Both Wesley, for the restaurant association, and Bourbon A. Dawes, for the Hotel Association of Washington, yesterday asked the Commissioners either to hold a hearing soon or extend temporarily the existing order.

Dawes, executive secretary of the hotel association, said he could not give his group's final views on the question until all aspects of the "highly technical subject" had been discussed.

Beef, Poultry Inching Up In Price List

Beef prices are still up in the luxury bracket this weekend on most cuts and Washington wholesalers predict they will get worse before they get better.

Retailers weren't even mentioning steak prices in advertisements—"They're better left unsaid," one commented. Rib roast was prominent in several weekend offerings, priced generally at 59 cents a pound—about the same as last weekend.

James K. Farrell, chairman of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association wholesale beef division, said the western beef markets have been inching up this week and the impact will be felt here next weekend.

Housewives pushed out of the beef market by prices have been showing more interest in poultry with the result that the fowls' prices are nudging upward daily, according to Fred Kolker, wholesaler.

Fryers were leading some retail ads at prices from 37 to 59 cents, with some variation depending on whether they were drawn or not.

Coffee prices tumbled two cents at most stores from the upper plateau on which they have been pegged, with national brands selling at 77 cents.

This Time The Anti-Trust Lawyers Won A Case Against A&P

As almost everyone now knows, the anti-trust lawyers in Washington have brought a civil suit to destroy A&P. They ask the courts to order the dissolution of this company.

They say that this suit is based on the fact that they won a suit against us at Danville, Illinois, in 1946.

They did. In that case, Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley made a decision against A&P.

Immediately thereafter, in a letter explaining his decision, Judge Lindley wrote:

"I have not condemned the A&P system.
I have not made a finding which could be the basis for a suit of dissolution."

So, now we have the anti-trust lawyers saying that their suit to dissolve A&P is based on Judge Lindley's decision; while Judge Lindley himself says his decision could not be the basis for a suit of dissolution.

In previous ads we told you about the cases against A&P which the anti-trust lawyers lost. We promised to tell you about this case they won. Here is the story of the Danville case.

What Judge Lindley Objected To

At Danville, the anti-trust lawyers made all of the charges which they are again making against A&P today. They were substantially the same charges they had made and dropped at Dallas, Texas, after four federal judges had objected to some of them as "inflammatory."

In his decision, Judge Lindley was critical of some of our activities. He threw some of the charges out of court. He did not make any decision on others.

He even took occasion to praise A&P for the efficient job of food distribution it had done.

Judge Lindley said:

> "To buy, sell and distribute to a substantial portion of 130,000,000 people, one and three-quarter billion dollars worth of food annually at a profit of 1½ cents on each dollar, is an achievement one may well be proud of.
> "No place in the world I take it are people so well fed as in the United States. Nowhere else, I suppose, do food distributors accomplish efficient distribution at so low a margin of profit. In contrast, we are told in other nations the problem is not one of an adequate diet but one of no diet at all."

But Judge Lindley did find us in violation of the Sherman Act. He based his ruling on the dual role played by our fresh fruit and vegetable buying subsidiary, the Atlantic Commission Company, whereby that organization acted both as buying agent for A&P and as selling agent for growers.

Judge Lindley said:

> "If I assume for the purpose of disposition of this case that in general the policy of A&P was to operate within the law and attribute to defendants a desire to comply with the law, there still remains the conscious, knowing adoption by all defendants of a plan of action by the Atlantic Commission Company affecting every department of A&P and every retail store which cannot be squared with the intent and purpose of the act."

In his letter explaining the decision, Judge Lindley wrote: "I have condemned their practices through the Atlantic Commission Company."

Judge Lindley imposed fines totaling $175,000. When his decision was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, we paid the fines. This ended the case—but we did not stop there.

What We Did To Correct This

In the light of the decision, we immediately set about reviewing our activities to be sure that there could never again be any criticism of our operations.

First, the Atlantic Commission Company abandoned the dual role to which Judge Lindley objected and which he said was the basis of his decision against us.

We did this even though the Atlantic Commission Company had been licensed for many years by the United States Department of Agriculture to act as both a buyer and seller of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The Atlantic Commission Company now only buys for A&P. In other words, we stopped doing the thing which Judge Lindley said put us in violation of the Sherman Act.

We made additional changes in other methods of operation which Judge Lindley had questioned at Danville, even though he did not base his decision on them.

We did even more than this!

We went down to Washington and asked the anti-trust lawyers what else they thought we should do to conform to their new interpretation of the vague anti-trust laws.

The only answer we ever got was that we should break up this company!

> Despite their claim that they were not opposed to A&P's size, they insisted that we destroy this size.
> Despite their claim that they were not opposed to our manufacturing operations, they insisted that we get rid of our factories which produce many of the fine foods you buy at A&P.
> Despite their claim that they were not opposed to our low prices, they insisted that we destroy many of the efficiencies that make these low prices possible.

In other words, they insisted upon the dissolution of A&P.

We were still trying to find out from the anti-trust lawyers what else they thought we should do to conform to the law when they filed the current suit to destroy A&P.

Why, Then, Do They Want To Put A&P Out Of Business?

Ever since this suit was filed, the anti-trust lawyers have been making damaging statements that could seriously hurt our business if they were believed by the public.

They say that we were found guilty at Danville of all the charges they are making today.

> This is not true. Judge Lindley did not sustain all of the charges of the anti-trust lawyers.

They say this suit is designed to enforce the law.

> But A&P has clearly demonstrated its sincere desire to abide by the spirit, as well as the letter of the law.

They say they are seeking to "enjoin" A&P from engaging in certain "alleged" practices.

> Actually, the whole purpose of this suit is not to "enjoin" us, but to put us out of business.

They say that this suit for dissolution is based on the decision handed down by Judge Lindley in Danville.

> But Judge Lindley has said of his decision: "I have not made a finding which could be the basis for a suit of dissolution."

What, then, is the real reason why the anti-trust lawyers want to destroy this company, which for 90 years has pioneered the methods of distribution which have given the American people more good food for their money?

Thousands Fleeing Flooded Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Manitoba, May 11 (AP).—Thousands of the 200,000 women and children of this flood-stricken prairie city left for safer ground today as the raging Red River continued to spread over an eighth of Greater Winnipeg.

Army officials told those not needed to fight the rising waters to "get out while you can in comfort."

Harried officials, confronted with the problem of caring for 25,000 who earlier fled homes in flooded southern Manitoba to Winnipeg, planned their removal also. They announced no more evacuees would be brought to Winnipeg.

The Red River Valley to the south was virtually a no-man's-land, with at least 10 towns isolated and deserted. Rich farms along the valley floor were almost all inundated. Officials estimated that more than 500 square miles of southern Manitoba was under water and damage was beyond estimation.

Thousands of homes in Winnipeg are flooded and are likely to remain so for weeks. Experts said Winnipeg could expect no relief until after the vast flood-lake to the south was drained off.

Early this morning the river had risen to 29.4 feet, highest since 1826. This was 11 feet over flood stage and experts said it may go higher.

A flood relief commander said evacuation was still voluntary. He said it is "orderly and on a fairly large scale," but there was "no wholesale evacuation." Plans were being made, however, for compulsory evacuation if needed.

Meanwhile, the flood death toll in the United States and Canada rose to 26.

A man and a woman were drowned and scores of families were forced from their homes in southern Oklahoma. The count of the dead reached 22 in southeastern Nebraska and was two in Manitoba.

Hazel Dalen, 29, and Jack King, 25, were swept to their deaths from an automobile on a flooded bridge near Shawnee, Okla.

Mine Blast In Belgium Fatal to 41

Mons, Belgium, May 11 (U.P.).—A coal-gas explosion 1650 feet below the surface of the Trazegnies mine near here killed at least 41 men today in this country's worst mine disaster since the war.

Two or three others were reported missing and three more were injured badly.

As wives and relatives stood by weeping, rescue workers wearing gas masks recovered 37 bodies. These included all but four of 19 who had been sealed off in a gas-filled chamber. Rescue workers had been lowered by ropes into the main shaft of the mine.

It was feared the missing might have been trapped in a 700-foot tunnel, deepest in the mine.

The blast demolished elevators and other equipment. Rescue workers were hampered by heavy gas fumes.

The whitewashed hall of the main mine building was made into a temporary morgue.

Rescue squads first reported hearing light tapping through a wall that blocked off the 19 men in a "death chamber."

Three members of one family were killed in the blast. They were Noel Goliath, father of eight children; his eldest son, 14, and his son-in-law.

2 British Miners Die

Bransley, England, May 11 (U.P.). A 60-foot wall face collapsed today at an open coal site, killing two men.

'5-Percenter' Gets 30 Days In Tax Case

Baltimore, May 11 (AP).—A Washington "5 percenter" who admitted he didn't file an income tax return for 25 years drew a $1000 fine and a 30-day jail term for income tax evasion today in Federal District Court.

The defendant was H. Gordon Fisher, 52, identified as one of a group who sought Government contracts for others for a 5 percent fee.

Fisher lived for several years in a fashionable Washington apartment hotel and some $97,000 a year moved in and out of his bank account. But he contended that his business expenses were such that there was no net income.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Norman P. Ramsey told the court the Government is holding Fisher for a large tax, but that the exact figure could not be announced because the original estimate might be reduced on a showing of business expenses by Fisher.

Md. Hospital Releases Man After 19 Years

Baltimore, May 11 (AP).—George A. Smith spent 19 of his 54 years in a mental hospital. Every so often he would petition a judge to get out.

Today he was freed at last.

He was sent to Crownsville State Hospital for Negroes in 1931 after he was accused of sending threatening letters to a trained nurse. The charge was held over him during the time he was in the institution.

Judge Michael J. Manley entered an order of acquittal today.

The judge ruled that the alleged threatening letters were just love letters. Psychiatrists at previous hearings had said Smith held the delusion the nurse was in love with him.

Judge Manley told the complaining witnesses that simply the passage of time probably had erased the love delusion.

Spurned Lover Kills Pleading Girl

Prichard, Ala., May 11 (U.P.).—A spurned lover today shot fatally his girl friend in the back as she dropped to her knees to plead for life.

Then, Louis Melvin Greenlee, shot the pretty brunette's companion and killed himself.

Police said Greenlee killed Wauweece (Butch) Wade, because she had not returned his love. Miss Wade's companion, John Adams, was wounded critically.

Adams was driving Miss Wade home. When they stopped in front of her home, Greenlee opened the car door and waved a .38-caliber revolver.

Youngs Discuss 'Richitt Affair,' Defer Action

The District Commissioners yesterday discussed "at length" the report on the Police Department's Richitt affair, but took no action on it.

Commissioner John Russell Young said the Commissioners needed additional information to "clarify" certain points brought out in yesterday's discussion. Action on the report, and its public release, must wait until the information has been received, he said. Young said this might take "a few days."

Young said he and Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young went over the report yesterday with Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher. Commissioner Guy Mason was absent because of illness.

This was the Commissioners' first full discussion of the report since Maher submitted it five weeks ago, J. R. Young said.

The report presumably deals with events leading up to reported erasures in Third Precinct records and differences between Capt. Anthony Richitt and his chief, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and the reasons for Richitt's transfer March 1 from the No. 3 "White House" Precinct to No. 8 Precinct.

Stamp Case Is Presented To Grand Jury

The $600,000 get-rich-quick stamp operations of former Postoffice Department official Harold F. Ambrose were presented to a Federal grand jury yesterday.

Two unidentified witnesses, said to be Postoffice inspectors, were the first to testify.

Ambrose, a special assistant to Postmaster General Jesse W. Donaldson, was forced to resign his $10,000-a-year job January 11, after his stamp operations were disclosed.

Donaldson has said Ambrose induced about 25 persons to invest around $600,000 in special stamp issues. According to postal inspectors, early investors were paid off with funds from persons who joined the scheme later, but seven are said to have lost $200,000.

The case is being presented by Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly, Harold H. Bacon, and two Justice Department prosecutors, Ellis L. Arenson and James P. O'Brien.

Woman Witness Freed On Bond in Baby Death

Mrs. Emma Jenkins, held as a material witness in the death of 2½-year-old Donald Ferranto, was released yesterday on $2500 bond, set by Alexandria Civil and Police Justice James R. Duncan.

Mrs. Jenkins was a housekeeper at the Ferranto home, 110 S. Fayette st., Alexandria. The child's stepfather, John C. Ferranto, is charged with murder, and held in $5000 bond.

Cocky Gets His Wish—With Bonus

Norman R. "Cocky" Case asked police for a night's lodging Wednesday night, and got 180 nights' lodging in Municipal Court yesterday.

Case called Number Seven Precinct station over a normally locked police call box at Jefferson and M sts. nw., and told Pvt. Kenneth Knight:

"This is Cocky Case and I'm drunk. You can't expect me to walk to the precinct. Send me a wagon, please."

Knight recognized Case's voice and obliged.

Ten hours later Judge Aubrey Fennell sentenced Case to serve 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $100 or serve an additional 150 days. Case told lock-up officials he was broke.

Gun Missing But U.S. Wins Weapon Case

James B. Anderson, 35, 1425 T st. nw., was convicted in Municipal Court yesterday of carrying a deadly weapon the Government could not identify.

Four witnesses said they saw Anderson shoot Mack Evans, 30, 1318 S st. nw., in the stomach on a trolley loading platform at 14th and T sts. nw., February 19.

Police have been unable to locate Evans during the last three months, and as a result a charge of assault with a deadly weapon has been dropped.

The Government produced a revolver yesterday, but no witness would swear it was the one they saw Anderson using. The gun was recovered from a closet in the poolroom Anderson was seen entering after the shooting. He was not carrying the revolver when arrested.

Attorney T. Emmett MacKenzie argued before Judge Thomas D. Quinn that the Government had no case against Anderson without either Evans or the gun.

Judge Quinn agreed with Prosecutor William Glendon that the Government needed to prove only that Anderson was carrying a revolver and had no permit.

Anderson did not take the stand.

Magicians Hold Election

Carl E. Brockway, accountant with the Potomac Electric Power Co., has been elected president of Washington Assembly, No. 23, American Society of Magicians. Other officers are Robert Shaw, vice president; Raymond E. Otterback, secretary-treasurer, and Julius P. Hopkins, sergeant-at-arms.

Crime Probers Fail to Obtain $20,000 More

Representative Wayne L. Hays (D., Ohio) yesterday struck a blow for home rule by blocking House action on a $20,000 addition to funds of the special House District Crime Investigating Committee.

Hays did it by a point of order challenging the House Administration Committee's approval of the fund earlier in the day. He said a quorum was not present.

Administration Committee Chairman Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.) withdrew the crime probe funds resolution when Acting Speaker McCormack (D., Mass.) upheld Hays' point of order. She said the next move would be to call another meeting of the committee and bring up the resolution when a quorum was present. She said there was a quorum when the meeting started. Hays said but nine members were present when he arrived. The committee has 25 members and 13 is a quorum.

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) as chairman of the special District Crime Study Committee, sponsored the resolution for the $20,000 fund. The committee has spent an earlier $10,000 allowance of House funds. At one point Davis proposed spending $40,000 more, but halved this figure after setting aside the idea of a thorough probe of Washington gambling.

Davis said his committee might duplicate activities of the special Senate Crime Investigating Committee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.). Davis said his group would wait and see the results the Senate group might turn up on the Washington gambling picture.

The remaining $20,000 fund was planned mainly for use in perfecting a program of stricter law enforcement for Washington. Davis declined comment on Hays' action.

Has 20-Cent Solution

Hays, a member of the Administration committee, several weeks ago made a move to challenge the Davis funds request. He left a hearing where Davis was testifying in closed session and told reporters he did so because he wanted an open hearing where he could quiz Davis about Washington home rule. Hays favors and Davis opposes the home-rule legislation.

After blocking the funds in the House yesterday, Hays told reporters he never did get his chance to question Davis on home rule. He said he received notice a day late about another meeting where Davis testified on the crime funds.

"I'm personally opposed to spending this $20,000," said Hays. "I deplore the fact that Washington has one of the worst crime rates in the Nation, but I can give a solution for less than 20 cents, and that is to take Washington law enforcement out of politics.

Jibe at J. R. Young

"You can't have one kind of law enforcement for Commissioner John Russell Young and another kind for the rest of the citizens." He said he referred to special police details and special parking provisions reported in the block where Commissioner Young lives.

Hays said his idea for taking policing out of politics is to set up a city manager and council form of home-rule government—as provided in pending home-rule legislation. Under this, the police chief would report to the manager, and the council hold the manager accountable for law enforcement.

Murdered Redhead Not Identified Yet

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., May 11 (U.P.).—The broken body of a fragile redhead, who was found nude and strangled in a mushroom patch, lay unclaimed in a mortuary today and police were without a clew to her identity.

A coroner's jury ruled that "Miss X" was murdered by strangulation by "a person or persons unknown" and then tossed down a 40-foot embankment, possibly from a car.

The body was found yesterday by a Hancock, Md., man who was picking mushrooms. Police said medical examination indicated the woman, believed to be between 35 and 40 years old, had been dead about three days before the man stumbled over her body.

An autopsy failed to show whether she had been sexually attacked. Authorities said her neck was broken, possibly when she was thrown down the highway embankment about 300 yards from a Potomac River bridge leading to Maryland.

Police said failure of scores of persons to recognize the woman indicated she was slain elsewhere.

A search of the area failed to turn up any trace of her clothing, and two men who thought they might be able to identify her said she was not the woman they were looking for.

Frank Barnhart, a construction worker from Cumberland, Md., had thought the woman might be his estranged wife. George Pfieffer, Winchester, Va., thought she might be his missing sister.

Barnhart said his wife had false teeth, but those of the victim were her own. Pfieffer said his sister had dyed red hair. The victim's hair was a natural flaming red.

West Zone's No. 2 Red Quits Parliament

Bonn, Germany, May 11 (AP).—West Germany's No. 2 Communist, Kurt Mueller, resigned from Parliament today.

In a letter to Erick Koehler, president of the Bundestag, Mueller said he was quitting for personal reasons.

The American Forces Radio network, however, said Mueller had been dismissed from the Communist Party for "Trotskyist activities." This could not be confirmed immediately. Mueller was not available for comment.

Boiling Radiator Foils Bank Holdup Getaway

Carnation, Wash., May 11 (U.P.). Townfolk captured a gunman who robbed the Washington State Bank today after a six-mile chase in automobiles and the town fire truck.

Elroy Oster surrendered 13 minutes after he fled with $700. Bartenders, soda jerks, grocery clerks and firemen joined the chase, which was enlivened by the screaming of the fire engine siren.

Oster's car stalled at the top of a hill when the radiator boiled over. He climbed from the machine and handed the money to bank manager Willard Brown, who was leading the chase.

Persons Certain Of Governorship; Folsom Man Quits

Montgomery, Ala., May 11 (AP).—Jubilant Gordon Persons won the Governorship of Alabama today when his nearest rival, Phillip J. Hamm, declined to go through with a runoff contest for the Democratic nomination.

Actually, the silver-haired, 47-year-old Persons still faces the formality of the general election in November, but there's no doubt of the outcome.

Hamm, picked by Gov. James E. Folsom as his successor, ran second to Persons in last Tuesday's primary, but trailed by 80,660 votes. He announced his withdrawal in a Statewide broadcast with Folsom in the studio audience.

In declining to make the runoff, Hamm followed the course taken by Folsom in 1942 when he ran second to Chauncey Sparks. Four years later Folsom was elected.

Safety Taught Prince Georges Children

Prince Georges County pupils are learning about traffic safety in lectures—and then are shown how to do something about it.

Yesterday, as part of a county-wide series, Beltsville Elementary School pupils heard a safety talk by County Police Corpl. Roland Sweitzer. After the talk, they were given strips of luminous tape, which they affixed to their bicycles. The strips glow at night with reflected light.

The lectures and demonstrations are sponsored by the County Business and Professional Women's Club and Miss Ethel M. Regan, county home demonstration agent. Also participating in yesterday's affair were the Beltsville Mothers' Club, the school P-TA and the Vansville Citizens Association.

Fair Rent Controls Administration Aim, President Tells Mayors Convention

New York, May 11 (AP).—President Truman told the U. S. Conference of Mayors today that rent control must be fair to the landlord and tenant alike.

In a message to the annual conference, Mr. Truman said extension of Federal rent control did not mean that landlords would be barred from seeking justifiable increases.

"As you know," he said, "I have recommended to the Congress the extension of rent control until June 30, 1951 . . . Along with the extension of controls we must continue our present policy of granting justifiable increases in rent to the landlord."

His message was read to the conference by Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland.

The President also said progress was being made in proposals to alleviate tax losses occurring when the Federal Government buys real estate taxed by local governments.

"It is hoped that a legislative proposal may be ready for submission to the Congress at its present session," Mr. Truman said.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath told the conference that antigambling legislation now before Congress calls for Federal aid to local authorities but not for Federal prosecution of bootleggers to avoid the pitfall of a new prohibition era," the Attorney General said.

Earlier, Salvatore Rebecchini, Mayor of Rome, Italy, spoke in favor of self-government for local communities "in a sphere of freedom, with no arbitrary and paralyzing controls from above."

Mayor W. Cooper Green of Birmingham, Ala., president of the conference, told the group that Congress should set up a joint tax commission to study the Nation's tax situation.

Defense Aid Sought

The commission's formation, Green said, would be the initial step in "elimination of tax conflicts, division of tax revenues and allocation of proceeds as between the Federal Government, the 48 States and the cities."

The Birmingham executive also called on Federal authorities to devise specific plans to deal with security and civilian defense in the event of enemy attack.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore lauded the conference for its part in persuading Congress to formulate a national policy for slum clearance, urban redevelopment and low-rent housing.

Mayors and officials of a number of foreign cities are attending the conference.

In a special message read to the meeting, Mayor Ernst Reuter of Berlin said that although the houses of many Berliners are ruins, his people will "always stand on the side of freedom and western civilization and culture."

'Free' Train Trip From Baltimore Costs Rider $100

Dorothy Hayward rode a train from Baltimore to Washington for free on May 3, but the ride cost her $100 in Municipal Court yesterday.

She was fined by Judge Thomas D. Quinn under the rarely used Federal statute against unauthorized use of a railroad pass.

The Baltimore woman pleaded guilty after telling Government officials that she used a pass belonging to her sister, Mrs. James Stokes, the wife of a railroad employe.

The $100 fine is $98.45 more than the coach fare between Washington and Baltimore.

Film Star Divorced

London, May 11 (AP).—Lady Helena Mary Hardwicke was granted a divorce decree today from British stage and screen star Sir Cedric Hardwicke on grounds of adultery. Sir Cedric, now in New York, did not contest the divorce, which will not become final for six months.

Gen. M'Arthur Wins Award Of Chaplains

The Military Chaplains Association of the United States last night paid tribute to Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur as "an example of high moral character and deep genuine personal religion."

Gen. Reynolds

The association, concluding its three-day, nineteenth national convention, announced the award, a scroll and medal, to the supreme commander for the Allied powers in Japan, at a dinner in the Shoreham Hotel.

The presentation was made by newly reelected President Chaplain Frederick C. Reynolds.

The award was accepted in the general's behalf by Chaplain Ivan L. Bennett, chief of chaplains section, Far East Command, who flew from Tokyo to attend the convention.

This was the first presentation of the award, to be given annually to an American citizen making "outstanding contributions in the field of strengthening the spiritual foundations of citizenship as related to national defense."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) was the chief speaker at the dinner.

In addition to Brig. Gen. Reynolds, District superintendent of the Methodist Church, four other Washington men were elected officers of the association.

They are Chaplains: John W. Bundrant, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church; John M. Walsh, dean of students at Catholic University Leighton E. Harrell, Veterans' Administration, vice presidents at large, and Chaplain Edmund L. R. Elson, pastor of National Presbyterian Church, area vice president.

Veterans' Administrator Carl R. Gray, addressing the morning session, said the Veterans' Administration now has 242 full-time and 224 part-time chaplains—except the Armed Forces, "the largest number of chaplaint in any nonecclesiastical organization in the world."

The association voted approval of the new Associated Services for the Armed Forces, successor to the U. S. O. In other actions it recommended to its chaplains a daily noon minute of silent prayer for peace, and approved the June 29 Sesquicentennial religious program sponsored by the Army and Navy Union, which will be holding its convention in Washington.

Baptist Group Elects Dr. Lee To Third Term

Chicago, May 11 (AP).—Dr. G. E. Lee today was elected to his third one-year term as president of the Southern Baptist Convention. He is pastor of the Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis.

The ninety-third assembly approved Miami as the site of the 1952 convention. Next year's session will be in San Francisco.

The Rev. Louie Newton of Atlanta, chairman of the committee on time-place-and-preacher, said the ommittee decided to return to the South in 1952 because the city has promised adequate housing and convention facilities.

The convention elected as vice presidents, Dr. Marshall Craig of Dallas, and Brooks Hays, Little Rock, Ark., a Democratic Congressman. Porter Routh and Joe Wright Burton, both of Nashville, were reelected secretaries.

Dr. Duke Kimbrough McCall, also of Nashville, was renamed treasurer.

Other convention business:

Mrs. George R. Martin, president of the Women's Missionary Union, auxiliary to the convention, which met in Chicago earlier in the week, reported the union had 942,988 members at the close of 1949, an increase of 67,690 over 1948.

Mrs. Martin said the union conducted 415 mission institutes and 1104 missionary round tables last year.

J. B. Lawrence, secretary of the Baptist Home Mission Board, said the missions will continue to be the "seed corn" of organized Christian work, not only in the United States but throughout the world. He said a survey of the board's work last year showed an increasing emphasis on evangelism.

The board now employs 1030 missionaries, who reported 335,913 conversions last year. More than 500 missions were established last year, Lawrence said, and 167 new churches were opened.

Dr. C. E. Matthews of Dallas, secretary of the department of evangelism, urged all "Southern Baptist associations extend an invitation to minority Baptist groups, where they exist, regardless of race or color, to collaborate with us in all of our evangelistic efforts."

"This is according to the teachings of the New Testament," Dr. Matthews said.

The convention petitioned the United States Senate to defeat the House bill to place nonordained employes of churches and denominations under Social Security.

Dr. Howard M. Reaves of Mobile, Ala., chairman of the Social Security committee, said:

"The Baptists have their own retirement plan and any effort to bring these employes under Social Security is a violation of the principle of the separation of church and state."

8 Million Earmarked for China

American private agencies which still have representatives in Communist-held China.

There is not the slightest belief here that the Communist masters of China will admit any American relief workers or supplies, although reports of famine conditions have been coming out insistently in recent weeks. American consular officials who have just left Communist China have reported the authorities there as dead set against charity or trade from the non-Communist world.

Still, officials here attach the greatest importance to the offer of help, if only to show the Chinese people that America is still their friend. The Voice of America broadcasts will beam the news into every part of Communist China that can be reached, and American consular officials will spread the word among the Chinese communities elsewhere in Asia.

The Senate added the relief provision last Friday in authorizing the foreign aid bill. Yesterday House conferees agreed to it, cutting the amount slightly to eight million dollars. Both Houses are expected to approve the agreement next week and then rush it to the President so it can become law.

Aid for Stranded Students

The conferees also agreed yesterday to set aside six million of the unspent China-Formosa funds to support stranded Chinese students in this country. This proposal, including permission to the students to earn their living here, was a House amendment which the Senate conferees gladly accepted.

The unspent China-Formosa funds, appropriated last year, are estimated at 94 million dollars. Apart from the 8 million for relief and six million for Chinese students here, the conferees agreed yesterday to earmark 40 million of it for economic recovery in non-Communist areas of China — namely, Formosa—and 40 million" —namely, in Indo-China and elsewhere in southeast Asia.

Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb said yesterday that his department was working hard to launch a program of economic and military aid for the southeast Asia area. Officials familiar with the planning said the economic aid would amount to about 23 million dollars for Indo-China, 11 million for Indonesia, Burma and Siam, and five million for Malaya—all out of the 40-million-dollar fund earmarked by the conferees yesterday.

In addition, about 30 million dollars in military aid is expected out of a separate fund of 75 million dollars which Congress voted last year for this purpose.

On other parts of the huge foreign aid bill, the conferees knocked out a Senate amendment which would have denied France the use of local currency funds because of alleged discrimination against American businessmen in Morocco.

In place of it, they added language letting the Economic Cooperation Administrator take "remedial action" wherever the State Department finds a Marshall Plan country or its dependencies discriminating against the United States.

Today the conferees will try to agree on the amount and the conditions of the so-called Point Four program of technical help to undeveloped areas. The Senate voted 45 million dollars for this program, the House 25 million.

President Truman wired the Senate and House committee chairmen yesterday that any reduction of the 45 million figure "would not only hamper effective work in this field but would also have serious political and psychological reactions" abroad.

He said the Point Four program would be of special help to the countries of the Near East and southern and southeastern Asia in keeping their independence "in the face of grave dangers." And he added that prompt passage of the whole foreign aid bill would "greatly advance our foreign policy and strengthen Secretary Acheson's hand at his important meeting in London."

France Will Let Vietnamese Send Envoys to West

Saigon, French Indo-China, May 11 (U.P.).—France today agreed to let the semi-independent State of Viet Nam send diplomatic representatives to the United States and Britain, in accordance with a request by Bao Dai.

The step was disclosed in a letter to the Emperor from French President Vincent Auriol, published only three days after the United States agreed to aid France in its fight against the Communist-led rebels.

United States Secretary of State Acheson had announced in Paris that the United States will provide economic and military help.

Although French Foreign Minister Schuman said there are no reservations attached to the agreement, American official opinion favors greater independence of Viet Nam to remove the stigma of "colonial war" from the Indo-Chinese struggle.

Meanwhile, Premier Tran Van Huu, whose Viet Nam Cabinet took office yesterday, warned his new government intends to enforce order and expects the population to cooperate.

Soviets Curb Barge Traffic

Berlin, May 11 (U.P.).—British authorities today said 50 westbound German barges were backlogged at the Soviet-British zonal border as Soviet officials checked documents. Water traffic from the west to Berlin is moving freely.

Slight Upturn Sends Average To 4-Year Top

New York, May 11 (AP).—A small over-all advance lifted the stock market to a new four-year high today.

Price changes were small, a few issues swinging a point or more in either direction. Gains outnumbered losses by a moderate margin.

Even railroad shares made a good showing despite the firemen's strike against four major systems.

| WHAT STOCKS DID | Thurs. | Wed. |
|---|---|---|
| Advances | 468 | 496 |
| Declines | 371 | 468 |
| Unchanged | 302 | 301 |
| Total issues | 1141 | 1165 |

Business was fairly active with sales of 1,750,000 shares, off a bit from yesterday's 1,870,000.

The price average showed a tendency to curve downward at the start of trading. Buying interest in radio-television stocks suddenly picked up and eventually spilled over into other sections of the market. Demand failed to follow through, however, and a good many advances were shaved.

TV stocks, for instance, finished well under the best levels of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks inched up .1 of one point to 77.7, a peak since July 12, 1946. Industrials and utilities finished a trifle higher while rails were unchanged on average.

The flurry of buying in television stocks followed a rather sharp sell-off in this section late Wednesday. TV stocks have been subjected to rather heavy profit taking recently after a spectacular advance earlier this year and the group seems to be still engaged in trying to find a solid footing.

A help to TV issues today was Philco's quarterly report which showed a huge gain in profits over a year ago. On a par share basis first quarter profits ballooned from 49 cents to $2.37.

Radio Corp., the most active issue, closed ⅛ lower at 19¾ after showing a net gain for a while.

Admiral Corp. was unchanged at 31 while fractional gains were scored by Emerson 32¼, Philco 46, Motorola 41¼, Avco 8, and International Telephone 13⅝. Zenith showed a little power with a rise of 1¾ to 57.

Republic Steel responded to overnight news of an increased dividend with a rise of 1⅛ to 33⅛.

Railway Group To Give Awards At Dinner Here

Fraser, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, and E. F. Lacey, executive secretary of the National Industrial Traffic League.

Another highlight will be the presentation of the federation's annual awards to the industry by Robert R. Young, founder and chairman of the FRP.

Burlington Mills Net Dips to $9,217,000

New York May 11 (AP).—Burlington Mills today reported earnings of $9,217,000, equal to $2.20 a share, for the six months ended April 1, the first half of the fiscal year.

The figure compared with $10,665,000, or $2.55 a share, a year ago.

Dividend Increased

New York, May 11 (AP).—Republic Steel Corp. directors declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock payable July 3 to holders of record June 9. Preceding payment was 50 cents on April 3. Payments in 1949 were 25 cents in each quarter plus extras of 25 cents each in the first three quarters and $1.25 at the yearend.

U. S. Incomes At 212-Billion A Year Level

Consumer incomes, the mainspring of retail sales, rose in March to a 212-billion-dollar a year level.

The Commerce Department, reporting this last night, said it was a 2.4-billion-dollar rise from the February annual rate and a 1.8-billion-dollar gain over the level of March last year.

The total for March does not include 887 million dollars paid out by the Government during that month in GI life insurance refunds.

Nearly 90 percent of the over-all income increase came in wages and salaries, which swung up 2.1 billion dollars on an annual rate basis from February to March. Settlement of the coal strike in early march was credited with 1.4 billion dollars of that increase.

Business Outlook, Additional Market News on Page 28

The February to March period also marked a favorable turn in the employment shrinking for the first time this year as new job openings appeared as the result of a new business "boomlet."

Dividend and interest payments to owners of securities also mirrored good business conditions, rising 300 million dollars to a 17.9-billion-dollar a year rate in March.

Farm income, however, fell off 400 million dollars to a 16-billion-dollar a year clip, although the department noted that "farm proprietors' income in the first quarter if 1950 was about the same as in the last quarter of 1949."

The consumer income figures presented by the department cover all forms of income received by individuals, as distinguished from corporations. Corporate profits in compiling national income data.

The GI insurance refund payments, although a decided lift to consumer buying power in the first three months of this year, do not fit in with the department's system of providing income data on an "annual rate" basis.

Under this system, monthly income data is adjusted to iron out purely seasonal effects, then multiplied by 12 (months) to provide an annual rate figure to facilitate comparison of the total with actual annual figures of past years.

The GI refund payments, if multiplied by 12, would show an "annual rate" flow of nearly $10,700,000,000—and lift the over-all consumer income rate for March to $222,700,000,000 far exceeding the peak annual rate of 217 billion dollars attained in December, 1948.

That would be a distortion, however, since the GI refund payments will be limited to a $2,800,000,000 maximum for the entire year of 1950. Actually, the refund payments were about 75 percent complete at the end of March and are now about 90 percent finished.

Web Of Crime

With the Kefauver crime investigating committee in the stage of activation, the magnitude of its task is becoming daily more apparent. The Department of Justice has instructed district attorneys throughout the country to collect information on big gamblers, racketeers and underworld figures in their jurisdictions. Another valuable source of information will be the reports of the grand juries that have been investigating organized crime in a number of large cities. Guided by these leads, the committee should be able to expose the whole network of rackets that are robbing the people.

A sample of the kind of situation that needs to be explored was given recently by the Federal grand jury operating in Kansas City. The story brought to light is not merely one of local corruption. There are, to be sure, many crimes such as gambling, graft and murder that the State of Missouri ought to be dealing with and is not. But the grand jury makes it fully evident that this local lawlessness is fed from interstate sources. Kansas City bookmakers have been getting their horse-race information from the Standard News Service, which was owned by five men, including Charles Gargotta, the mobster who was recently murdered along with his boss, Charles Binaggio. The grand jury found that Standard News Service in turn gets its horse-race news from Continental Press Service over wires and instruments leased from the Western Union Telegraph Co. It shows that the Kansas City racketeers are only a link in a Nation-wide chain using the instrumentalities of interstate commerce for criminal purposes.

Gargotta, the reports says, "was first to violate the code of the underworld by disclosing the names of his partners and associates in wire news enterprises and gambling interests." Here is undoubtedly the cause for his murder. Racketeers who are taking in an estimated $34,500,000 from a gullible public in Kansas City alone may be expected to strike again to protect their "business." The grand jury has come to the conclusion that all other investigators seem to reach—that so long as these organized rackets are allowed to get hold of a community, it must expect corruption of its officials, robbery of its people and murders whenever they seem to be in the interest of the underworld. In our opinion, it is imperative that Congress lay bare this flourishing lawlessness in Kansas City and elsewhere and then devise means of taking the tools of interstate commerce out of the criminals' hands.

Extradition

The Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia handed down a decision recently in direct disagreement with a judgment rendered in 1949 by the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Both cases involved an appeal by a fugitive from justice in the State of Georgia who sought to resist extradition to that State by petition for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he had been subjected to cruel and unusual punishment there. The Third Circuit Court released the fugitive. The local court declined to do so.

Speaking for the court here, Judge Prettyman argued persuasively that "if this fugitive's constitutional rights are being violated in Georgia, he can and should protect them in Georgia. Not only State courts but a complete system of Federal courts are there." He pointed out that a fugitive has no greater constitutional rights than an incarcerated prisoner who obviously could not sue outside the district of his incarceration. And he suggested the danger that a patchwork of decisions might develop in each of the 48 States as to the penal practices in each of the other 47 and the District of Columbia if the courts of each were to pass upon these practices in each of the others.

But this leaves out of account the possibility that a fugitive from Georgia, if returned to that State, might never secure access to the courts there. Measures taken to punish him because of his escape might cause his death before he could get a writ of habeas corpus. Assuming the availability of the State and Federal courts in Georgia, moreover, we do not see that they ought to be considered the fugitive's sole recourse for protection of his constitutional rights. Having managed to reach the District of Columbia, he appealed for protection to a Federal court here. We agree with Judge Bazelon who held in a succinct and able dissenting opinion that he ought to be granted a hearing on the merits of his allegations.

Judge Bazelon favored following the lead of the Third Circuit Court. Had his view prevailed, the case would have been remanded to the District Court for a hearing on the merits. A heavy burden of proof would then have fallen on the fugitive to show that he could not secure justice in Georgia. We think he should have had the chance to present such proof. "I cannot bring myself," Judge Bazelon said, "to concur in a view which forecloses all opportunity of showing the extent to which basic rights have been infringed." His concern for such rights and his feeling that they deserve priority over considerations of comity among the States are heartening signs that he will be a valuable asset to the Court of Appeals for the District.

Wrong Economy

There's a right way and a wrong way to economize, and the House chose the wrong way when it voted for the Taber-Thomas and Jensen amendments to the omnibus appropriations bill. The former amendment provides for a sweeping cut of 10 percent below the President's budget estimates in salary payments to civilian employes of Government agencies and departments and a 2 percent reduction for the Department of Defense. It also cuts outlays for travel, transportation, communication, supplies, printing and various other types of expenditure below the President's budget estimates. The Jensen amendment, with certain exceptions, prohibits the filling of 90 percent of the Federal civilian vacancies occurring during the coming fiscal year as a result of the normal job turnover in Government agencies and departments.

Some of the cuts required by the Taber amendment have already been incorporated in the omnibus appropriations bill, but its sponsor confesses he didn't have time to go through the bill item by item. He "believes," however, that his proposal would take care of the needs of the departments and save at least 600 million dollars. Mr. Jensen puts the savings resulting from his amendment at about 370 million dollars, on the assumption that about 215,000 vacancies will occur next year in the agencies affected, only 10 percent of which can be filled if his proposal is enacted.

Nobody really knows what the combined effect of these two amendments would be, but conservative estimates indicate that they would probably result in the abolition of about 200,000 jobs. Government officials conclude that most of the personnel reductions could be brought about by not filling vacancies. However, required adjustments would be extremely hard to effect, and Government departments would have to begin firing some employes early in the year under the Taber amendment to stay within their reduced salary allotments, or else gamble on the chance that subsequent vacancies would make dismissals unnecessary. The demoralizing effect of such unorthodox and irresponsible methods of budget paring as the House has been stampeded into approving is obvious.

We have applauded certain selective reductions in expenditures from the floor, such as outlays for rivers and flood control. Members of the House are in a position to pass judgment on appropriations of this sort, as well as on minor items in the omnibus appropriations bill. But it is utterly indefensible to vote over-all cuts from the floor which apply indiscriminately to most of the executive establishments in disregard of the effect, and, in fact, without the possibility of determining the effect of such cuts on individual departments and agencies. Some of them might be able to stand a cut without substantial impairment of efficiency; others might be seriously crippled.

The surest way to make economy hateful is to cut costs without considering the consequences. That is what the House has done in the present instance. The members of its Appropriations Committee, organized into subcommittees, held prolonged hearings on budget proposals and made reductions in budgeted expenditures before introducing the omnibus bill. While we think that committee recommendations ought to be closely scrutinized by the legislative body and reductions made in specific items that can be shown to be excessive, we do not believe that any sweeping over-all revision of the spending program is warranted after the plan has been approved by the Appropriations Committee. The great advantage of an omnibus appropriations bill is that it puts pressure on Appropriations Committees to reduce expenditures to a minimum and avoid unbalanced expenditures by bringing all expenditures together. It also enables Congress to gain an over-all picture of the expenditures side of the budget that tends to curb its spending proclivities. But really substantial cuts in outlays can be safely effected only through Appropriations Committees after careful study of the effects of such reductions on the functional activities of the Government.

Dulles For Europe

It is pleasing to note Secretary Acheson's strong and prompt support of the French plan for industrial union in western Europe. He, like everybody else, was taken by surprise by the Schuman announcement. However, the French have supplied him with something specific wherewith to realize the prime purpose of his mission to Europe—which was to persuade his foreign colleagues to expedite the incorporation of Germany in the European family. The French plan is not, of course, the only way to achieve such an objective. But it is a beginning, and a beginning, moreover, at the very foundation of Franco-German, and, indeed, of intra-European relations.

Now that Europe has recovered its breath, undoubtedly the wreckers will get to work, and the air will soon be full of objections. All manner of obstacles will no doubt be pointed out by private industrial interests here and in France and by the British. It is in this respect that the United States can be of immense support to the bold and imaginative Mr. Schuman. Secretary Acheson can be and ought to be a valiant second. Whether he took with him the experts with the equipment and the grasp to engage in the grapple, however, may be doubted. For, as we say, this particular plan came as a surprise to the American delegation.

For this reason we repeat our suggestion that John Foster Dulles be requested to join the delegation. He may not be familiar with the exact nature of the French plan, but it follows the lines he has always advocated. His understanding of the French position, moreover, has obtained for him the respect and friendship of the French, and they would feel their arm mightily strengthened in the uphill task ahead if they had him around.

Haiti And Nicaragua

It is a disheartening commentary on stability in the Caribbean that just after the action of the Organization of American States in protecting Haiti from aggression, a military coup has upset her government. A three-man army junta has seized power from President Dumarsais Estime. In one respect the revolution was similar to that in El Salvador a year or so ago—the army became the protector of constitutional procedures. President Estime had sought to amend the constitution to permit him to seek reelection in 1952.

Behind the revolution is an interesting racial angle in a predominantly Negro country. Haiti for years was ruled by the light-skinned or mulatto elements. Estime was an exception, and his regime was known as a "black" government. Considerable class antipathy was stirred by Estime's efforts to perpetuate this control and his efforts to stir up anti-Congress sentiment. Of late Estime had been in trouble, and the country was put under martial law after an attempt to assassinate him in November. The sad thing, of course, is to see the army setting itself up as an arbiter of government—two members of the junta participated in the earlier coup that put Estime in power.

In Nicaragua, where a change in government also has occurred, army meddling in politics is the rule. It was no real change at all when Gen. Anastasio Somoza assumed the presidency after the death of his uncle, President Victor Roman y Reyes. Somoza, a former President, had continued to run the country as a Pooh-Bah of government titles. There is not the slightest doubt that he will be "chosen" for a full term in the election later this month. The anomaly is that although Somoza is a proven friend and admirer of the United States, he is among the most absolute of dictators at home.

No question of recognition enters with respect to Nicaragua because the change, though farcical, was constitutional. In Haiti, however, the issue of recognition is important, and it would be well for the United States to avoid seeming to give a premature stamp of approval—perhaps by letting other countries take the lead in consultations. The test for recognition, of course, is respect for international obligations and control. Nevertheless, in the inter-American system which professes faith in representative government, this cold procedure leaves something lacking. The development of collective measures to discourage military coups and promote representative government is admittedly difficult, but it is still important. The easy retort that the Latin peoples have little democratic tradition and are not prepared for democracy is no answer at all when even the feeble beginnings of popular rule are systematically stifled.

Bias In Colleges

Delegates from 28 colleges located in Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and the District of Columbia, meeting here recently for a regional conference, took an unequivocal stand against discrimination in higher education on grounds of race, creed or national origin. Every major institution of higher learning in Washington was represented—with the single conspicuous exception of the George Washington University. The attitude expressed by the educators seems to us extremely heartening and significant on two counts.

It reflects, in the first place, a recognition that scholars have a responsibility for leadership in their communities. The academic function is not fulfilled by a mere acceptance of prevailing mores; the plea, too frequently advanced in the past by timorous educators, that they must abide by unjustifiable prejudices out of deference to local opinion, is an outright abdication of responsibility. It is precisely to its institutions of learning that a community is entitled to look for guidance in sloughing off outworn and invalid patterns. The example set by such institutions constitutes a powerful educative force.

The action of the regional conference reflects, in the second place, a recognition that discrimination on account of race, religion or national origin is indefensible so far as the universities themselves are concerned. It runs directly counter to what they teach. The educators called for repeal of State laws requiring segregation at the college level. The indication that the teachers themselves are ready to initiate this process—instead of waiting until they are forced to do so by the Supreme Court—is most encouraging. Their view should carry weight with the State Legislatures and will serve, we hope, to accelerate a trend toward genuine equality in educational opportunity which has already gained great momentum.

Derby Victor

Ordinarily I don't take issue with the gentlemen in the press box. With them, you're a hero if you win and a bum if you lose. This is a situation to which I became inured long ago, even though I am now only three years old.

However, I am now in the discomfiting position of being a bum, though a winner. I was proud and happy to win the Derby the other day. While I thought I'd win it all the time, I was nonetheless jubilant at winning this greatest of American races, just as my father, Bold Venture, and my brother, Assault, had done before me.

But what a reception I got in the Washington press. Your man, Haight, wrote a piece in which he explained at some length why Hill Prince didn't beat me. Arcaro, his jockey, got him in trouble. He zigged when he should have zagged. I got the impression that, given half a chance, Hill Prince could have taken me easily.

Another of your guys, Povich, was even stronger about it. "Trouble," wrote Povich, ". . . cruelly impeded Hill Prince on the home stretch . . . observers were certain that bad racing luck cost Arcaro and Hill Prince the race."

Another Washington paper carried a piece which said some people "thought that Hill Prince might have won if he hadn't got in trouble in the back stretch and again in the run for the wire." This story also was a long apology for Hill Prince and gave the impression that I was lucky to even be in the race.

Another writer on that paper said he thought Hill Prince got pinched off near the far turn. He asked Arcaro about it, and Eddie replied, "I had plenty of racing room. I lapped the winner at the quarter pole and he opened up two lengths on me." Now, jockeys usually are quick to blame the horse. The horse, after all, can't talk back (or so they think). I think the fact that Arcaro didn't alibi is significant.

Take a look at a New York paper. A man in the Herald Tribune says Middleground won "without benefit of luck or position. He won it the best way most derbys are won, by being the best horse." Red Smith, who, of course, is a friend of mine (he picked me to win) said I had "run away from the powerful Hill Prince."

I mean, what do you have to do? I ran the second fastest Derby ever run. Did the Washington press boys have a little something on Hill Prince? It certainly looks like it.

MIDDLEGROUND,
Winner of the Kentucky Derby

McCarthy's Motives

E. A. Hendrickson's letter of May 6 should not pass unanswered.

He has woven together a series of pure assumptions and unproven conclusions. He says that "no investigation ever snares the real culprits." How can he forget that it was a congressional investigation which led to Alger Hiss' conviction and Julian Wadleigh's confession?

He presumes that former Communists name their former comrades solely "to prove their change of heart." But Whitaker Chambers named Hiss in 1939, after the Moscow-Berlin Pact, when Russia became our wartime enemy. Patriotism seems a more obvious motive.

He calls Senator McCarthy a "tool" of the China lobby, a sinister phrase indeed. But here he merely parrots Dr. Lattimore and the record is bare of any proof. Why does he ascribe a political rather than a patriotic motive to the Senator? The presumption certainly should favor patriotism in the case of a Marine gunner who spent the war years over Japan. And when he says: "Let's set our Government in order at home . . . then perhaps we can forestall Stalin," is he not reechoing something with which even Senator McCarthy would agree?

The stubborn fact remains that the U. S. Senate heard McCarthy's charges. They appropriated a large sum of money, appointed a committee and directed it to secure certain files. And, most important, this was by a unanimous vote—not a single Democrat or Republican dissented. They did this in their own words to investigate communism.

"Mad, Sweet Heaven"

Teacher Sick Leave

I want to correct an erroneous impression given in your article of May 2, under the heading: "Teachers Split on 2 Sick Leave Bills."

Virtually all of the teachers favor the Johnston bill. This bill permits an accumulation of 60 days of leave for illness plus the right to 50 additional days, provided the teacher pay the salary of the substitute. Under present law the teacher does not have the right to these additional 50 days with substitute.

The reason that the hearings before the Senate committee created an impression that there is a split in what the teachers want is this: Dr. Corning has said he positively will not favor a law giving the 50 days with substitute. Some of the teachers' organizations, which have learned from past experience that they cannot secure the passage of a bill without the support of the superintendent, have agreed to work for a compromise with him. That is, they have acquiesced to work for less than they want and less than they feel they have a right to have, because they think it is the only alternative. To do otherwise, they think, would result in failure to liberalize the sick leave law at all.

The teachers do not want the compromise in preference to the Johnston bill; they want it in preference to nothing.

Cult Of The Ex-Communists

We have among us very willing and, "suddenly," intensely patriotic informers . . . recent refugees from the inner circles of the Communist Party. I use the word "intensely" advisedly; they were intense, narrow, brooding men who had only one aim in life—to further the Communist revolution throughout the world. Now, these same fanatics have returned to the fold as our only saviors, for they, and only they, understand the workings of the Communists, and only they can explain this group and its motives to the world.

When they labored so fervently within their cells with an unnatural devotion to the cause, with the rigidity of indoctrinated automatons, it would be simple to shrug them off as extremists—almost unbelievably encrusted with fabricated ideas which they swallowed whole. Would it seem plausible that these men and women had personalities with an affinity for name-calling, for the weird kind of logic which permitted them to accept dicta without questioning? While these people were Communists, we would say, Yes, they are not to be trusted; yes, they may have particular personality structures which enhance everyday intrigues and lead them to mouth defamations of everything around them. Their rantings may be symptomatic.

Now these same individuals are screaming again, but against their former group and against their former positions. The same fanaticism and severe devotion to a cause seem to appear again. Before, all but the Communists were wrong. Now, the reformed Communist almost seems to say that all but the publicly announced former Communists are Communists.

Can we see that these men and women are the same? Their methods are identical with good "party" techniques. It is an "all-or-none" business; completely black or white. Their informing tactics follow the Communist lesson book verbatim to the last detail where they have substituted the former nasty word—capitalists — with their new nasty words: "I heard from Mr. Y that this one was a member of the party."

Let the psychologist and the psychiatrist dissect this type of personality. Systematically, we should uncover objective facts about the Communist and about the former Communist. We may find that the bulk of our self-appointed angels—until recently plotting rot and ruin—may be chronic liars, or that they have delusions of grandeur. I am speculating as to the scientific findings, but I feel strongly that such a project must be undertaken as an emergency measure.

Also, trained political scientists and sociologists should study the structure of the Communist cell, the infiltration tactics, and the party operations, ethics, etc. Why accept as gospel all that a former Communist spiels? How trustworthy are these avengers who claim that they suddenly see the light? It seems reasonable to assume that some of this rigorous party training and regimentation has left its mark on Mr. Ex's code of ethics, on his reasoning, and on his conception of the world.

So, it would seem imperative that the American public be informed of the past chicanery, of the present potboilers, and of future skullduggery by the objective and clearly defined discoveries of social scientists who can seek and prove before shouting "thief."

In the investigations of the last several years, the informers, whose reliability we have strongly questioned, have accused persons of subversive activities. The accuser did not prove that this was "beyond the shadow of a doubt" true, but the accused was forced to prove his innocence. I do not claim that each individual accused was innocent of the charges; I do insist that we should develop systems by which we are more positive of our actions—positive because our methods have uncovered irrevocable evidence and not because we have been resorting to Mr. Ex's "wisdom" and ever ready fount of "information."

U. S. Technical Aid Success

By Marquis Childs

Sardinia Experience

BY A squeak margin of one vote the Senate adopted the Point Four program to give technical and other assistance to countries in need of such help. Here is Senator Taft in the closing hours of debate on the foreign aid bill:

"Under it (Point Four) it is proposed that 45 million dollars more of the American taxpayers' money be spread around the world in places where there is no particular demand for it. It is simply an idea summoned out of someone's mind of some other way the Government money can be spent, of some other way the United States can go around the world and assume to interfere with the affairs of other people and try to improve the standards of living of other people.

"Mr. President, this Nation is wholly incapable of improving the standards of living of the peoples of India and China. That is beyond our capacity . . ."

Senator Taft should read for his education the reports for the last 20 years or so of the Rockefeller Foundation. He should read the reports of medical missionaries sent by various American churches to remote parts of the world. He is denying the great accomplishments of Americans in introducing new techniques in health, in agriculture, in industrial production—yes, in raising living standards of peoples everywhere. This is something we can all take pride in. It is part of the American achievement, the American heritage.

THREE DAYS after the Taft speech, the Rockefeller Foundation published its review of work done around the world in 1949. It is a stirring account of what American techniques, American brains, American good will can do.

One of the most thrilling stories is of the project on the Italian Island of Sardinia. For hundreds of years Sardinia has been known as an unhealthy place to live because of the widespread prevalence of malaria. Sardinia, with its 9300 square miles, supported only one third as many persons per square mile as the overcrowded mainland of Italy because people didn't want to go there to live.

In 1946 the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration supplied the funds for an attack on the plague of malaria and the malarial mosquito on Sardinia. The Rockefeller Foundation supplied the trained experts and $375,000 in additional money.

After three years of intensive work malaria has been wiped out and the malarial mosquito all but destroyed. In 1949 for the first time in history not a single case of malaria was reported. The total cost to the end of 1950 will be about 12 million dollars. This is how the Rockefeller report sums up:

"While the project is still in the mopping-up stages and must be followed by strict quarantine and insect control services, numerous benefits are already apparent. The absence of the debilitating effect of malaria has significantly raised the health level of the population. House-spraying operations, which wiped out flies and other domestic insects as well as mosquitoes, have lowered infant mortality rates and the incidence of intestinal infection. The elaborate program of drainage and clearing, which was essential in the island-wide operations, has made available a great many acres of land for human habitation and agricultural development . . .

"The island, formerly an economic liability, is emerging as Italy's new frontier. Sardinia is now a healthy place to live and work."

WHILE this may not be exactly the pattern of Point Four, it is in essence the sort of thing that would be done. American know-how would be exported on a modest scale where it is desperately needed. Yet, even on a modest scale it could be an enormous stimulus to better living in large areas of the earth.

The defeatist, the pessimist, the cynic says, "Oh, what do you want to do that for? You keep more of those substandard people alive and then they reproduce faster and you just have another kind of a problem in starvation and overpopulation."

There might have been some truth in that 20 years ago. But new techniques of agriculture, health, industry and so on today make it possible for almost everyone in the world to live on the right side of the hunger line and in comparatively good health. Such a tough-minded Scotsman as Lord Orr (winner of the last Nobel Peace Prize) has said this repeatedly and out of his great store of knowledge of how peoples everywhere live and eat.

America has the knowledge, the skill. It is one of our sources of real strength. It is our most effective answer to communism.

Congressmen's Titles

For some time I have noticed it to be the custom of reporters to refer to the members of the House of Representatives, exclusively, as Congressmen. Somehow I have gotten the impression that Senators (members of the Senate) are Congressmen likewise. Or am I wrong?

Losing Europe?

By Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber

II. The Political War

THE PROPOSAL made by French Prime Minister Bidault for a permanent "Atlantic Council" brought out great enthusiasm in Europe. It gave courage and hope to the "pro-Atlantic" group of public opinion. Then the complete lack of support for it coming from the American Administration undermined this hope, and the "neutralist" camp in Europe is now rejoicing. Why has the whole affair had such far-reaching repercussions in Europe?

The answer is that up until now there has been a divorce between what the Europeans feel the cold war is and what the official Western strategy thinks should be done about it. While the Atlantic machinery for cooperation is primarily directed toward military defense, any European is convinced that the cold war is above all a political struggle. No arms, not even dollars, will be able by themselves, to fight a political war. Indeed, despite the Marshall Plan and Atlantic Pact, the Europeans today feel completely unprepared for the most imminent threat of the cold war.

This threat is the danger of political disintegration. We have now two worlds facing each other. The cold war victor will be the one who can wait long enough to see the opponent disintegrate internally. Recently Paul Hoffman and Walter Lippmann both predicted that the Soviet world will be the first to disrupt itself. That indeed is our hope. But so far the probability is rather that our Atlantic world will be the first to kneel down, because we have not yet discovered what are the weapons adapted to this new form of warfare.

A COMMON feature of the two worlds—the Soviet and the Atlantic—is that neither of them is a natural economic unit. It is unnatural for Poland or China to be tied to the U. S. S. R. as it is unnatural for Germany or England to be tied to the U. S. A. So the forces of nature are working inside both worlds as forces of disruption.

Thus the cold war is a political one. One has to apply artificial means, in other words political means, to hold together a unit that is contrary to nature. Well, the Soviets have their own methods for that, of which the symbol and the main instrument is the Cominform. In the West, so far, we have no political bond except the common belief in anti-Stalinism, a very weak asset indeed. On this first aspect of the competition, the odds are against us.

The second is the ability to make long-range plans, to dominate the events and not to be constantly taken by surprise by them. There lies the greatest strength of the Soviets in this struggle. While they make their five-year plans, while they integrate the development of industries in Poland and Czechoslovakia, while they coordinate the long-range potentialities of China with the Russian and East German industries, we in the West stumble from one month to the next on urgent and unforeseen problems that suddenly concentrate our attention away from any possible planning.

Last September the Atlantic community was all but paralyzed because an acute sterling crisis unexpectedly required all our energies. Now the same sense of panic falls again on us because nobody had thought ahead of what must now be done immediately about Indo-China. For this one problem alone the entire London Conference may be in jeopardy. The obvious reason is that unlike the Soviets, we have had no instrument for common policy planning, so the initiative is theirs at any moment.

The third aspect of the political war is a moral one, acutely felt in Europe. The Communist countries, even when very unhappy materially and however dominated by Moscow, have a sense of belonging to a great international unit truly scaled to modern history. That is more deeply important for any individual of a small nation than any American can believe. The western European nations badly need that same sense of "belonging." This aspect of the psychological struggle for the minds of men in Europe is usually overlooked.

NOW TAKE Paul Hoffman's prediction that in the course of the next decade the Soviet bloc will disintegrate. It is indeed quite conceivable that the natural forces of disruption will at some time surpass, in the East, the political forces that are being strengthened against them. But with the balance between these two forces enormously more unfavorable in our own bloc as it stands today, we can safely predict that at that time we shall have ceased to exist as a unit. The cold war will have already been lost.

The time to build political unity, or at least a nucleus of one, in the Atlantic, is now. We are going to face in the next few months, two years at most, an impressive concentration of internal disruptive forces: end of the Marshall Plan, overproduction, struggle for markets, distribution of the financial burden of military plans, integration of Germany and Japan, losses in the Far East . . .

It seems clear that the need for political unification leads toward some form of Atlantic Union. It is also clear, however, that this proposition (one parliment, one economy, etc.) is for the present time and the near future very unrealistic. But that still is the right direction in which practical and efficient steps should be taken. The French proposal for an "Atlantic Council" was such a step, a very simple one indeed: to create a permanent instrument for common policy planning, with no executive powers.

Still, however overwhelming the necessities of the cold war, however small the proposed step, it is felt in Europe today that the cool official American reception has all but killed the proposal. Three arguments seem to stand behind that negative attitude.

THE FIRST is: "This means an abandonment of sovereignty." The second: "This is just a new machinery to make the Americans commit themselves to more economic aid." The third: "It is fine for the European to speak of Atlantic integration, but let them prove first what they can do on European federation."

These arguments certainly have some appeal. But a European is inclined to think that they should not stand in the way. The first one probably comes from a misunderstanding of the proposal. There is no actual abandonment of sovereignty at all, except perhaps a moral one, but that is the cement of our community. The second and the third are, of course, more serious and should be answered clearly.

The primary need of Europe is no longer one of financial aid. The economic problem today is more and more similar to that of the United States: the ability to export. The common problem is and will be a problem of exchanges, of distribution of production and distribution of work. This points to a common organization, not unilateral aid.

As for European federation, it has very rightly been the hope of many Europeans and Americans. However it appears now to have been made obsolete by the course of events. The will to federate has always been in history the result of the hope to achieve together economic and military independence. This can under no circumstances be now the case of a European union; so the will does not exist. Another reason is that Britain does not wish to enter such a union—too small for her needs. Then the French people are afraid of being dominated by Germany. Only an Atlantic basis can truly solve both these problems.

IT HAS been said that the Secretary of State departed for Paris and London with a more sympathetic view to the Atlantic Council project. This would have been enough two weeks ago. Unfortunately it is not now quite sufficient, because the Europeans, semiparalyzed by different complexes, are not going to be the champions of the proposal any more. They are not going to fight for it after the internal political reactions to the unresponsive attitude of Washington.

So the American representatives at the London Conference must carry the ball. The essential thing is that the first gesture has been a European one, so that they know now that Europe is ready for the next step toward unification. And not only are the "pro-Atlantic" Europeans ready for it, but they are also convinced that unless it is taken they have small chances of keeping Europe on their side.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Truman As Berenice

LONDON.—It may be a little ridiculous to be reminded of classical drama by a modern Foreign Ministers' meeting, with its dusty routine of high and low level discussion, complex secret position papers and elaborately phony public communiques. Yet if Dean Acheson would only indulge in a soliloquy or two, he would not be hopelessly miscast as the tragic hero of this crucial London gathering.

The right parallel, perhaps, is the Berenice of Racine. In Racine's play, the Emperor Titus is hopelessly in love with Queen Berenice, at the moment when he inherits the Roman Empire. Reasons of state make it necessary for the Roman Emperor to abandon the foreign queen. The conflict in Titus between love and duty in turn provides the drama.

In point of fact, at the moment described by Racine, Titus was considerably over 40, while Queen Berenice was a ripe siren of over 60. Racine's version of Roman history is probably a bit exaggerated. Furthermore, one suspects that the conflict that troubles politicians is seldom between love and duty. For Acheson here in London, for example, the conflict is between duty and convenience.

There is a large group of high officials, of course, who can never experience this extremely painful conflict. To be specific, Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder has in recent months used his contacts with Finance Ministers on this side of the Atlantic to sabotage the Western defense effort. But Snyder does not even faintly understand the vast world problems that make a solid Western defense so urgently necessary. On the other hand, Snyder knows that building a Western defense will cost money, and that finding the funds will be highly inconvenient for him, both personally and politically. There is no conflict, and Snyder sabotages away, urging his Finance Minister friends to "hold down the generals," with a clear conscience.

THE difference between Acheson and his more complacent colleagues of the Truman Administration is that Acheson is an exceedingly intelligent man, who understands world problems very clearly indeed. It is for this reason, of course, that Acheson has become the chosen target of McCarthy, Wherry and the others of their squalid ilk. For men like these, there is safety in stupidity and positive danger in intelligence. Given the fact that Acheson's intelligence is marred by a strong strain of rather silly arrogance, and the further fact that he rashly took a highly exposed position on China, he was bound to be virulently attacked by the hard core of rabid isolationists.

The McCarthy attack has in turn complicated his position at London in a most unfortunate manner. Judging from the indications given thus far, Acheson has been too preoccupied with the McCarthy matter to prepare himself personally for this meeting in his customary careful manner. Worse still, he does not seem to have talked things out with President Truman—which probably explains the President's appalling press conference statement on holding down defense expenditures just after Acheson left for Paris.

Hence, at best, Acheson can only give private assurances to the other leaders here in London that he will do his best to get presidential approval for a bolder American policy when he returns to Washington.

SUCH ARE the circumstances of the drama in which Acheson has the leading role. It is wholly internal. On the one hand, he is visibly aware that greatly increased American efforts and sacrifices are now needed to give reasonable security to this troubled world. On the other hand, he is also well aware that it will be a downright gruelling enterprise to secure consent for these efforts and sacrifices from the President, the Congress and the country. Here is the conflict between duty and convenience.

Acheson's inner struggle must be intensified by another set of facts. He deeply respects the President. Obviously he took office with the determination to give a fair trial to the President's thesis about foreign affairs. This thesis is that "everything is going to be all right," as the President so often says. It will be almost as hard for Acheson to tell Truman bluntly that everything threatens to be all wrong, as it was for the unhappy Titus to dismiss the triumphant Berenice.

Unfortunately, Messrs. Bevin and Schuman are quite unable to muster the resources for the needed effort to save the Western world. The Truman Administration will plainly do nothing, unless Acheson has the courage to tackle the President. If business as usual continues to reign in Washington, the defense of the West will not be organized. And if the West is not solidly defended, the whole front of opposition to Soviet aggression will disintegrate.

In short such immense stakes have seldom been involved in the inner conflict of a single individual. Being conspicuously human, Acheson may prefer the easy way that leads to disaster. It seems a better bet, however, that he will choose the hard way that leads to the survival of the free world. In these circumstances, Acheson's choice is drama of the first order, both as a moral struggle, and because all our futures are bound up in it.

CENTRAL SENIOR WINS—Velyn M. Brooke, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Brooke of 219 Varnum st. nw., Central High School senior, receives the P-TA scholarship award to Wilson Teachers College from Mrs. M. E. West (right), vice president of the D. C. Parent-Teacher Association. The presentation was made at a meeting of the organization last night at the Mayflower Hotel

The "three R's" of democratic citizenship were outlined last night by United States Commissioner of Education Earl James McGrath as "responsibilities, rights and respect."

The Government's No. 1 education official told a dinner meeting of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers at the Mayflower Hotel that home and school must combine to teach children principles of democracy. Parents and teachers must set the example, he said.

Parents interested in effective citizenship should first find out whether democracy is practiced in the home, McGrath said. He posed these questions for parents to ask themselves:

"Does the whole family share in the making of important decisions? Do we demonstrate respect for the individual dignity and integrity of our children? Do we cut them in on the planning and give their ideas the proper weight? Are they junior partners or submissive subjects."

In the school, he said, the student should not look up from his textbook on American Government "into the eyes of someone who symbolizes to him the exact opposite of democracy."

Teachers, he said, should encourage all students and give them a chance to participate in the school program, both in the classroom and in extracurricula activities.

Earlier in the day the city-wide parent-teacher organization called for extended mental hygiene service for school children and their parents.

In a series of resolutions adopted at the closing business session of the two-day annual convention, the congress urged public funds for psychiatric care in the public schools.

The parents also asked that additional funds be appropriated for more doctors, dentists, nurses and technicians for the schools.

On the controversial question of sex education, the convention urged "broadened and more effective use of social hygiene facts and philosophy."

A resolution urging parents and teachers to strengthen concepts of world citizenship was tabled after lengthy debate. Mrs. Crawford Shanks, delegate from Taft Junior High School, led opposition to the resolution declaring that children could not be both citizens of the United States and of the world.

Other resolutions approved called for increased Federal appropriations to the District, the end of part-time classes in the schools, and better educational opportunity for children at the Receiving Home, the Industrial Homes School and the National Training School.

Butterworth Will Be Envoy To Sweden

By The Associated Press

Assistant Secretary of State W. Walton Butterworth, 46, has been selected as President's Truman's next Ambassador to Sweden. His nomination probably will be sent to the Senate next week.

For another key diplomatic post—of primary importance in the cold war in Asia—the Administration has chosen Donald R. Heath, 55, former American Minister to Bulgaria, to be envoy to Indo-China.

Heath, whose enforced recalled from Bulgaria caused a break in relations with that Communist satellite state, is expected to be United States representative to all of the Indo-Chinese governments—Viet Nam, Laus and Cambodia—with his main headquarters at Saigon.

At Stockholm, Butterworth is slated to replace Ambassador H. Freeman Matthews, whose appointment as Deputy Undersecretary of State in charge of political affairs in the State Department is due to be announced soon.

The vacancy was created when Dean Rusk, one of Secretary of State Acheson's chief advisers, was shifted from that post to become Assistant Secretary in charge of Far Eastern affairs, a hot spot assignment in which he replaced Butterworth.

Butterworth as director of Far Eastern policy had been a controversial figure. His appointment early last year as Assistant Secretary was criticized in the Senate, on the contention he had been too closely identified with American policies which failed to keep China out of Communist hands. He is highly regarded by Acheson as a capable officer.

Heath, 55, is a former newspaper correspondent. He entered the foreign service in 1920 and had considerable experience as a diplomat in Europe and Latin America. He became Minister to Bulgaria in September, 1947.

Baruch Warns Of Expanding Government

New York, May 11 (AP).—Bernard M. Baruch said today that "unless this ever-expanding Government activity is brought under the restraint of the highest moral laws, it will wreck our society."

Baruch, unofficial advisor to Presidents, said in a speech prepared for delivery at the charter day convocation of the City College School of Business and Civic Administration:

"Is there to be no line beyond which Government shall not go, as it is in Soviet Russia and becoming so in socialistic England?

"Is Government action to be prompted by expediency of whichever creeds or pressure groups appear strongest at the moment? Or is it to be subject to higher ethical restraints, and if so, what are they to be?"

Baruch said that our economic history of recent years has been characterized by an inflation caused by "government-managed economies" and "government favoritism to certain groups in disregard of the national interest."

Under the name of "security," Baruch said, government inflationary policies and deficit spending have cheapened the savings of millions, making them more dependent upon Government and consequently more insecure.

Rep. Robeson Is Sworn In

Pied Piper Is Sought by Arlington County

Who is going to be the Pied Piper of Arlington County?

That's what Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg would like to know. And he wishes whoever 'tis would hurry up and show up. The county's rat problem is something that will not wait.

"It's got to be someone," Lundberg said yesterday, "who wants to kill rats. You might say he has to be rat-conscious."

"We don't want a white-collar man," he said, "or a common laborer, but something in between."

July Deadline

Lundberg said he hoped "right away" to be able to hire somebody for the job, for which he has a $1000 appropriation for all expenses in connection with rat riddance, from the Arlington County Board.

Whoever is the Pied Piper will get supplies and transportation to and from the county dump, plus a salary, and will have the job of getting rid of the dump rats before the incinerator goes into operation in July.

County officials are afraid that any live rats left on the dump then are going to be hungry. Since the dump will no longer be used, they will migrate elsewhere, and that probably will be into Arlington County homes.

Lundberg said the Pied Piper will put out bait—rats like meat, fish and vegetables, and will "dust" the dump. The bait will be covered with a recognized rat killer which kills rodents but does not injure either human beings or higher forms of animal life.

Just a Beginning

The Pied Piper will "dust" for rats as one would "dust" for beetles, by plugging up all possible outlets and then pumping insecticide into the rats' dump channels.

Once the dump rats are gone, Arlington County will need some more Pied Pipers—scads of them. For a county-wide rat-control program, officials hope to use citizen committees; hope to get an effective ordinance requiring ratproofing; hope to educate every single Arlingtonian to the need for rodent extermination.

But that will be after the first Pied Piper goes at it. Lundberg hopes the job won't take more than a month.

Ex-Alexandria Scout to Get Hero Award

A former Alexandria Boy Scout will receive a national heroism award Tuesday, May 23, at the weekly luncheon of the Alexandria Rotary Club at 12:30 p. m. in the George Mason Hotel.

The certificate of heroism will be conferred by the National Boy Scout Court of Honor on Hugh Verry, 14, a former member of Troop 122, sponsored by St. Mary's Catholic Church in Alexandria. The son of Coast Guard Lieut. Earl A. Verry and Mrs. Verry, Hugh now lives in Elizabeth City, N. C., where he is a member of Troop 156.

He was selected for the award in recognition of his saving the life of a 4-year-old boy at Wareham, Mass., where he was vacationing last summer. According to the citation, Verry swam about 175 feet from shore to a point where the little boy had fallen from a boat and returned the lad safely to shore.

Painting Bought for Small Sum Believed Work of Famed Artist

The Washington Post

RESTORATION—Sigsbee Gilham, Alexandria, Va., artist, at work restoring what he believes to be an original Joseph L. Wright painted about 1760. He was commissioned by Thomas De Lashmutt, who purchased the painting

A Loudoun County (Va.) woman who persuaded her husband to buy a musty painting from an antique shop here nearly 10 years ago because she "liked its looks" has had her judgment vindicated.

The portrait, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas DeLashmutt of historic Oak Hill, has been identified tentatively as an original by Joseph L. Wright, eighteenth century English painter known among artists of that period as "Wright of Derby."

If the identification is confirmed, the painting may be worth as much as $15,000, according to L. Sigsbee Gilham, Alexandria artist, who says he is positive it is an authentic Wright work.

Uncovers Signature

Gilham, engaged by the DeLashmutts to restore the painting last December, came upon the Wright signature after weeks of tedious work devoted to removing the soot and grime which had obliterated many of the highlights of the portrait. Other characteristics of the portrait, brought out by restoration, confirmed his belief it was a Joseph Wright original, Gilham said recently.

One "discrepancy" in the canvass, however, perturbed Gilham. Although the technique of the painting was of the Wright school, which flourished around 1750, the costume of the "sitter" and the style of his hair were those of a period about 100 years earlier, he said.

For this reason, he believes the painting may have been a copy of an earlier portrait, done by Wright at the request of some descendant of the "gentleman" originally pictured. In an effort to identify the subject, and learn more about the painting he has sent an enlarged photograph of the restored portrait to the keeper of England's National Gallery of Fine Arts in London with a request for research.

A specialist in art restoration for more than 10 years, Gilham has "discovered" a number of valuable originals which came to him unidentified. "Never missed yet," he insists.

Gilham said the DeLashmutts first showed him the painting about a year ago, when he expressed belief it was an original by a known artist. It was not until last December, when he received the painting and began actual work, that he was able to confirm his earlier appraisal, he said.

Panel Built for Painting

According to DeLashmutt, who remembers only vague details about the purchase, he bought the painting for his wife because she "liked its looks" and "admired its character." He doesn't recall the price, but says he is certain it couldn't have been more than a couple of hundred dollars."

DeLashmutt said his wife liked the painting so well she decided to make it the central art piece in the restored library at Oak Hill even before she knew its value. Workmen redecorating the room were ordered to build a special panel over the fireplace, its dimensions conforming to the shape and size of the painting.

Emphasizing that the painting "is not for sale" regardless of value, DeLashmutt said it will be placed permanently in the library at Oak Hill, now undergoing extensive renovation. The mansion probably will be ready for occupancy within a few weeks.

The painting is that of an English nobleman with delicate features and brown shoulder-length tresses.

Two Reprimanded In Fatal Sea Blast

Norfolk, Va., May 11 (AP).—Two naval officers will receive letters of reprimand as the result of an explosion which killed an officer and a news photographer during amphibious landings at Boston last September.

The explosion caused the deaths of Morris Fineberg, Boston Post photographer, and Lieut. Hugh F. McStay.

Firms Counseled On Press Relations

For good press relations, "top management must be available to reporters, either directly or through the company's press relations officer," says William M. Pinkerton in his article, "Businessmen and the Press," in the May number of the Harvard Business Review.

The veteran newspaperman, now director of the Harvard University News Office, urges every business organization, regardless of size, to give some responsible officer authority for handling newspaper inquiries and to encourage others in the company to cooperate with him.

"As it happens," Pinkerton observes, "press relations are likely to be best in the very smallest and the very largest business units. In the one-man shop the boss is always on hand to meet the public and the press; he is not afraid to talk freely. Big corporations like the Ford Motor Co. and du Pont have their own news desks, with ready access to responsible authority within the organization. It is in the great number of medium-size businesses that the trouble comes. The president or owner may be too busy to meet all press inquiries personally, and too often no other officer has been authorized to do so."

Emphasizing the importance of understanding the reporter's point of view and how he works, the former Nieman Fellow at Harvard (1940-1941) goes on to list a number of specific guides for the businessman who wants to build and maintain an effective liaison with the press:

1. "Try to anticipate the newspapers' interest.—When a change in company policy has public interest, a thoughtful statement in layman's terms should be prepared in advance. A careful, honest effort to explain policy will make more sense than an improvised, hit-or-miss comment after the news has 'leaked out.' This is equally true, of course, of a new patent, a scientific discovery, a technical invention, or the retirement of the president.

2. "When you originate the news, tell, everyone at once.—Nothing will create more ill will than giving a statement of general news interest to only one of several competitors. This is as true in a one-paper city like Omaha as in a city like Boston or New York that has a half-dozen papers or more. Where do your employes live? Is there a suburban weekly that ought to have the news? Remember the radio stations . . .

3. "When one newspaper questions you about a story, exclusively, do not pass it on to the other.—The city editor's hunch and the individual reporter's lead are their own property. They expect that news sources will answer queries without telling 'the opposition' about them. If 'the opposition' calls up later on the same matter, of course it is as much entitled to an answer as the first inquirer . . .

4. "Never promise an 'exclusive' you cannot deliver.—Generally, it is dangerous to promise to give any reporter some future news on an exclusive basis. You may have other calls before your exclusive news is delivered. And what will you say to the second reporter who calls, or to the third? . . .

5. "Never mislead.—We could say, 'Tell the truth,' but that is not realistic. There are times in the life of every man when he cannot tell all he knows. There are times when a man cannot talk at all about certain subjects. Reporters know that and make allowances for it. But they will resent a deliberate falsehood. 'No comment' is a well-worn cliche, rubbed almost free of meaning by overuse in Washington. But there are times when 'No comment' is the most astute remark in the world. Guard it preciously; do not overuse it; but if you feel the temptation to lie, say 'No comment' until you get your imagination in check . . .

6. "Be helpful about bad news.—Being uncooperative will not keep news out of the papers. There may not be much to gain immediately in helping reporters with legitimate facts about a mishap, a tragedy, or a scandal. But in the long run their confidence in you depends on your taking them seriously at all times. Even in the short run a reporter is bound to feel more sympathetic toward a good news source than toward a clam.

7. "Stay on the record.—'Off the record' is a dangerous device, capable of maiming its user. Do not use it unless you know how. If you never use it, you will never miss it.

8. "Talk for quotation.—Use 'background' rarely. Avoid 'don't quote me but . . . ' When you are talking to a reporter, assume that every word you say will be quoted in the newspaper. It will not be. But you will keep your own relation to the reporter clear if you assume that it will be."

Pinkerton, who formerly served on the Omaha World Herald, Kansas City Star, Associated Press in Washington, and United States News, discusses at some length the position of advertisers in regard to the press. He expresses the opinion that, while editors and newspapers vary, "it seems safe to say that, usually, the amount of publicity derived directly from advertising varies inversely with the prestige of the newspaper. The more standing the newspaper has, the less publicity it is likely to take directly from advertising accounts."

"Allied with 'free advertising,'" the writer observes, "are the notions of suppressing unfavorable news and influencing opinion. As a rule of thumb, it can be said that the advertiser who asks a favor has a much better chance than the advertiser who tries to assert a 'right' in the news and editorial content of a newspaper."

Citing cases to illustrate the general rule that advertisers who resort to threats risk more than they can gain, Pinkerton states that "the majority of American businessmen recognize and respect the difference between the advertising and editorial functions of newspapers, and probably most of them also recognize that, to affect the news that people read (as distinct from the ads), the businessman's 'presentation' must be made to editors and their reporters, not to advertising managers and their space sellers."

Alexandria Rescue Squad to Observe 20th Anniversary

Alexandria's Rescue Squad No. 1, oldest in the Washington area, will begin a two-day celebration of its twentieth anniversary today at 10 a. m.

The observance will open on a solemn note with memorial services at the grave of the squad's founder, the late Thomas W. McHugh at Ivy Hill Cemetery. Thereafter, however, the pace will be accelerated with a series of receptions, a colorful parade and a grand ball listed among anniversary highlights.

At the cemetery service today, a memorial wreath will be placed on McHugh's grave by James M. Duncan, jr., former Alexandria fire chief and now a member of the city council. Among participants in the exercises will be D. H. Slayback of Chatham, N. J., president of the International Association of First Aid and Rescue Squads; District Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew and officials of local and nearby fire departments and rescue units.

Starting at 1 p. m. today, open house will be held at the George Mason Hotel for the vanguard of representatives from the more than 100 rescue squads whose equipment will be on display in a motorized parade at 1 p. m. Saturday. Officials of the host squad said yesterday they have received parade entries from all along the East Coast, presaging the largest mass displays of rescue equipment ever seen in this area.

The parade will form on the 200 block of S. Royal st., march north on Royal to King, west on King to West st. and north to the George Washington High School. At the school, a series of first aid contests will be held, and visiting units will be judged for appearance and efficiency of equipment.

Cash prizes and trophies with a total value of more than $1000 will be awarded in the various contests, for which no entry fees have been asked. The awards will be presented at the intermission of a grand ball, which will be held in the Terrace Room at National Airport starting at 9 p. m.

All day Saturday, except during parade hours, visiting members will be entertained in the Alexandria Armory and the adjacent memorial garden of the Alexandria Elks Lodge, where open house will be maintained.

The celebration has been made possible through contributions of the squad's 127 men, and no outside aid has been solicited, President Harry A. Dugan emphasized.

The unit, which now has two modern ambulances and a crash wagon, was organized May 10, 1930, with a total membership of 11 men, Dugan said.

The Gallup Poll

Half of Young Folk Would Quit England

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 11.—One half of Britain's young adults under the age of 30 would like to get out of England and settle in another country if they could.

The most popular choices of country are Australia, New Zealand, Canada, South Africa and the United States.

This is revealed in interviews conducted throughout England by the British Institute of Public Opinion, the survey organization which forecast the recent British election with such high accuracy (within 1 percent).

The widespread desire of young Britishers to find opportunity in other lands is especially interesting in view of the fact that the keynote of Britain's's Labor regime has been to provide security and welfare for the people. While the young men and women definitely favor the Labor Party in preference to the Conservative Party of Winston Churchill, a great many seem to feel that life in England under present conditions is not as alluring as migrating to some other country.

The majority of older people, those over 30, say they are content to remain in England.

Interviewers for the British Institute, 1 of 10 overseas affiliates of the Gallup Poll, put this question to a representative cross-section of British adults:

"If you were free to do so, would you like to go and settle in another country?"

Here is the vote by age groups:

| Age Groups | Yes | No | Don't know |
|---|---|---|---|
| 21-29 | 48% | 47% | 5% |
| 30-49 | 41 | 54 | 5 |
| 50-64 | 26 | 70 | 4 |
| 65 & over | 15 | 82 | 3 |
| All voters | 35 | 60 | 5 |

By contrast, only 1 person in every 17 (6 percent) in the United States wants to move to another country, according to a survey by the American Institute of Public opinon. In the age group under 30, only 1 in every 13 Americans say they would like to settle

A similar survey recently completed in Finland by the Finnish Gallup Poll found that 29 percent of all persons questioned wanted to move to another country, with the United States picked as the top choice by a wide margin, and Sweden and Canada next.

The British survey found that it is the single men who particularly want to migrate. Forty-six percent of all single men under 30 who were questioned said they wanted to move away.

Among single women the proportion wanting to migrate was considerably smaller—a little over one third.

Here is the vote by marital status by sex:

| MEN | Yes | No | Don't know |
|---|---|---|---|
| Single | 46% | 48% | 6% |
| Married | 41 | 56 | 3 |
| Widowed | 22 | 76 | 2 |
| WOMEN | | | |
| Single | 36% | 58% | 6% |
| Married | 31 | 63 | 6 |
| Widowed | 18 | 74 | 8 |

Each person in the survey who wanted to migrate was asked what country he would prefer to go to. The vote, totaling 35 percent, was: Australia, 9 percent; New Zealand, 8 percent; Canada, 5 percent; South Africa, 5 percent; United States, 5 percent; other countries, 3 percent.

British attitudes would seem to appear more optimistic about Britain's future today than two years ago.

In March, 1948, a total of 42 percent questioned in a survey said they would like to go and settle in another country, as compared to 35 percent today.

Walkout by Firemen Reaffirms Rail Labor's Right to Strike

By J. A. Livingston

MAYBE we ought to be grateful to David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineman, for going through with the strike against the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Southern and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroads. He has proved decisively that America is not Russia, that workers are still free to quit jobs, even essential jobs, if they want to. No bureaucratic overlord, like Stalin, says them yea or nay.

Livingston

That, of course, is aside from the merits of Robertson's case, aside from whether there ought to be a second fireman on multiple-unit Diesel locomotives for safety. Two Presidential Fact-Finding Boards decided, after lengthy hearings, that Diesel engines go out of wack infrequently and that the extra firemen would be extra cargo most of the time.

The boards reasoned that on local-service passenger runs, the firemen would be able, when the train had come to a stop, to look after the extra Diesel engines if need be. Simiarly, on freight trains during stops at sidings. Or, in an unusual case, the head-end brakemen could call signals to the locomotive engineers on freight trains. Robertson argued that brakemen would then be invading the firemen's craft. But the Fact-Finding Boards couldn't see it that way.

IN THE CASE of main-line, high-speed passenger runs, the Fact-Finding Boards suggested that the train must come to a full stop before the firemen could inspect the extra engine. Thus, the boards set forth operating standards to assure two men in the locomotive cab at all times while the train was in motion.

The truly significant point, however, is that Robertson felt free to call a strike in the face of adverse reports of two fact-finding boards and almost unanimously adverse editorial opinion in newspapers and magazines. In so doing he shattered a public illusion which needed shattering: That the Railway Labor Act inevitably leads to settlements of disputes, that, in the final analysis, the word of a Railroad Fact-Finding Board is law. That simply isn't so and wasn't so intended. The United States has not yet reached the stage of compulsory arbitration in labor disputes.

Because, over the year, the Railway Labor Act has worked well, people have assumed that railroad employes had given up their right to strike. If the procedures of the Railway Labor Act didn't work, then somehow providence interposed. Twice during the war President Roosevelt averted a strike by direct negotiation.

This time, wisely, President Truman did not intervene. He decided to let the strike perform its economic function as the arbiter of men's wills. At the same time, Robertson capitulated to public welfare. He did not, as in 1948, call a strike against all the railroads, which would tie up commerce and endanger the health of the country. He adopted a divide-and-conquer tactic. He'd test out the union's strength against the strength of four railroads, and hope, thereby, to set a pattern for all railroads. Would the Pennsy, New York Central, Southern, and Santa Fe be willing to see traffic diverted to competitors while they bear the full economic loss of a strike?

ROBERTSON'S tactic was strictly pragmatic. In May, 1946, when Alvanley Johnston, head of the Locomotive Engineers, and the late Alexander F. Whitney, head of the Railroad Trainmen, teamed up for a Nation-wide strike, President Truman called out the troops, broke the strike. In 1948, when Robertson, Whitney and A. J. Glover of the Switchmen's Union got set for a Nation-wide strike, Truman seized the roads and got an injunction. The precedent was established: A country-wide railroad strike would not be permitted.

Thus, though Robertson had the right to strike, the strike had to be limited in scope. To be sure, the Diesel-locomotive case applied to all railroads. The negotiations were carried on with all railroads. The Fact-Finding Board handled the case on a national basis. But Robertson couldn't strike nationally. So, he selected—he discriminated against—four key systems. In so doing, he protected, he validated, railroad labor's right to strike.

Cities Service Mails Warrants

New York, May 11 (AP).—Cities Service Co. yesterday started mailing warrants to its 236,000 common stockholders for the purchase of the 3,702,000 common shares of the Toledo Edison Co. The stock is priced at $9 a share.

The offering will result in one of the largest distributions of an operating utility common stock in recent years.

The registration statement relating to the offering became effective today. At a meeting here more than 300 securities dealers were informed of details of the offering.

Upon the consummation of the offering by Cities Service, about 400,000 common shares of Toledo Edison will be offered for sale at competitive bidding during the first week in June.

Chances Seen as Slim For Lower Scotch Prices

New York, May 11 (AP).—Chances are slim for lower Scotch whisky prices this year, even though Scotland's postwar stocks are beginning to reach bottling ages, a prominent importer said today.

"The selling pressure that has forced prices of some other whiskies lower recently just doesn't exist in the case of Scotch," said John S. Schulte, vice president of Park & Tilford Importers, Inc. He just returned from a six-week survey trip to Edinburgh, London, Bristol, Paris, Cognac and Reims.

Food Index Advances

New York, May 11 (AP).—Wholesale food prices as measured in the Dun & Bradstreet index this week reached the highest level since last August. The index advanced to $5.89 from $5.84 a week ago and was 3.7 percent above the year-ago level of $5.68.

D. C. Securities Guide Issued For 24th Year

More valuable than ever as a reference book, the twenty-fourth edition of "Facts and Figures on Washington Securities" has just been issued by the local office of Alex Brown & Sons.

The team of Y. E. Booker and Myles H. Quail is behind the latest 85-page booklet. They originated the idea back in 1926 when, newly-organized into an investment house, they found a deplorable lack of information available on Washington corporations and financial institutions. Also, they were striving to get their name before the investing public and banks.

Booker recalled yesterday that the first edition contained six pages, composed of data painfully extracted from suspicious officials. It took a few years for the idea to catch hold, Booker said, but now company officials eagerly help keep the booklet up to date.

When Y. E. Booker & Co. was merged with Alex Brown & Sons, the latter decided to foot the expense of continuing the reference booklet as a service to investors. The guide is distributed without cost, upon request to Alex Brown & Sons office in the American Security Building.

In compact form, the reference book contains latest earnings figures of individual firms, background, organizational details, dividend records, financial setup, principal officers and directors, trustees and registrars and other salient details.

Also, general information is supplied, such as rules and commission rates on the Washington Stock Exchange and the what and when of the D. C. income tax and real estate tax.

Cat Experiments May Help Child

Continuing success of Chicago scientists in restoring movement to paralyzed cats is of more than passing interest to a Parker, Va., family.

JULIA MAY

One of that family, Julia May Acors, now 6, tumbled from a dining room chair more than a year ago—and has been paralyzed from the hips down ever since.

Today, the problem of educating her is a complex one, and the family problem of supporting her a difficult one.

The problem of restoring her to normal physical activity is a medical one, with electric stimulation of the paralyzed area still in the cat experimentation stage.

Julia, her doctor explained, suffered "contusion of the cords equina" from what would ordinarily be just another everyday tumble of childhood.

Suffers Nerve Injury

Translated: She suffered a bruising injury without break in the skin to the "horse's tail" network of nerves where they branch out from the spinal cord at the lower end of the spine. Some such injuries clear up slowly, with or without treatment.

Julia's hasn't.

One of five young children of a truck driver, Julia straightened up after her fall, and walked into the next room to tell her mother, "my leg hurts."

An older sister rocked her soothingly until Julia asked to go to bed. She was carried to her bed; stood up until the bed was turned, and then was put to bed. An hour later, she cried out:

"Come and get me! I can't walk!"

And she hasn't, since that hour.

Her mother, Mrs. Louis Acors, hurried her to the Mary Washington Hospital, in Fredericksburg, Va. And in less than 12 hours after the fall, Julia was in the larger St. Phillips Hospital of the Medical College of Richmond, Va.

Condition Uncertain

Three weeks later, after frantic borrowing to meet her $500 hospital bill, her parents took her home, her medical history reading: "Prognosis—Uncertain." Medical science had nothing further to offer, according to Julia's doctor, Florence W. Owens, doctor of osteopathy.

Dr. Owens, retired, volunteered to do what she could for the child. It hasn't been much, she says, modestly. Just a little help so that Julia has gained a little strength in some of her hip muscles and improvement in her general physical condition.

Body nutrition to the paralyzed legs is apparently good, Dr. Owens said. Julia burned her little legs, severely, one night while seated too near the family stove. She didn't feel the heat which first warns the healthy child.

These burns, bone-deep in places, are healing, perhaps slower than normal, but healing nonetheless, her doctor reports.

Family Has Hopes

Her family still has hopes that medicine can come to her rescue. They've read of the experiments at the Illinois Institute of Technology, where Dr. Phil Shurrager and his associates are carrying on their research with paralyzed cats.

Already, some of the animals made paraplegic by cutting their spinal cords are learning to jump and run and perform other functions normally left to the brain's control.

Maybe someday, Julia—?

Bookie Ordered To Pay $11,349 To Client's Wife

New York, May 11 (U.P.).—A horse-player's wife won an $11,349.75 judgment against his bookie yesterday.

Court attaches said the award was almost unprecedented and might turn out to be a bigger blow to the bookie business than a dozen grand jury investigations.

Mrs. Harold S. Kartinger, White Plains, N. Y., brought the suit against Jules H. Bender, New York, in Manhattan Supreme Court. She said her husband last $22,780 to Bender, who denied he was a bookmaker. She had canceled checks indorsed by Bender for $11,349.75 and the jury awarded her that amount.

Measles Epidemic In Wicomico County

Salisbury, Md., May 11 (AP).—A measles epidemic is spreading over Wicomico County, but health authorities are not alarmed. They say calmly it probably will get worse before it gets better.

Dr. Seth H. Hurdle, Wicomico County health officer, said as long as the illness is confined to healthy youngsters between the ages of 6 and 12 there's nothing to be alarmed about. Now's a good time for them to get measles, he added.

The health department will get anxious, Dr. Hurdle said, if the malady starts spreading to tots under 3. As for adults, he said, they needn't worry. He said 99.9 percent of them already had this kind of measles.

100,000 Will See Two Acres Of Things That Make a Home

By Robert P. Jordan

AT 7 o'clock this evening—and with nothing more than a snip of the scissors—Mrs. Clarke Daniel will set in motion a 10-day extravaganza that will lure at least 100,000 Washingtonians to take a look at it.

And it won't be a quick look, either. For the extravaganza fills the National Guard Armory's two acres to the bursting point, and who wants to hurry, anyway, when what you're looking at has to do with home?

That's what the big show is all about—home. When Mrs. Daniel clips that ribbon, the fourth annual Home Show will be under way. The exposition is sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, of which Mrs. Daniel's husband is president.

On, In and Under

WHAT you'll see is an 80,000 square-foot presentation dedicated to the proposition that one of the most important things in life is the place you live. Or should be. And can be.

The bunting-bedecked drill hall, you'll find, is crammed with fascinating items that serve one purpose:

They're the things that can be put on, in, under and around a house to make it far more than a place to hang your hat.

More than 200 exhibitors have leased booths in the armory this year. As in past shows, their wares range from linoleum and other floor coverings to vacuum cleaners to washing machines to kitchen cabinets to aluminumware to . . . you name it. Probably it's there.

TV in Color

COLOR television is on tap, too—a video not yet witnessed by many persons. Daily TV broadcasts in color are expected to be one of the main drawing cards at the show.

When you're not listening to the spiel of barkers— for the exposition has a carnival air, from midways on down—you might take a flyer at the "giveaways."

Four gleaming new automobiles will be given away; $2000 worth of furniture will end up in its proper setting—someone's house—for free; and so will $1800 in kitchen equipment. Home appliances and savings bonds also will be prizes.

Then there's Ann Hinson, well known fashion expert. Every day she will direct a style show, half an hour long, featuring the fashion offerings of Greater Washington stores.

Lest the masculine member of the household be forgotten, a double feature style show has been set up for Sunday. Dress styles for men and young men will be modeled.

Take the Cake

EVERY afternoon—Sundays excepted—from 2 to 4, a cake baking contest will be conducted in which representatives of women's organizations will compete for cash awards.

Daily winners will wind up in a final contest at 2 p. m. May 20, with the best cake-baker carrying off the top award and well qualified to hum that tune: "If I Knew You Were Coming, I'd a . . ."

And here, too, the man of the house has not been overlooked. He has a prime opportunity to learn to carve. Washington chefs will put on carving demonstrations from 7 to 9 p. m.

Back of the show, according to Executive Director James W. Pearson, is the desire to offer for public inspection new developments in home building and in the equipment that goes into a home.

Florida Speaker

THE home show will be open each day from 2 p. m. to 11 p. m. You can come when you please and stay as long as you like. You pay 60 cents to get in, including tax.

Thomas P. Coogan of Miami, president of the National Association of Home Builders, will speak at the opening ceremonies this evening.

At 7:30 p. m., Gloria Swanson, of movie fame, will dedicate a savings bond booth and award the show's first giveaway automobile.

Bath and Kitchen Display Are Operated Hydraulically

CERTAIN to draw a large share of "oh's" and "ah's" during the 10-day Home Show will be the fully mechanized bath and kitchen operated hydraulically by an elaborate system built at a cost of $25,000.

The layout includes an electric range, refrigerator, freezer, custom cabinet sink, wall and base cabinets and a water heater.

There are 80 working parts of animation in the display and six recordings on separate turn tables running simultaneously, but play only when supposed to in a loudspeaker description cycle of 16 minutes that explains the features of each product.

The elaborate hydraulic system, according to its creator, Roderick MacRae, Detroit engineer, is as complicated as that of a B-29. There are 38 hydraulic valves controlling 45 cylinders, powered by seven ¼ hp. motors. The animated parts of the display are automatically controlled by 54 electric switches. The hydraulic power is fed through 600 feet of tubing from five separate control systems.

Dimensions of the display are 27 feet long, 95 inches high, and 77½ inches deep.

B. F. GOODRICH is making a koroseal sheeting for use by greenhouses in sterilizing plant beds. The beds are covered with the sheeting while steam is shot underneath to sterilize the soil. Cold areas remain dull while hot areas turn shiny. The sheeting can be used a number of times.

A four-way can opener in the low-price field, made by Ekco Products Co. of Chicago, cuts off can tops, punches holes in beer cans, lifts bottle tops, pries open vacuum lids, and may be used as a lifter for hot cans.

Prevent Slipping

RUBBER strips with adhesive backs are finding many household uses. Used under the bottoms of picture frames, ash trays, radios, lamp bases and other table pieces, they prevent slipping and scratching. By gripping the surface they also anchor skirt belts and bath mats.

If Child Cries, Don't Spank, Change Nursery Draperies

By Vivian Brown

By The Associated Press

TIME was when if you had a crying baby on your hands, you'd give it either a spanking or a lollipop. Today, you're likely to treat him to a new pair of draperies and a fresh paint job for the nursery.

That's the treatment recommended by Dr. James Bender, director of the Institute of Human Relations. He points out:

"Too few mothers study the influence of color on a child's behavior pattern. Often the wrong colors can cause a child to be sulky and have tantrums."

Dr. Bender has experimented recently by putting some of the colors he considers ideal for children into the nursery of a new seven-room ranch-type home in Saddlewood Hills, N. J. He cooperated with Patricia Harvey, young New York decorator in suggesting colors for the room.

Colors are described by wavelengths, measured in one millionth of a millimeter, says Dr. Bender. Here are some characteristic wave frequencies of common colors, which show that the paler hues, the more soothing colors, are the best choice for a child: Bright red, 760 mm; orange, 656 mm; golden yellow, 589 mm; green, 526 mm; pale blue, 486 mm.

For this model nursery Dr. Bender used a delightfully entertaining nursery pattern, "Toy Parade," in a soft chalky blue, yellow and wildrose pink plastic for draperies, a youth bed cover and an upholstered chair. The walls, woodwork and trim were painted maize yellow.

He used materials that would eliminate scoldings which often create a sense of guilt in a sensitive child when he is impelled to do something he has been told not to do, such as scuffing furniture or putting his feet on the bedspread.

For this reason all the materials in Dr. Bender's nursery are plastic—waterproof, dust shedding and highly resistant to stains and mildew. Usually they require no dry cleaning, laundering or replacement.

A bookcase painted delphinium blue serves as a storage place for toys to complete this cheerful color scheme.

Home Design Contest Open to Local Students

THIS year for the first time, the home show management sponsored a Washington home design and model construction contest among mechanical drafting students in high and vocational schools of the metropolitan area.

Pupils entering the design competition were required to draw a plan for a one-story home scaled up to an area of 900 square feet for a three-bedroom unit. In the model home competition, entrants were required to submit models based on the same specifications.

Judges in both the design and model competition were: Clarke Daniel, president of the Home Builders; Lee Harrison, architect; Thornton W. Owen, president of the Washington Board of Trade; Dr. Hobart Corning, Superintendent of Schools, and Clyde J. Verkerke, chairman of the home show committee. The winners will be announced Friday evening, May 19.

Dress the Sofa Up in Tweeds

SMART and practical for modern living are new upholstery fabrics. Some of these have taken on the nubby texture of tweed and are being used on the most formal modern furniture.

You'll find nubby tween effects in diagonal weaves, herringbone patterns, houndstooth checks and salt-and-pepper weaves in varied combinations to give a heather-mixture touch. These rough-textured fabrics of rayon ratine have the handloomed look and feel of tweed.

One chartreuse and forest green combination designed by A. Theo. Abbot was shown on a multiplex group of armchairs that can be combined to form a loveseat or sofa with a straightback chair in the center.

Modern furniture is increasing the use of durable fabrics heretofore thought too unconventional for home decor. Most of these harmonize beautifully with the gray mahogany, bisque, black and lacquered woods so popular in modern furniture today.

These new tweedy fabrics can find their way to an odd piece of modern furniture, even in a traditional room, without emphasizing contrast.

Most of the fabrics are designed in color combinations which can blend in with home decor which is subject to change from time to time. They can give a lift to a tired old room, yet not appear drab when glamour is the keynote of the room.

Health Laws Enforced by New Valve

A VALVE that acts like a policeman has been designed for use in milk pasteurization plants by the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. in Philadelphia. The device will halt operation of the plant if it isn't being run according to public health laws. It works through a system of internal contacts and electric switches.

GEERPRES WRINGER, INC., of Muskegon, Mich., is making a thing to hang mops and brooms on walls. It consists of double wooden rollers tightened by springs. Push the handle between the rollers. There it hangs.

A MOVABLE EAR is the newest aid for the hard of hearing made by Sonotone Corp. of New York. The microphone ear attached to the clothing with connecting wires concealed. It can be worn under a necktie or as a piece of jewelry.

PLASTIC PADS are being made to cushion railroad rails. The pads are compounded of abaca fiber and vinylite resin and are placed between the wooden ties and the steel tie plates. The pads help to absorb shock and prevent the plates from cutting the ties. F. Burkart Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis makes it.

SKF INDUSTRIES, INC., of Philadelphia uses the penetrating heat of infra-red rays to prevent corrosion on ball and roller bearings. The heat evaporates moisture on bearings before they are coated with corrosion-preventing compound. The time for cooking the bearings depends on size. Three hours of heat lamp treatment are required for the 2½ ton roller bearings used by the steel and paper making industries.

CANASTA SCORER of plastic, with the score kept with pegs, is being made by Classic Products Co. of New York. It is designed for outdoor playing but can be used any place.

UNITED LACQUER Manufacturing Corp. of Linden, N. J., is producing a fast-drying synthetic enamel which it says cuts finishing time 40 percent. The company says the new synthetic protecting coating provides extreme hardness previously obtained only by baking. It dries in a few minutes. Products can be handled and stacked within 15 minutes and packed in three to four hours.

A NEW GUN that shoots lawn seed is being made by the L. Teweles Seed Co. of Milwaukee, Wis. It's a pump gun loaded with 1½ pounds of perennial lawn seed. It can be refilled with seed, insecticide or fertilizer.

METAL clips that look like clothes pins can be fastened to wire hangers for hanging skirts, slacks and trousers. Clip-A-Grips will be useful items to tuck in suitcases for traveling.

Spring Decor Lends Table Charm

FAE HUTTENLOCHER, table-setting designer, suggests setting a garden club luncheon table on a leaf-green linen-weave cloth with applique roses. You can cut the roses from old draperies or slipcovers. Apply them in a circle on the cloth, so that when spread on the table, the circle is in the middle of the table. In the circle, stand an old glass apothecary jar or old covered glass candy jar filled with fresh roses. Snip off some the blooms at the head, others at varying lengths, because the idea is to fill the jar with blooms, then replace the cover.

Around this colorful centerpiece, set your table with flower-patterned dishes and handmade glassware etched in one of the glamorous rose patterns. American glass artisans are so skilled that the hand-etched rose is lifelike and complete with leaves, thorns and stems.

This setting is appropriate indoors and out, and especially charming with white-painted wrought-iron table and chairs. The same theme could be carried out with ivy instead of roses, using ivy-etched glassware.

Career Wife's Table

FOR THE career wife whose homemaking time is limited, home furnishings expert Jack McCurdy designs an attractive work-saving table for Sunday brunch. The cloth is plain aqua linen or linen-weave rayon, which you can finish by merely pulling threads to form fringe. Tulips and lilacs or other spring blooms in a copper bowl make the centerpiece.

Your copper chafing dish and other copper cooking utensils and containers are placed right on the table. Bread and rolls are served in a straw basket or tray.

To thsi set-up, the clear sparkle of your handmade glassware adds a welcome touch. Tumblers with substantial base and straight sides are good; and accessories like sugar and creamer, salt and pepper containers, and ashtrays, all in clear handmade American glass, will complement without cluttering the table.

Now You Roll The Paint on

NEW YORK (AP).—The newest way of painting is to roll it on. Here's the way it's done:

In place of a brush or spray, you use a can-shaped cylinder about the size of a long tomato juice can with a handle.

Thsi painting can is aluminum, covered with wool. The paint inside is forced out through perforations. It can be pushed out either by a spring, or by an air hose.

Applying paint in this fashion is said to leave no roll marks and to apply a smooth, even film of paint. The roll holds about a pint of paint. With the air hose attachment, the roll may be hooked up to a larger can.

And Now They're Washing Soiled Linen With Sound

EVER hear of washing clothes with sound? Two Australians have developed an electrosonic washer. It works this way: Clothes, soap and water are placed in the machine. The power unit—an electro-magnet with no moving parts—produces sound waves that agitate water and clothes a few thousands of an inch at the rate of 100 times a second. Producers are J. E. Excell and H. J. Jones, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia.

A NEW COMPOUND (flame-retarder) for use on clothing and other textiles has been developed by Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore. It is reported that clothing treated by it retain normal durability, stay pliable and soft, and take on no noticeable weight. The company says the protective resen, designated as HPM, has been licensed to E. I. DuPont de Nemours, Wilmington, Del., for further research work in the hope of manufacturing it commercially.

AN ADJUSTABLE window ventilator, with built-in air filter, permits plenty of fresh air the year 'round and blocks dust, pollen, and dirt, according to the F. E. Schumacher Co., Hartville, Ohio, the manufacturer. Called the "Filter-Vent," it comes in four sizes to fit all standard window openings. No installation or tools are necessary to put it in operation. Lansburgh & Bro. department store has it.

Architecture Here Cited As Trite, Uncreative

Planning Poor, Buildings Sterile, Architects' Group Declares in Blast

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Washington has lost its role as the "planning leader of the world" because it is "afraid to reexamine its old, safe formula," the Washington Metropolitan Chapter of the American Institute of Architects asserted yesterday.

The comment was one of several bristling attacks on the city's planning and architecture running through a 63-page study prepared by the group's committee on urban planning.

It was released for distribution to the A. I. A. annual convention in its second day at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Because Washington lacks the richness inherent in a more functionally varied city, it will need more imaginative planning than any other city," the study declares. "And this cannot be done by men who are afraid to dream."

The local architects' report criticized the lack of "fresh creattive" building here, and said "white temples and green gardens along the Potomac aren't enough."

The controversial study offered this explanation for what they described as a "lag in creative effort in Washington."

"Perhaps our cultural colonialism lived longer here than in other cities of the United States. Perhaps a city devoted almost entirely to Government could not escape from the sterility of 'official' architecture."

In any event, the study asserted: "The Nation's Capital fails as a symbol of a great democratic culture" and has not met "one of the great twentieth century challenges—the challenge to provide an urban environment which fulfills the promise of democracy."

Private builders and Federal housing assistance programs also came under attack.

In another broadside, the study declared the "ugliness of the typical Washington row house with its two-story back porches" has done more than anything else to bring the row house into "disrepute."

There were reports last night of conflicting views among members on the recommendations and assertions in the study.

Highlights of the report's recommendations were:

1. Locate future Federal buildings in a "series of nuclei at some distance from the downtown area," served by an important circumferencial highway.
2. More commercial firms located along such a roadway would release some river frontage they now occupy.
3. Increase height limitations on both residential and commercial structures, and simultaneously reduce the permissable lot coverage for tall buildings.
4. Large-scale urban redevelopment should not begin in the central portion of the city until the low-income housing shortage has been relieved.
5. Expand the jurisdiction of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission into nearby Maryland and Virginia as provided in a measure before Congress.
6. Give District residents suffrage rights, locally and nationally, to stimulate "a new sense of civic responsibility."

Paul Windels, president of the Regional Planning Association of New York, told the meeting that because of the concentration of population and industry in great cities, the United States was most vulnerable to atomic warfare.

Windels said decentralization would not only lessen the damage of an atomic attack, but would discourage such an attack because the enemy would know it could not obtain a quick knockout. He urged creation of a national defense policy on size and shape of cities.

Government Architecture Criticized

The Washington Post
SIR PATRICK
. . . Honored by Architects

Architecturally speaking, the Library of Congress is an "absolute blooper," in the opinion of Sir Patrick Abercrombie.

Here to receive the American Institute of Architects' top Gold Medal award tonight, the eminent British architect and town planner spun off a series of first impressions of Capital landmarks and planning.

The Library of Congress: "It's wrongly placed and designed. It never should have had a dome competing with the Capitol."

Federal architecture: "Its cold monumentality is inevitable. It was the vogue then and you certainly aren't going to tear them down."

As for future Federal buildings, he feels the modern functional design will blend perfectly "if controlled."

The Pentagon—"I'm not so impressed with it because it's too easy to get lost there, too hard to get away from, and it seems unwise to concentrate so much war personnel in the same place where a single bomb would destroy it."

The White House—"Perfectly splendid. It is absolutely proper for the capital of a democracy. It's not a palace; it's a home."

The Washington Monument—"There is simple magnificence. No other monument compares with it except the Pyramids."

The new United Nations Headquarters in New York—"I'm not terribly impressed. It was designed more for external appearance rather than internal use. It's just a little too elemental for me."

Sir Patrick was in high humor yesterday as he parried questions at a crowded press conference in the Mayflower.

He is being honored by the A.I.A. for his "distinguished contribution to the profession of architecture and regional planning. "He is perhaps best known for his book on "Replanning the County of London." He was knighted in 1945.

Court Upholds Lano's Guilt In Extortion

Annapolis, Md., May 11 (AP). — The Court of Appeals today upheld the conviction of Sam Lano on an extortion charge.

In a 6-0 decision, it affirmed a one-year jail sentence pronounced by Judge John B. Gray, jr., in Prince Georges County circuit court.

Lano was convicted of threatening John Duffy of Duffy's Tavern, 4308 Rhode Island ave., Brentwood, Md.

Duffy ordered two slot machines owned by Lano removed from his tavern last August, the State said. Lano threatened to prosecute Duffy on a bad check charge unless the machines were put back, the State added.

Lano "categorically denied making any threats," his lawyers said. They argued the indictment on which he was tried was "too vague" and failed to inform him fully of the charges against him.

This contention was rejected by Chief Judge Ogle Marbury, who wrote:

"It is not necesary to supply proof in an indictment, nor does the State have to define its allegations beyond the point where the accused is sufficiently informed of the charges."

2 Counties Face Restrictions on Use of Water

Montgomery and Prince Georges County residents may have to restrict their use of water again this summer—and for two summers after that.

This was indicated yesterday in an announcement from the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Commission officials said their program of water facilities expansion is expected to catch up with the building boom by the end of 1952. It is believed, they said, that population growth in the suburban areas will level off by that time.

Most important item in the expansion program is a new reservoir. It is expected to nearly double the present water supply. The project, at Rocky Gorge, near Laurel, is now under way.

Seckinger Asks Repairs For Upshur

Commission to Get Doctor's Case for Rehabilitation of District Hospital

District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger will urge the Commissioners on Tuesday to repair and maintain Upshur Street Hospital "until other facilities are available" for rehabilitation of tuberculosis patients.

He told a group of doctors and laymen interested in tuberculosis treatment that he considers it his "prime responsibility" to keep the Upshur st. program alive.

Dr. Seckinger will present his case to the Commissioners at a special meeting to consider the problem of the hospital, which officials say is now in need of $60,000 worth of repairs.

An earlier recommendation that the hospital be closed for lack of funds and that a building program at Glenn Dale Sanitorium be started immediately had been rescinded by Dr. Seckinger. He said on further consideration it should be kept open on at least a "semipermanent" basis.

Archie G. Hudson, District director of construction, has recommended that the boiler system at Upshur be replaced before next fall at a cost of $40,000.

Dr. Seckinger said he hopes the Commissioners will be able to get enough money for repairs through a deficiency appropriation from Congress, "although it's getting pretty late."

Events Scheduled For Hospital Day

Washington will join with the rest of the Nation in the annual observance of National Hospital Day today, with a variety of activities slated at all of the 13 institutions which make up the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area.

All of the participating hospitals will be open to public inspection, refreshments will be served at some and several have embellished their programs with such added features as band concerts, drills, mock surgical operations and special exhibits.

Hospital Day, officially proclaimed as such by the District Commissioners, falls appropriately on the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale.

In connection with the observance, Walter N. Tobriner, president of the area hospital council, yesterday cited statistics to show the increase in services rendered by member hospitals during the past year.

In 1949, Tobriner reported the 13 council hospitals admitted 103,099 patients as compared with 95,366 in 1948. In the same period, the total of patient days jumped from 693,249 to 736,660.

George Washington University Hospital topped the local group in adult admissions during the year with 11,803. Sibley, with 11,233, was second, while Providence was third with 11,178, according to Tobriner.

Sibley Hospital scored two firsts in 1949 with the greatest number of operations, 7643, and more births, 3154, than any other general hospital in the area.

Arlington Lifts School Entry Age Barrier

Arlington children who will be six between next October and March 1 may enter school this fall.

Their parents must apply for primary enrollment by May 20.

Previously, only youngsters whose sixth birthday fell on or before September 30 have been admitted to county schools each fall. The school board has voted to extend this deadline to March 1, for children who can pass certain general maturity tests.

The tests will be administered by school psychologists.

However, if there is an adverse recommendation by the psychologist, "final decision as to whether the child will enter school will rest with his parents," according to Mrs. Edmund Campbell, school board chairman.

In Falls Church, the birthday deadline will be extended to November 30, for youngsters who can pass the maturity tests.

STEP FORWARD—Little pupils from the Kendall School for Deaf Children yesterday thrilled to televised programs which they were able to hear for the first time. They were presented a TV set equipped with eight earphones developed by the Zenith Co. The presentation was made during ceremonies at the Washington Gas Light Auditorium in connection with National Hearing Week. School Principal William McClure accepted the set

Hard-of-hearing children may now hear as well as see Howdy Doody on television.

This happy expansion of their lives has become possible through development by the Zenith Co. of a TV set equipped with eight earphones with amplifying facilities.

The company yesterday presented one of the sets to the Kendall School for deaf children.

Presentation was made before a group of the children in ceremonies at the Washington Gas Light Auditorium by Dr. Christian A. Volf, a Beverly Hills, Calif., physicist. The set was accepted by William J. McClure, principal of the school.

Some 1500 of the sets have been manufactured, Volf said.

Army Captain

Missing Officer Found In Hospital

Capt. John R. Sullivan, missing from a bloodstained Washington hotel room since Wednesday night, was located at 7:15 p. m. yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Sullivan was identified as a Camp Campbell, Ky., officer who was about midway in a 13-week special student course at Fort Belvoir.

Homicide squad detectives who interviewed Captain Sullivan said the officer admitted cutting his wrists and arms after "doing the town" Wednesday night.

He told police he remembered nothing else until he awoke yesterday morning and found blood on the floor and congealed on his wounds. He then got up, walked down the stairs, called a cab and went to Walter Reed.

Police reported him "extremely depressed." His condition is not serious.

He checked into the Burlington Hotel, at Thomas Circle, about 11 p. m. Wednesday. Yesterday, at 9 a. m., Sara Kendrick, a maid, entered the room. She found the bed and the floor nearby full of heavy bloodstains. A single-edged razor blade was on the floor near the stains.

No one was in the room.

When police and agents of the Army arrived, they found a note in Captain Sullivan's box at the hotel desk. They would not reveal full contents but quoted the note as saying if Captain Sullivan would "return and straighten things out" everything will be all right. Police would not divulge the name of the writer.

It was signed by another officer assigned to Fort Belvoir, police said. They said the writer had not returned to quarters. Hotel attaches said that the officer who wrote the note and two others came to the hotel about an hour after Captain Sullivan checked in, and asked for him.

At Fort Belvoir, authorities said that Captain Sullivan had been missing from classes for two days.

Dr. Magnuson to Talk

Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, chief of the Veterans Administration department of medicine and surgery, will be the principal speaker on the National Hospital Day program at 3:15 p. m. today at Mount Alto Hospital, 2650 Wisconsin ave. nw. A three-hour open house will begin at 2 p. m.

Maryland Man Dies as Auto Overturns

Franklin B. Sames, 40, of Edgewater, Md., was killed yesterday afternoon when, police said, his car went out of control and overturned.

The accident happened on Maryland Route 4, near Hill Bridge. Police said marks indicated the car skidded 72 feet, overturned, and continued to skid for a total of 150 feet.

Gallons of milk flowed into a ditch yesterday when a tractor-trailer tank truck blew a tire and overturned.

The accident occurred south of Lee blvd. underpass near Rosslyn, Va. The vehicle was driven by Robert M. Masser, 30, of Fredericksburg, Md. Damage was estimated at $5000.

Five persons were slightly injured in a collision yesterday at 20th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. All were treated at Emergency Hospital and released.

They were James J. Gross, 34, of 636 E st. sw., driver of one of the cars; Robert C. Welbourne, 56, of 636 H st. sw.; Howard Turner, 27, of 636 E st. sw.; Louis R. Cornelius, 28, of 914 7th st. sw., and Walter Perryman, 31, of 740 9th st. nw.

The Gross car collided with a truck of the Crusty Pie Co., driven by Howard V. Ennis, 45, of 1315 N. Capitol st. He was uninjured.

Thailand Diplomat Cleared in Car Death

The First Secretary of the Thailand Embassy was cleared yesterday of a manslaughter charge lodged against him after his automobile struck and killed a pedestrian.

Judge Alan Bowie of Hyattsville Police Court dismissed the charge against the diplomat, M. C. Dilokrit Kridakon. The decision was made on the recommendation of Assistant State's Attorney Hervey G. Machen.

The pedestrian struck by Kridakon's auto was Carl Johnson, 22, of Brentwood, Md. The accident happened on Route 1 near Muirkirk, April 29.

Machen introduced a copy of a letter written by State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie to Prince Wan Waithayakon, the Ambassador of Thailand. The Prince Georges official wrote that "investigation of the incident has disclosed such facts as would, in my opinion, make further prosecution of the case unwarranted."

Grill Loses Drink License For 21 Days

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday ordered the license of Billy's Mercury Grill, 615 7th st. sw., suspended from May 16 to June 6.

Owner of the grill, Mrs. Sally Solomon, was cited before the board on charges of selling beer to a drunk and allowing him to remain on the premises March 10.

Maurice Solomon, husband of the owner, insisted to the board that Police Pvt. Robert J. Maghan, of the Fourth Precinct, who reported the offense, was biased against the Solomons.

Maghan had been unfriendly to him, Solomon said, since Christmas two years ago, when he had given Maghan a pint of whisky as a gift and Maghan gave it back to him. Solomon added that he and his wife always give Christmas gifts to the policemen who patrol a beat around the grill.

Maghan denied he had any ill-feeling toward Solomon. He said Solomon had offered him a pint of whisky two years ago last Christmas, but that he had refused to take it and had told Solomon off in no uncertain terms. Since then, he has treated Solomon in the same way he treats the rest of the restaurant proprietors on his beat, Maghan said.

Woman Rescued From Drowning In Tidal Basin

Mrs. Mary Moore, 41, 715 6th st. nw., was saved from drowning in the Tidal Basin yesterday by a Bureau of Engraving printer and unidentified bystanders attracted by the woman's screams.

Police said Mrs. Moore was rescued after Nels F. Peterson, 31, 4006 Beechwood rd., University Park, Md., dived into the basin and tried unsuccessfully to drag her ashore about 4:45 p. m. Someone tossed Peterson a rope, which he tied around the woman's waist, and several bystanders pulled the couple to safety.

Mrs. Moore's husband, Charles, told police he had taken his wife to the Washington Sanitarium earlier in the day for treatment of "extreme nervousness." She disappeared from the sanitarium about 11 a. m., after receiving permission to go outside and lie on the lawn.

Citizens Group, Hurt by Video, Seeks Merger

The North Randle Community Citizens Association, which complained recently that TV was hurting its attendance, last night tossed in the towel.

Kenneth G. Reed, one of the group's Federation delegates, asked the Randle Highlands Citizens Association at its meeting to absorb its members.

The Highlands members looked upon his petition favorably, but decided to defer final action until a committee can investigate the situation. The committee's report will be made Wednesday at the North Randle meeting.

New Highlands officers elected in the Randle School, 30th and R sts. se., were W. B. Steele, president; C. E. Dunnington, vice president; Mrs. George L. Gregg, secretary and Joseph F. Soresi, treasurer.

Northeast

John N. Weber was reelected to his second term as president of the Northeast Washington Citizens Association at its final meeting of the season at the Edmonds School, 9th and D sts. ne., last night.

Samuel E. Cross was named vice president; Roscoe Jenkins, treasurer; Lawrence A. Jett, financial secretary, and Mrs. Ruth Gross, recording secretary.

The association also went on record urging U. S. Route 1 be moved back to Maryland ave. from Rhode Island ave.

Southeast

The Southeast Washington Citizens Association last night indorsed the proposed construction of a modern Providence Hospital on a 15-acre tract near Catholic University.

In a motion introduced by John M. Curran, chairman of the law and legislation committee, the association voted to petition Congress to adopt a bill which would authorize the Federal assistance the hospital needs to start construction.

The group also asked the D. C. Commissioners to support the bill "which would be for the benefit of other hospitals in the District . . . as well as Providence Hospital."

Richard Mansfield, the cartoonist and former policeman, talked about old Southeast Washington, and introduced his 90-year-old mother, Mrs. Alice Mansfield. The meeting was at the Hine Junior High School, 7th and C sts. se.

Congress Heights

Support for the reappointment of James E. Schwab as vice chairman of the District Recreation Board was voiced by the Congress Heights Citizens Association last night. The Interior Department has objected to Schwab's stand in favor of segregation in D. C. pools.

The association named Mark H. Hetrick and G. Walter Johnson as delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations and William L. Bryan, Julius C. Robey and Benson Taylor as delegates to the Southeast Council. The meeting was held at Congress Heights School, Nichols ave. and 5th st. se.

10th Cabbie Robbery In a Week Reported

For the tenth time in less than a week, a lone bandit operating from the Fourteenth Precinct territory held up and robbed a taxi driver last night.

As usual, the lot was small—around $5 taken at the point of a gun from Bruce I. Green, 35, of 419 Oakwood st. se. The description—as in the nine other robberies starting last Saturday night—was a light-skinned Negro, medium in height and wearing flashy sports clothes.

Montgomery 5-Year Plan For Schools Is Outlined

Board of Education Wants $23 Million To Build New Units, Improve Old Ones

The Montgomery County Board of Education yesterday asked for $23,289,200 to build new schools and improve present ones in the next five years.

A total of 24 new schools is planned by the board over the five-year period. Of these, six are elementary schools to be constructed in the 1951 fiscal year beginning next July 1. The remaining 18, to be built between 1951 and 1955, include 14 elementary schools, 2 junior high schools, and 2 senior high schools.

The budget presented to the County Council calls for expenditures of $7,394,700 during fiscal 1951.

Tentative expenditures for the succeeding four years are: $5,404,500 for 1951-2; $5,250,000 for 1952-3; $2,285,000 for 1953-4 and $2,955,000 for 1954-5.

Mrs. Irene R. Sandifer, president of the school board, said in a letter attached to the budget that "the 1950-1951 schedule represents the most essential needs of the schools of Montgomery County as they appear at this time.

Asks Building Speedup

"It is becoming increasingly apparent that an accelerated school construction program is required if the rapidly increasing enrollments, both high and elementary, are to be accommodated," she said.

The board asked the county last week to allot a record $4,452,839 to meet the cost of running the schools during the year. At that time, it was announced that next year's enrollment is expected to increase about 4000 and that 126 new teachers are sought.

The six elementary schools to be built in fiscal 1951, according to the proposed budget, are Burtonsville, $165,000; New Hampshire ave., $240,000; Wood Acres, $240,000; Poolesville Negro Elementary, $200,000; Sandy Spring Negro Elementary, $220,000, and Laytonsville, $180,000. The total cost is $1,245,000.

The $7,394,000 to be spent under present plans during fiscal 1951 also includes $579,400 to complete 17 unfinished projects; $3,174,000 for additions at nine high schools; $1,435,000 for additions at 11 elementary schools; $365,000 for the purchase of a school plant at Montgomery Junior College and $15,000 for additional equipment, and $596,300 for site purchases.

High School Additions

The high school additions are shop, gym, and athletic field at the new Negro high school in Rockville, $265,000; finishing and equipping a 30-classroom Eastern Junior High School, $700,000; two-classroom addition to Montgomery Blair, $700,000; five-classroom addition to Kensington Junior High, $262,000; six classrooms and a cafeteria at Montgomery Hills Junior High, $300,000; gym at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High, $257,000; 24 classrooms, library, office and cafeteria at Gaithersburg High, $145,800; shop and athletic fields at Gaithersburg High, $110,000; shop at Damascus High, $100,000, and eight classrooms and gym at Richard Montgomery High, $480,000.

The 11 elementary school additions include all-purpose room and library at Colesville, $48,000; two classrooms, all-purpose room, kitchen and office at Parkside, $80,000; six classrooms at Forest Grove, $115,000; four classrooms at Emory Grove school for Negroes, $65,000; two classrooms, office, library and kitchen at Germantown, $55,000; two classrooms, office kitchen, all-purpose room and heating plant at Clarksburg, $90,000; 12 classrooms, all-purpose room, library and kitchen at Oakland Terrace, $275,000; two classrooms, basement room and playground improvements at East Silver Spring, $40,000; 12 classrooms, all-purpose room, library, and kitchen at Highland, $275,000; eight classrooms, library, kitchen and all-purpose room at Viers Mill, $196,000; and eight classrooms, all-purpose room, kitchen and library at East Rockville, $196,000.

New Uses Found For Old Chemical

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Roanoke, Va., May 11.—Two new uses for an old chemical—reducing farm silage losses and clearing up such fungus infections as athlete's foot—were disclosed here today.

The chemical, sulphur dioxide, is commonly regarded as a fumigant, but is used more extensively in commercial preserving processes, such as in shipping fruits.

The new uses were revealed by Charles W. Johnston, chemist and vice president of the Virginia Smelting Co. of West Norfolk. Johnston will make his more technical report to the agricultural section of the Virginia Academy of Science Friday. The VAS is in twenty-eighth annual session here.

He stressed particularly the farm economy importance of cutting down silage losses due to molds and fermentation processes. Farmers, he pointed out, frequently lose from one-quarter to all their silage to such unpredictable factors.

The human use of the one-time refrigerant liquid, he said, is being clinically investigated. It had already shown itself to be a powerful fungicide, without pain or harmful side effects, against many of the common fungi which attack humans. Among these, he included athlete's foot infections, ear infections and other skin itches.

Liquid sulphur dioxide's use against athlete's foot and fungus infections of the hands was first uncovered by company workers. From casual conversation with a plant supervisor, he said, he found that the workers were treating themselves and their friends with the chilling liquid and taking it home in pop bottles to treat neighbors.

Since then, he added, a New England pharmaceutical firm has taken over investigation of the medical use. Preliminary reports already made by doctors show, the the chemist said, that many stubborn and long-standing cases of athlete's foot and similar infections have been cleared, usually with but one application.

The chemical sulphur dioxide's advantage over other antifungus salves and ointments, he said, is that it is water-soluble and penetrates through the pores to the roots of the infection. This cuts down probability of recurrence.

Discussing the farm use of the chemical, Johnston said that tests conducted in the past two years have shown considerable reduction in spoilage of alfalfa and hay in silo storage. Further tests are underway, he said, to determine the best treatment processes.

At present, Johnston told the scientists, the liquid sulphur dioxide is "injected" about 8 to 10 inches below the top level of the silage. It begins almost immediately to convert into a gas, permeating the area with mold-killing, anti-fermentation fumes.

One of its greatest benefits, he said, is that it shows the same benefits with open trench silos, whcih are much cheaper to construct than the round, tower silos.

Public Warned of Dangerous Drug

The Food and Drug Administration warned yesterday that a small quantity of "potentially deadly" oxylin tablets, distributed by a Pennsylvania drug firm, has reached the District.

The peril was discovered this week during a routine factory inspection, which established that the formula of the tablets had been altered to include "dangerous" amounts of boric acid, the administration said.

Whether the change in formula, which has been in use for years, was intentional or the result of an error has not yet been determined, according to W. B. Rankin, assistant director of field operations for the Government agency.

Rankin said the agency learned about 33,000 tablets had been produced since the formula was changed, and about 15,000 have been accounted for. Available records show supplies have been distributed in the District, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, but the distributor also does business as far west as Chicago.

A check with wholesalers here showed that "no more than half a dozen bottles," containing 100 tablets each, had been delivered locally, Rankin revealed.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

UNFORTUNATELY for the White Sox, their victory over the Yankees yesterday was not on the ball field. At a time when they were in the process of losing their fourth straight and sharing eighth place with the Browns, the unhappy Chicago club came up with, of all things, a legal triumph.

They beat the Yankees, but they get no credit in the league standings, because their victory took place in Carew Tower, the penthouse office of Comsioner Chandler in Cincinnati. The two teams were contesting the Dick Wakefield case, and Chandler ruled the White Sox the winners.

POVICH

"We win," exclaimed Frank Lane, the White Sox general manager, who heard the news in the Griffith Stadium press box. "But it doesn't break our losing streak," he added mournfully.

Mr. Lane was seeing his White Sox take another beating from the Nats who were mopping up the three-game series and happy to have his athletes in town. "There's nothing wrong with the Washington pitching that the White Sox can't cure," said Lane significantly.

HE WAS referring to the sad sequences of the last three days during which his White Sox had made brand-new winning pitchers of three of Bucky Harris' staff, at a time when Harris was wondering when they'd ever win a game.

"The first guy Harris springs on us is Lloyd Hittle," Lane was saying. "From all we had been hearing about Hittle, the Senators weren't counting on him at all. Yet he pops up with a 4-2 win against us in the series opener, goes all the way and gets his No. 1 victory of the year."

The subsequent night, Lane recalled, Harris introduced Conrado Marrero as a 7 2-3 inning relief pitcher. "We never heard of this guy till he goes out there and beats us for his first win in the major leagues," said Lane sadly.

Most cruel was yesterday's blow. Joe Haynes, who couldn't beat anybody in previous starts and had lasted a total of only five inning in those two attempts, got his first victory of the year. "Why does it always have to be us?" demanded Lane.

HOWEVER, Lane does not consider his three-day visit in Washington a total loss, thanks to the Wakefield decision. "I can take some satisfaction out of that," he said. "Although I would have preferred to hang one up on the scoreboard against the Yankees."

Chandler's ruling bore out Lane's contention that the Wakefield deal was conditional on the Yankees' ability to deliver the player on the date specified. General Manager George Weiss of the Yankeees had denied that any conditions were attached to the transaction. Lane said there were. Chandler investigated, upheld Lane. So the White Sox don't have to take the reluctant Wakefield, they don't have to pay the Yankees the $10,000 the original deal called for, and they don't have to deliver Outfielder John Ostrowski to the Yankee-owned Kansas City Club, which was another facet of the trade.

"I am happy to let the Yankees have Wakefield back in their laps and the worry that goes with him," said Lane unsympathetically.

THE YANKEES, indeed, have a problem in the disposition of Wakefield, who has popped off loudly since they tried to trade him, and now is more non grata than ever. Not only that, but pending disposal of him, the Yanks are saddled with his salary.

It was a painful defeat for the Yankees in another way. They are still battling to get down to the 25-player limit, and with Wakefield back in their laps they now have a surplus of six, with the May 18 deadline drawing near. They don't want Wakefield on their ball club, but there's doubt now where they can shunt him.

Wakefield's demand that the White Sox restore his $5000 salary cut before he reported to 'em, will make all other teams wary of dealing with the Yankees for him. They wouldn't know at what point he might threaten to retire if his money demands were not met. You could say the Yankees have him on the market, and then ask, what market?

Williams Grand Slams But His Boot Loses Second

Boston, Mass., May 11 (AP).—The combination of ragged first-game pitching and costly nightcap errors by Ted Williams and Walt Dropo enabled the Detroit Tigers to gain outright possession of first place today by sweeping a double-header from the Boston Red Sox, 13-4 and 5-3.

The Tigers caught up with Joe Dobson, the first game starter, early and three other Boston hurlers took turns as the Tigers slammed 11 hits and 14 bases on balls. One Tiger blow was a two-run homer by Hoot Evers. Their Freddie Hutchinson was coasting along with a three-hit shutout until Williams uncorked his eighth homer of the season, with the bases loaded, in the eighth inning.

Kinder, however, was undermined by Williams in the eighth. He walked Charlie Keller, pinch-hitting for Gray. Johnny Lipon, got an infield hit, Gerry Priddy sacrificed and was safe when Kinder fumbled the ball to fill the bases.

Vic Wertz then lashed a single into left that went through Williams, enabling three runners to score and the Tigers took a 3-2 lead.

Boudreau's 4 Hits Pace Tribe's Win in 10th

Philadelphia, May 11 (AP).—Lou Boudreau, back in the lineup after benching himself for weak hitting, cracked four hits, drove in one run and setup the winning marker today as his Cleveland Indians beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 3, in 10 innings at Shibe Park.

Boudreau's fourth hit in the 10th inning sent Joe Gordon, who had singled, scurrying to third from where he scored as Jim Hegan hit into a force play. Allie Clark made his first hit of the season, a home run in the fourth, while Third Sacker Al Rosen hit for the circuit in the eighth to tie the score at 3-3. Sam Chapman hit his first home run of the season for the A's.

STOMACH-ACHE—Hank Majeski, White Sox third baseman, hit in the stomach by a wickedly bounding ball off the bat of Bob Ortiz, managed to field the ball and throw batter out in yesterday's Chisox-Nats game at Griffith Stadium. Then Majeski collapsed on the field, recovered, played on. ## Young Star Faces Operation Today

THE NATS' elation over their five-game winning streak was toned down somewhat last night by the news that Irv Noren, distance-hitting freshman outfielder, will be lost to the club for several weeks.

Club officials disclosed that the strapping youngster from the Pacific Coast League has acute appendicitis and will be operated on this afternoon in Georgetown Hospital by Dr. George Resta, club physician.

Noren reported to the ball park for yesterday's game with the Chicago White Sox but was running a fever when the players began suiting up. His case was diagnosed at once.

Owner Clark Griffith instructed Resta to "go ahead with the operation for the boy will worry himself all season unless you get that thing out of there."

Resta assured Griffith that Noren will be back in the line-up in a few weeks

NOREN came to the Nats from Oakland of the Coast league. He was purchased on the recommendation of Manager Bucky Harris who saw him play on the coast last season while Bucky was managing the San Diego club.

IRV NOREN

Noren had played every game in center field until yesterday. He has hit two homers ad two triples, is batting .281 and has nine runs batted in.

motion. The big pitcher tripled to center for a duplicate of Mele's blow, and scored on the strangest of all singles—a single to right by pull hitter Eddie Yost.

The pesky Sox refused to stay out of the ball game, though. Ostrowski opened against Haynes in the seventh with a full-blown homer into the left center seats. Carrasquel doubled to left and when Philley singled to right, the Sox had two runs that cut Haynes' lead to 6-4. It also cut Haynes out of the game. Harris moved in and got the third out on one pitch to Goldsberry.

But the Nats had plenty of bounce yesterday. They surged back for two more runs in the seventh against Rookie Bill Connelly. Mele walked, Ortiz got his line drive triple to center and Combs scored Ortiz with a single to left to establish the new figures at 8-4, Washington.

Harris was jolted somewhat by Michaels in the eighth when the Sox second baseman led off with a homer into the left center seats. But he had no more trouble until the ninth, when Masi walked and Carrasquel singled with none out. Pinch Hitter Eddie Malone got Harris out of trouble by grounding to Combs for a double play that took the pressure off.

IN SHORT . . . The Nats moved on to Boston last night for games with the Red Sox today, tomorrow and twice on Sunday . . . Naturally, that man Ray Scarborough will be Bucky Harris' pitcher in the series opener . . . Roberto Ortiz appeared to be swinging yesterday with malice toward Third Baseman Hank Majeski. His hard smash in the third buried itself into Majeski's groin, and in the fifth he knocked the infielder down with another fiery wallop . . . The Nats got down to the 25-player limit a week before the deadline by dispatching Rookie Pitchers Earl Davis and Bill Dozier to their Chattanooga and Augusta Farms, respectively.

Schnittker Goes Home Unsigned, Caps Get Cartier

The Ohio State All-American flew back to Columbus, Ohio, to talk things over with his family and weigh the offer against a flock of others.

General Manager Bob Foster said he was disappointed that Schnittker didn't sign but felt the Caps' chances of getting him still are "very good."

Meanwhile, the Caps received the contract of another draftee, North Carolina State's Warren (Windy) Cartier, native of Green Bay, Wisc. The 6-foot-3 forward played 3 years for the Wolfpack.

Yanks Win Two, Take 2d

Jones' 3-Run Homer Wins For Phils, 3-2

Pittsburgh, May 11 (AP).—Willie Jones' three-run homer in the first carried the first-place Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-2 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight. It was Jones' seventh circuit smash of the season.

Robin Roberts, who hurled his fourth win against one defeat, allowed one run in the ninth.

In the ninth, Tom Saffell and Johnny Hopp singled for the Bucs. Roberts got Ralph Kiner to pop out. Fernandez then singled, scoring Saffell. When Richie Ashburn fumbled, Hopp went all the way to third.

Robin showed his stuff then by getting pinh-hitters Wally Westlake and Dale Coogan via the strike-out route.

Jones tied Kiner for home run leadership in the National League, and passed him in the runs batted in race, 21 to 20.

Henrich, Mapes Wreck Browns

New York, May 11 (AP).—Cliff Mapes and Tommy Henrich powered the New York Yankees to a double-header sweep over the St. Louis Browns today, 5-1 and 6-5. The two wins boosted the Yanks into second place, a game behind Detroit.

Mapes was the big gun of the opener with a three-run home run to break a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning. The blow knocked out Al Widmar, making his first start of the season after holding out all through spring training. Allie Reynolds went all the way to his second win.

Henrich snapped a 5-5 tie with a pinch single in the seventh inning of the second game after Ray Coleman's homer with two on had evened the game for the lowly Brownies.

Dick Starr, Browns starter, failed to survive Mapes' second triple of the game in the third inning. Tom Ferrick, third St. Louis pitcher, was charged with the loss on Henrich's hit.

Yanks Suspend Wakefield After Chandler Voids Chisox Deal and Dumps Him Back

New York, May 11 (AP). — Outfielder Dick Wakefield was suspended indefinitely by the New York Yankees today, shortly after he had been tossed back to the New York club by Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

The commissioner voided the recent deal which sent Wakefield to the Chicago White Sox for Outfielder John Ostrowski.

Wakefield, reached at Ann Arbor, Mich., said the next move is up to the Yankees.

"What else can I do?" Wakefield asked. "I'm just going to wait until I hear from Mr. Weiss. He's the boss."

Wakefield said he expected the Yankees would make a deal for him "somewhere."

"I'll have to listen and then dicker with the manager of the club where he sells me or trades me."

Wakefield said he would like a "good chance" in baseball.

"I'd like to go someplace where they could use a baseball player. I'll bide my time. I believe I could play pretty good ball, but maybe not set the world on fire."

The former University of Michigan star pointed out that "I haven't played one inning for New York. I'd like to show what I can do. And then they shipped me like cattle to Chicago."

Shortstops Self

New York, May 11 (AP).—Phil Rizzuto, New York Yankee shortstop, had his telephone number changed to an unlisted one to avoid early-morning calls from barroom debaters. First thing Phil did was to lose the paper with the only copy of the number.

Fire Horse to Be?

New York, May 11 (AP). — A horse turned in a fire alarm at Belmont Park yesterday. A thoroughbred in the stalls occupied by the Oles Dubasoff stable kicked the wall so hard that the vibrations set off the alarm, fastened to the outside of the building.

Bill Bennings

AT PIMLICO.

DEAR FOLKS:

The injury to Doug Dodson in New York means a shift in jockeys on Mr. Trouble for the Preakness, and it looks as if Steve Brooks will get the mount. Dodson rode the Whitneyite in the Derby and came in for some criticism, many maintaining he made his move too soon. If Mr. Trouble was poorly handled he succeeded in doing one thing, beating Your Host and setting the stage for Middleground's victory. Brooks is smart and he will profit by studying the Derby. You can look for a change in Mr. Trouble under Steve's handling. I don't like to rub it in on Dodson when he's down, but Brooks, in my book, is the better rider.

Lest we forget, the Preakness is booked for Saturday a week and not this week-end. See you on the rail. BILL.

$7.40 Shot Gets Home In 1:10 4-5

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., May 11.—E. A. Nicodemus' Laran, winner of the Baltimore Spring Handicap last year, found his way into the winner's circle in the featured Canter Purse this afternoon.

It was the first triumph in four starts this year for the Hairan gelding as he sped to victory by a length over the favored Winter Wheat. The stakes winning mare, making her 1950 bow was far from disgraced in saving the place by little less than a length over Whiffenpoof.

Laran was timed in a clever 1:10 4-5 for the three-quarters mile dash, three fifths of a second off the track mark and fastest of the meeting. He was made second choice to Winter Wheat by the crowd of 9,773 and returned a $7.40 mutuel.

A pair of solidly backed runners made up the winning "12-10" double which reutrned a tidy $82.40. Valley Stream, victor of the first race was favored at $9.40 and Doll Foot paid $8.80 straight in maintaining her unbeaten record. The 2-year-old filly was victorious in her only other start when she galloped home at Charles Town.

380,000 MEN COMPARED—SWITCHED

We've overheard women calling men stick-in-the-muds. "Same old clothing styles, same old brands, year after year."

We hate to disagree with women—BUT

We think men's choice of shoes is anything but stuck-in-the-mud. If it were, would we make and sell eighty different shoe styles? Would 380,000 men have switched from other brands to Regal in a single year? And would they have switched so sharply up and down the price ladder?

No—most men are open to suggestion, quickly recognize good style, sound quality, fair price. That's why every week thousands more are joining the millions of loyal Regal customers. And that's why we'd like you to visit us this week—to assert your willingness to change, to try on new Regal shoes with our exclusive patented fitting system.

Terps Trim Hoyas, 3-2, on Hunton's Double in 9th

Soderberg Gets Credit For 5th Win

John Hunton's double with two men out in the ninth inning, his third hit of the game, scored Jack Remsberg from second base and gave Maryland's Terrapins a 3-2 triumph over Georgetown yesterday at College Park.

Remsberg was running for Pinchhitter Bob Heinbaugh who was hit by Hoya Relief Pitcher Hugh Murphy with one out. George Howard struck out but Don Soderberg walked, moving Remsberg to second base. Hunton's hit, on the first ball pitched to him, brought in Remsberg.

It was Soderberg's fifth pitching win in seven games and gave the Terps a record of 15 victories against six defeats. Georgetown has won 12 games and lost four.

Dominating the field is the Eastern Colleges Rowing Championship Regatta at Annapolis tomorrow. Thirteen colleges will send freshman, junior-varsity and varsity crews. Races are slated for 5 p. m., 5:20 p. m., and 5:40 p. m. Spectator arrangements have been made off the upper course with bleachers available 3 miles above the Severn River Bridge.

Locally, Coach Charlie Butts will pit his Washington and Lee High crews against G. W. High on the upper Potomac at 1 o'clock.

Washington's oldest yachting club, the Capital Yacht Club, will hold its formal spring opening on Sunday at the Maine ave. clubhouse grounds.

On the day's events, starting at 3:00 p. m., are the customary flag raising and salute to the club pennant aloft and open house for members and guests.

This year's festivities will be the setting for the official christening of the new rathskeller club lounge, on the lower deck of the club. Resplendent in knotty pine and a handsome bar, the lounge will add to the conviviality of the summer guests.

Commodore Allan A. Carney and his flag officers will be on hand to officiate and greet the visitors and members.

AREA COLLEGIATE sailors will cut exam cramming this weekend to have a crack at the Greater Washington Intercollegiate Sailing Championship to be staged off Buzzard Point.

George Washington Sailing Club plays host for the two-day event which features eight races on Saturday, at 1:00 p. m. and a similar schedule Sunday at 9:00 a. m.

Slated for starring rolls during the double header meet are Chuck Robertson and Bill Lepthein of Navy. Robertson, an academy fourth classman, will mark his swan song as a collegiate sailor.

Jack Martin, Bob Claggett and Pete Geiss will carry Maryland's crew hopes. Chet Peet and Bud Rohrer will head the Blue and Gray contingent while Bob Harwood and George Collins will be forcing the pace for G. W.

St. John's College, Annapolis, the remaining contender, has not named their captain or crews.

—Bass, Crappie Like Them—

A New Use for Goldfish—Bait

By Ralph Murdock

FELLOWS, HERE'S something worth trying. It's goldfish for bait. If you only wish to make an experiment we suggest that you snitch a couple of handfulls from the wife's goldfish bowl, providing the little woman isn't looking. (Put 'em in your bait bucket and you've got the best crappie and bass bait you ever tried. They will live longer on a hook than any average minnow.

Murdock

For verification of goldfish for bait we refer you to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vann, all of Shirlington, Va. The quartet, while fishing at Ravenwood Park, Va., got their limit of crappies, which was 10 each. The foursome also landed five bass which they returned to the water. The crappies ranged from 12 to 15 inches in length. The bait (you guessed it) was goldfish.

RAVENWOOD PARK is located near Woodbridge and is quickly reached by traveling south on the Shirley Memorial Highway. Rowboats can be had by calling George Saks on Manassas 46-F-5. The rate for the boats is only $2 per day.

Distance means little to our local anglers when they want to go fishing. Dutch Bergman, WRC sports commentator, and John O'Donnell, New York News columnist, tried the fishing at Oregon Inlet. They stated the fishing was "trying." They were in a party of seven, headed by Gen. J. F. Battley of the District.

Carter Barron, former football player, is back from Florida, where he got in some fancy fishing. With four others in the party, they hauled in seven bonefish. Carter was top angler, with four of the jet propelled speedsters to his credit.

Carroll D. Health, jr., of 2867 South Buchanan st., Arlington, Va., fished with two of his cronies at Sandpoint, Idaho. They caught a total of 23½ pounds of game fish. To this we add—How far does a man have to go to fish?

Where They Are Biting

Hardheads—Honga River is our best bet but the trip is long. Benedict, our second choice, will improve over the weekend. Croakers in bay scattered—in shallow water—use jumbo shrimp.

Crappies—Good reports from Ravenwood Park, Va., near Woodbridge. Goldfish is the top bait but bull minnows will do. Call George Saks, Manassas 46-F-5, for further particulars.

Rockfish — Several good catches made of Holland Point by Bert Lamb. Also some four-pounders taken in South River. The latter were caught with bloodworms while still fishing.

Shad—Queen Anne Bridge is more consistent. Mostly hickories. The expected run of white shad has not materialized in the Petuztent.

Pros Advise Right Ball for Your Game

Research by golf equipment makers indicates that golfers are either hitters or swingers. Club makers use shafts of different flexibility to meet the needs of each. For the first time, Pros in this district are offering golf balls built for each style of player.

The Sweet Shot is an ultra-high compression ball with an exclusive supercharged liquid center. Hitters find it the longest ball they have ever used.

The Wonderball is built with a new thin-walled hydrostatic center that contains more than 10 times the usual amount of power-transmitting liquid. It is the most sensitive ball ever built—is lightning-like in getaway and in response to stroking. Ease of control, permitting greater accuracy in approach and putting, is especially noticeable.

Both golf balls have vulcanized cured covers—are wound with the new, exclusive F-239 vita-life thread which retains its bounce almost indefinitely. These golf balls can be purchased only at Pro Shops. Ask your Pro which ball you should use. The Worthington Ball Company, Elyria, Ohio. Since 1904, the world's largest exclusive golf ball maker.

On the Town

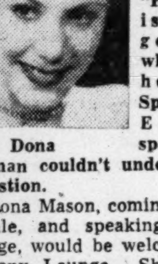
By Georganne Williamson

"HABLA USTED Espanol?" was the perfect squelch of the night club circuit, recently, when a difficult customer in the Colony Lounge tried to heckle Mexican born Dona Mason.



Dona

He had said, "Her Spanish is not too good." But when asked if he spoke Spanish, the English-speaking gentleman couldn't understand the question.

Dona Mason, coming from any locale, and speaking any language, would be welcome at the Colony Lounge. She left the King Cole Room to open the Colony Lounge two years ago, and the lounge has never had such success as when she's there. Pianist Nat Lipton, also a favorite locally, was with her then and has come back for this engagement.

NINO MORALES opens next Monday at the Carlton Hotel Congo Room. Brazilian-born Moraes started his violin career with Stokowski's New York Philharmonic, and for the past 10 years has been appearing in leading hotels with his orchestra.

Featured vocalist is Maria Morales, also a dancer in musical comedy and with night club productions. This is their first appearance in Washington.

Nino Morales has done a lot of recording: Decca and Columbia records, on their South American label, and the Caribbean Music Corp. of New York. He is considered a leading exponent of Brazilian and Latin percussion instruments. CBS broadcast his orchestra nightly from the Glass Hat of the New York Belmont Plaza for four years.

IF YOU ALSO have the feeling that no one should have to be indoors in this weather, perhaps you can enjoy the spring air at meal time, anyway.

Lunching and dining out is the rule now at both Watergate Inn and Normandy Farm. Water Gate Inn, overlooking the Potomac, has a patio and veranda. Normandy Farm, an ideal destination for an early evening drive, boasts two verandas and a terrace—and lots of real farm land for those who like to stroll.

Dress Parade Occasion for Colorful Party

By Elizabeth Maguire

THERE were long shadows on the lawn and military music in the spring air yesterday at Marine Barracks. Dress parade was held at 6:15 p. m., followed by a garden party at the commandant's house, and a more spectacular sight would be hard to find.

Marines in blue and white dress uniforms were reviewed by the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Forrest P. Sherman. New formations in the drill were patterns of perfection and a red-coated Marine band added brilliant color.

The commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Clifton Bledsoe Cates, and Mrs. Cates received their guests in the garden after the parade. White dogwood and purple flags were in full bloom for the occasion. Diplomatic guests included the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet and the Turkish Ambassador, Feridun C. Erkin.

In a corner of the garden a buffet table covered with lace cloth offered coffee and small sandwiches and cakes. Ladies who took turns presiding were Mrs. William Wallace, Mrs. Oliver Prince Smith and Mrs. W. P. T. Hill.

Mrs. Clark Clifford was among the guests accompanied by her daughter, Miss Margery Clifford. The former Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan chatted with Gen. and Mrs. J. Lawton Collins. Others in the gathering included Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John T. Koehler, Mrs. Charles C. Benedict, jr., former Ambassador and Mrs. Nelson Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred D. Whittemore, Gen. and Mrs. Alexander Vandegrift, and Assistant Chief of Protocol, Raymond Muir.

The Marine band furnished music throughout the reception, and guests lingered on the lawn till after sundown.

Garden Party Attracts Diplomats

GEN. AND MRS. WILLIAM D. CONNOR entertained yesterday at the second of two garden parties. Like the first party on Monday, the gathering included friends from diplomatic and "old Washington" circles.

Tea and coffee were served in the dining room of the Connors' Tracy pl. home, and bars were set up on the terrace outside. A fountain played and the garden was a mass of pink bloom.

Diplomat Entertains Visiting Educator

THE Ambassador of Turkey, Feridun C. Erkin, entertained yesterday at a stag luncheon honoring Professor Omer Celal Farc, president of the University of Istanbul. Other guests were Senator Harry P. Cain, Senator George W. Malone, Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp and the Secretary of the Senate Leslie L. Biffle.

In the embassy ceremony, M. Bonnet commended Miss Shaver for her service to "French Art and French Fashion in the United States." Besides promoting French styles in peacetime, Miss Shaver during the war served as a director of American Relief for France

Umbrella Magic Works At Guggenheims' Party

By Marie McNair

IT DIDN'T rain yesterday afternoon at Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim's garden party, even though skies were gray, because Mrs. Guggenheim carried an umbrella.

It wasn't really an umbrella, it was a blue and yellow figured organza parasol, which matched her long and full-skirted frock. She carried another to Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves' garden party on Wednesday and the rain magically stopped. Now she's convinced that the old adage holds.

Colonel and Mrs. Guggenheim stood on the wide terrace of Firenze House, their English baronial estate, set down in the midst of a stately park with rolling velvety grass and pink and white dogwood trees in full bloom.

Bars and small tables were set out on the lawn which was bordered with pansies of all colors and modest blue forget-me-nots. There was a tea table indoors, but everybody seemed to prefer the sun and shadows in the garden.

I'm sure that everyone who was invited to the party yesterday showed up, in spite of the fact there were two other outdoor fetes going on at the same time.

And just who was there? The Ecuador Ambassador and Senora de Dillon, the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz, the Swedish Ambassador and Mme. Boheman, Mrs. William O. Douglas and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, the Finnish Minister K. T. Jutila, and the Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder with Mrs. Snyder to start with just a few. Mrs. Snyder wore a silver blue mink stole over her dark frock; Mrs. Alexander Surles tossed a silver fox cape over her gray-blue gown, and Mrs. Joseph Davies looked almost summery in pale mauve with a pink hat and a light coat over her arm.

I SAW Signora Luciolli, wife of the Counselor of the Italian Embassy and among a sea of faces, I spotted Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young; Mrs. William Fulbright, her gray frock dotted in black; Judge and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Representative and Mrs. Clark W. Thompson, Mrs. Owen Brewster with daisies on her hat, and Signora Rosso wearing taupe taffeta with a bonnet in a copper shade.

Mme. Benard, wife of the First Secretary of the French Embassy, was an example of French chic in an accordion-pleated gray lace frock. Mrs. Lowell Stockman's gown was of bronze satin brocaded in lace bands, and Mrs. Franklin Babcock, there with the general, wore a smart black two-piece bengaline frock.

Others there were the Philippine Ambassador Joaquin Elizalde, Comdr. and Mrs. Donald McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, Edward Van Devanter, the Biffles and the Biddles (Leslie and Tony, that is), General and Mrs. Conger Pratt, William Huggins, Jack Logan, the Constantine de Stackelbergs, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Grant Jones, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Bissett Norment, Mrs. Marcella duPont with her guest, Joseph Hergesheimer; Mrs. Bruce Smith,

Navy Set Gathers To Honor Chief

CAPT. AND Mrs. Thomas R. Kurtz, jr., entertained at cocktails yesterday at their home in Aurora Hills, Va., in honor of Rear Admiral John R. Redman, Chief of Naval Communications, and Mrs. Redman. Flowers from Hawaii were flown in to be used in the decoration and Mrs. Redman was presented with an orchid lei from Honolulu.

Among those asked to the fete were Vice Admiral and Mrs. Robert B. Carney, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. F. L. Ankenbrandt, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. R. V. D. Cirput, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chrysler and F. Edward Strickler of Warrenton, Va., Rear Admiral and Mrs. Robert P. Briscoe, Rear Admiral and Mrs. A. Soucek, Rear Admiral and Mrs. E. E. Stone, Comdr. and Mrs. John Trechman, Miss Margaret Abell, Capt. and Mrs. W. B. Ammon, Capt. and Mrs. Neil Dietrich, Capt. B. C. Beard, Comdr. and Mrs. J. Robert Moore and Comdr. and Mrs. J. Christian Myers.

Miss Ann Muse Gillespie, daughter of Mrs. Julian E. Gillespie, who will be married to Dr. Jacques Kelly on May 23, was the guest in whose honor Miss Mary-Stuart Price entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Dupont Plaza.

Other guests were Miss Margaret Woodhouse, Miss Clare Foster, Miss Polly Norment, Miss Flavia Lee, Miss Romona North, Miss McCall Henderson, Miss Annie Laurie Rankin and Mrs. Robert V. Kelley, cousin of the bride-elect.

Tells of Israel's School Problem

David Bernstein, assistant to Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, yesterday said that schools in Israel today are faced with a problem never faced by any country before, except for the United States in its big immigration period.

In Israel, the normal education process is complicated by the presence in one classroom of children from 21 countries speaking many languages, he explained.

Addressing members of the Washington City of Hope Auxiliary at their spring luncheon meeting at the Hotel 2400, Mr. Bernstein also described the housing shortage in Israel. "It makes our own housing situation look ideal," he said.

Hartle Seeks Nomination in Congress Race

Hagerstown, Md., May 11 (AP).—The first candidate has entered the race for Maryland's Sixth District Congressional seat.

Hartle

Hartle announced today he will go after the Democratic nomination in September. The district, embracing five western Maryland counties, now is represented by J. Glen Beall of Frostburg, a Republican.

The veteran of 32 years in the Army is, so far, the lone candidate on the Democratic side. He claims support of party leaders in some counties.

Beall is expected to seek reelection, although he has been mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate or for the Senate seat held by Millard E. Tydings, Democrat.

Hartle led the first group of American troops to England in World War II. He returned to his home here after he retired.

Early in the war Hartle commanded the 34th National Guard division, the first American contingent to leave for Europe. Later he commanded all American troops in Northern Ireland. He organized the Rangers, was one of General Eisenhower's deputies and commanded the 5th Corps.

The general is married. He was an honor graduate of St. John's College in Annapolis in 1910.

Concert Delayed Until May 27

The second concert in the National Gallery of Art Festival of American Music has been postponed until Saturday afternoon, May 27, at 3 p. m.

The concert, a song recital, was to take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. in the lecture hall of the gallery. Harold Ronk, baritone, who is to sing the program, has been advised by his doctor to wait several weeks before singing.

Oppenheimer Patriot, Lilienthal Declares

St. Louis, May 11 (AP).—David E. Lilienthal, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, in an interview here yesterday, characterized Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer as "a wonderful man and a great patriot."

His comment was provoked by a news dispatch from Oakland Calif., quoting a witness at a State Communist probe as saying Dr. Oppenheimer attended a closed Communist Party meeting in Berkeley in 1941.

"I haven't seen the charges," Lilienthal said, "but I am one of the many who know in detail of Oppenheimer's enormous contributions to the military security of this country."

Military Engineers To Install Officers

Lieut. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, former chief of Army Engineers, will be installed today as president of the Society of American Military Engineers at an all-day meeting at the Naval Ordnance Plant, White Oak, Md.

Other officers to be seated are Rear Admiral Leo Otis Colbert, retired director of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, first vice president; Comdr. John A. Volpe, USNR, second vice president; Col. E. Goring Bliss, assistant general manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., treasurer, and Col. F. H. Kohloss, USA (ret.), executive secretary.

Dennis to Surrender, Ask Sentence Stay

New York, May 11 (U.P.).—Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, said today he would fly to Washington Friday to appear in Federal Court on his contempt of Congress conviction.

Dennis, who was sentenced to one year in prison, is scheduled to surrender before Federal Judge David Pine.

His attorneys will argue motions for a stay of execution of sentence until after July 15, when the case of Dennis and 10 other top Communists will be heard in the Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

The eleven are convicted of conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the Government.

Pig Footprints Found On White House Bricks

The rural atmosphere which prevailed around the White House nearly 150 years ago has been visibly recorded.

Wreckers found four bricks which bear the imprints of the feet of chickens, pigs and dogs. Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton of the White House renovation commission said the animals apparently walked over the bricks when they were in molds before they were baked. He said the original bricks for the structure were baked in a kiln set up near the job, about 1792.

2 Fire-Ravaged Towns Given $10,000 by Pope

Rimouski, Quebec, May 11 (U.P.). Burned-out Rimouski today shared a $10,000 gift from Pope Pius XII with the town of Cabano, 65 miles away, partly destroyed by fire Tuesday.

Mt. Rainier Mayor to Speak

Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt of Mount Rainier, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Georges County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Friday, at 6:15 p. m. at the Terrapin Room of the University of Maryland.

School Board Approves GI Trade Schools

Practices of private trade schools training veterans under the GI Bill here yesterday received blanket approval of the Board of Education.

The board approved and sent to the District Commissioners a report by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning that 30 schools under investigation "have rendered invaluable public service."

Instruction has been "highly successful and beneficial to veterans," said the report. It added that there "have been very few if any instances . . . where advantage has been taken of the veterans or where the veterans' interests have not been served and served well."

The Board of Education must approve all schools instructing veterans under provisions of the GI Bill.

The report had been requested by the Commissioners as part of an investigation that has been under way since last summer. A fact-finding committee was created then to check complaints that (1) the schools were turning out more graduates than the economy could absorb, and (2) some schools were not providing adequate training.

A report was turned into the Commissioners February 28. Several members of the committee claimed they had not seen it, however, and the Commissioners decided not to release it until they had obtained the views of all committee members.

It Isn't Hubby She Wants Back, It's Bowling Ball

Los Angeles, May 11 (AP).—Mrs. Shirley Losey didn't want her husband back, but she did want her bowling ball.

The ball was returned to her in court yesterday. But some changes had been made. It was partially squared on one side and the holes were filled with lead.

Mrs. Losey, 26, in seeking a divorce, haled her husband into court for him to explain why he hadn't complied with an order to produce her prized bowling ball.

Husband Glenn C. Losey, 46, appeared with the ball and handed it over to her. He insisted that he didn't know how it got in its peculiar condition. Charges of contempt of court against him were dropped.

Margaret Is Able To Change Tire If Man Isn't Present

Grand Coulee Dam, Wash., May 11 (AP).—Margaret Truman, the President's daughter, disclosed today that she can change an automobile tire.

Interviewed by girl reporters as she looked over the complicated machinery of the Coulee power house, she confessed she didn't understand machinery.

"But you can drive a car," one of the girls suggested. Oh, yes, she drives a car.

"What would you do if you had a flat tire," was the next question.

"I'd change it if there weren't a nice young man around to do it for me," she replied.

Broadway Ballad

Unfortunately I shall not be here
When your return performance hits the town;
I'll have important things to do, m'dear,
Like picking out another Love or Gown.
When you have tired of carrying the torch—
Your heart besmirched with smudge, and smoldering,
Still smelling just a little bit of scorch—
I'll not be here to renovate the thing.

I'll neither stamp the ashes nor assist
In pouring water on the graying embers;
Having become a grudging realist
Who seldom reminisces or remembers.

You will return—and less bewitched than lately,
But I shall not be here—unfortunately.—Frances Boal Mehlek.

One of Senator McCarthy's targets in the Amerasia Case came to New York last night to attend a party. He was surrounded by college chums and some newspapermen, one of whom didn't believe his claim of innocence.

"What's going to happen next?" the accused Red was asked.

"Probably," cracked a reporter, "the Pumpkin."

Headline: "Russia Claims Inventing Radio."

Apparently can't see DeForrest for the trees.

They say it happened at a cocktail party, where two feuding stars were among the guests. Both promised the hostess they would be ladies and not swap digs. But after each had imbibed freely, one lifted her glass and said: "A toast to Tallulah—dead or alive."

"And," returned Miss Bankhead, "here's to you! Drunk or sober."

FDR's mother was like this. A man once approached her at a banquet and said he'd send $500 to her pet charity if she'd pose for a picture with his mother.

Sarah Roosevelt graciously replied that she'd pose even if he didn't donate anything. "Then I'll give $1000," said the happy fellow. "My mother is 92. This'll be her biggest thrill. I'll bring her right over."

"No," said the 84-year-old Mrs. R. "I'll go to her—I'm younger."

"Nancy Sinatra Files for Separation" . . . "Rita and Aly Reported Tiffing" . . . "Sonny Tufts Arrested" . . . "Lawrence Tierney in Another Fight."

Hollywood back to normal.

Novelist Mary Roberts Rinehart covered the First World War in battle zones as a correspondent. Her son was stranded behind the lines with the Supply Corps. He kept asking for permission to visit her, but the requests were ignored.

He jolted his superiors into giving him the Go-Light with this caustic memo: "I wish to go to the Front. To visit my mother!"

M. Lerner colyumed: "I call the effort to destroy an artist's livelihood because you don't like his politics one of the deadliest signs of the inhumanity of man to man. I hold to that whether it applies to Adler and Draper or Kirsten Flagstad or anyone else."

Two of these artists made it a political issue by publicly upholding political ideas. We don't go along with the "logic" that a person's artistic ability makes him or her immune to political criticism. Nero fiddled and Hitler painted. Does that mean historians mustn't call them tyrants?

If so, then no newspaper should heckle Truman, the pianist.

"Dear Walter," says a postcard. "Please reprint this one. I want to chuckle at it again.

"Groucho Marx opened a drawer in a friend's home and found an automatic pistol and several small pearl-handled revolvers.

"'This gat,' announced Groucho, 'has had gittens'."

Turf Luck: The Broadway Set is still groaning over the Derby and the way Arcaro and "Hill Prince" were pocketed by the field at the start.

It recalls the top upset in horse racing, the result of a feud between Earl Sande and Sonny Workman. Happened in 1930 (The Travers Stakes) and the Smart-Money had it figured as a Ding-Dong between Gallant Fox with Sande up and Whichone with Workman in the irons.

The two jockeys spent so much time working on each other that Jim Dandy (a rapk outsider longshot) romped in. Paying 100 to 1.

Then there's that celebrated telegram from the track addict in Florida to his Best Pal in N. Y. "Weather Clear Track Fast Racing Never Better I've Got Them Yelling Uncle Wire Me 100."

Our favorite was uttered by Dennis James—a veteran $2 bettor, after an uneventful matinee at Belmont. "It was a nice afternoon," he intoned. "We managed to lose very slowly."

From the N. Y. Times book reviewing section: "Jaunty prose spangled with high hyperboles."

The same gazette's front page: "Former members of Denazification Boards in Germany cannot get gov't jobs because, in some cases, many of the very men they classified as Nazis have them."

Now you cut that out! Everyone knows Mr. McCloy "is stamping out the last vestiges of Nazism"!

Item: "Recital by Russian Bass."

Stop abbreviating!

Reds See Red! We recently described the editorial staff at The Daily Worker as greasy-looking. The Scummunist rag retaliated: "As for his vulgar description of Worker staffers, we hate to seem petty, but have you seen a picture of Winchell lately?"

Variety, Radio Daily and several TV critics did, Comrat. "He is photogenic. Has nothing to worry about. Comes over as a natural, dynamic personality. Will bring to TV the excitement that news presentation needs."

From the May 3rd Pathfinder: "Has anyone thought of calling DPs Delayed Pilgrims?" Yop, in the Mar. 20th col'm.

CIO to Open Its Political Drive June 16

Atlantic City, N. J., May 11 (AP). Philip Murray said today the CIO will kick off its 1950 political campaign on June 16 at Washington, D. C.

The CIO president said some 300 executives and field men of the organization's Political Action Committee will meet at the Capital.

Murray made the announcement at the fifth biennial convention of his steelworkers union. He said he expected CIO vice presidents would meet a day earlier to select a committee to talk over unity with the AFL.

Murray gave no details on the PAC meeting, but CIO unions have been urged to vote next fall for congressional candidates who are pledged to support President Truman's Fair Deal program.

Jacob Potofsky, president of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers, told the convention he favored unification of the AFL and the CIO because "labor unity will mean we can elect a do-something Congress."

The convention approved a political action resolution which said the steelworkers "must be independent and nonpartisan,, giving support to the progressive forces in both major parties."

Another resolution called for "a progressive wage standard, a shorter work week and a guaranteed annual wage." Still another said "wage increases can and must be paid by corporations without increasing prices, through reduction of exorbitant profit margins by corporations."

Scanty Clothing Advised for New Babies

CHAPTER FIVE

By Carol Taylor

The old idea of wrapping new babies in layers of clothing has been swept aside in the new methods of modern motherhood. Carol Taylor, a recent mother and New York newspaper reporter, here concludes her series of articles on child-bearing.

I blushed in shame as Miss Louise Morrison told me how they dress the newborns during their stay at Sloane Hospital for Women in Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center.

"The way we clothe a baby is interesting," she recounted briskly. "A cotton shirt and a diaper in winter. A diaper in summer." Period.

How many blankets?

"We don't cover them at all," she said. "It's not necessary to wrap a baby in a blanket."

I recalled the way I'd dressed my baby late last summer when I took her home from the hospital. By mid-September, her going-out garb consisted of a shirt, a diaper, a kimono, a flannel sleeping bag, two sweaters, and a wool cap. I always tucked her in securely with at least two layers of blankets.

Her indoor wardrobe was slightly less lavish. I did bring myself to remove one sweater and the woolen cap.

My husband had a little more gumption. He would eye me doubtfully as I bundled baby. "What are you going to do when it gets cold?" he'd ask.

The Maternal Instinct

But I went happily on my way, obeying the natural maternal instinct which makes you want to keep your baby snug and warm.

I felt a little better when Miss Morrison went on to tell me that most new mothers commit this cardinal sin—over-dressing the baby.

She recalled the paraphernalia ready for each newborn some two decades ago.

"Each baby used to wear two shirts, woolen and long sleeved. Two diapers, one folded in a triangle, one in a square."

A petticoat was added, then a cotton flannel sleeping bag, the kind without sleeves.

"Now there isn't a soul in the place who's ever seen one," remarked Miss Morrison, referring to the sleeping bag, now frowned on by many doctors.

Keep Temperature Low

"Mothers have told us to put shirts on their babies," sighed one nurse.

She told me that babies taken home to cold-water flats often are healthier and freer of colds than babies coddled in steam-heated apartments.

The best advice for mothers, I was told again and again and again, is simply this: "Dress your baby sensibly according to the temperature. Use gumption."

Most hospital nurseries, of course, are kept in the low 70s. If you keep your baby's room in the upper 60's, which is considered desirable, naturally you'll have to adjust his covering.

In the past few weeks I have talked to many pediatricians and nurses about home care of the baby. Most concede that over-dressing is a most frequently encountered fault of the new mother. Another is over-feeding.

New Ideas of Feeding

Many babies today are put on the "demand" scheduled, sometimes called "flexible schedule." Some mothers find themselves at a loss because they can't correctly interpret the baby's demands for food.

"Demand feeding" is the system of feeding your baby when he's hungry, rather than on an alarm clock schedule, which was preferred just a few years ago. Most authorities agree it is a sensible system and makes healthier, happier babies, but many also agree it has its inconveniences.

Although my own baby had been fed on a schedule in the hospital, I was advised to use the demand principle at home.

"Never wake your baby to feed her," I was advised. "She'll let you know when."

My pediatrician also advised the "demand" schedule.

"She'll establish her own natural rhythm soon," the doctor said when I told her of some complications that had arisen.

Too Much Is Too Much

Another doctor told me that "demand babies" are often overfed because mothers, anxious to fill their demands, bring out the bottle every time baby whimpers.

"I tell my mothers to count the number of times they feed the baby. If it's beginning to amount to a dozen times in 24 hours—when they get to some ridiculous figure like that—that is too much."

He said that mothers with any intelligence have been using the demand system for 25 years. They simply had the gumption to feed the baby when he was hungry.

"What you're trying to do is interpret the physiological needs of the baby," he instructed. "You musn't get it mixed up with the emotional needs."

Maybe the baby isn't hungry at all—just crying for a bit of attention. Pick him up and love him and play with him. Doctors who would have frowned at such a procedure a few years ago now recommend that you be friendly. "It's the way to give a baby a feeling of security," one pediatrician told me.

In the past few weeks in visiting hospitals and talking to doctors and nurses, I have been told that even trained nurses feel stymied when they first take their babies home from the hospital.

Miss Margaret Losty, nursing consultant in maternity and newborn services advises:

"Don't give the baby a bath the first or second day. He'll do just as well. Most mothers think they have to sit right down and give the baby a soap and water bath. It's not important. The most important thing is to sit down and relax with the baby and enjoy him."

In most American cities, good pediatric advice is available to all. For the low income groups, there are well baby clinics in many hospitals.

Shall you rock the baby or will this addle his brain? Psychiatrists are again tolerating the rocker. But, again, use gumption, the doctors advise.

One pediatrician told me amusedly about a father he knew in Brooklyn who bought his son a cradle and rigged up a pulley attached to his big toe so he could rock baby to sleep in the night.

"That was the most spoiled kid I ever saw," he reported.

End of Series.

There Are Five

The Spare Emerson Is the Most Versatile

By John Crosby

THERE is a scurrilous rumor going that there are really seven Faye Emersons, that no one girl could meet so many people, attend so many parties, be guest star on so many programs (while still not neglecting her own) and, at the same time, finger stage and screen offers.

Well, it's a dirty lie. I happen to know there are only five Faye Emersons. There is one actress Faye Emerson who handles stage, screen and television dramatic work; another Faye Emerson, the smartest of the five, who appears on quiz programs; still another Faye who handles her own program and attends all the parties; there is the weight-lifting Faye Emerson; and there is one spare. The spare is carried around in a velvet-lined case like Charlie McCarthy in case any of the others break down.

What a Job She Did

THE SPARE is the most versatile of the crowd. There was a bad period last winter when all four regular Faye Emersons broke down. The spare Emerson was rushed in with only a hurried briefing and, gads, what a job she did!

In that one heroic week, the spare Emerson attended 12 parties, was linked—as they say—romantically with six different men in six different columns, appeared on four different quiz programs (and got everything right), lifted a 250-pound man over her head, took the lead in an hour-long dramatic program, and scored three times for C. C. N. Y. against the University of Kentucky in the last three minutes of play at Madison Square Garden. She's now back in her velvet case, breathing heavily.

The multiplicity of Miss Emerson is not the only case of its kind, though, of course, it's the most conspicuous.

New Heights

RIGHT now, multiplicity has reached new heights both on radio and television. The Campbell Soup people are so entranced with "Double or Nothing" they have put it on the air 10 times a week. Time was when the avid housewife could only slake her thirst for Walter O'Keefe, the emcee of that program, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays Thursdays and Fridays. This clearly wasn't enough for your real O'Keefe addict, so the Campbell people put "Double or Nothing," a very appropriate title, on in the mornings too (WRC-NBC, 10:30 to 11 a. m.). That should be enough O'Keefe for anyone except a sanatorium case.

The leading male exponent of multiplicity is, naturally, Arthur Godfrey, who may be the most multiplied man of our time. Godfrey—there's only one Godfrey, though I understand Peter Goldmark over at CBS is working on another in four colors—can be seen or heard or both on three television shows and three radio shows. One of the radio shows, heard on Saturday, is a digest of all the morning shows. Nuggets of especial value are washed out of the five morning shows, smelted and fashioned into a necklace of great price for the Saturday night crowd. So far as I know, Godfrey is the first radio entertainer to be condensed. He probably won't be the last.

NBC has nothing like Godfrey but it's grooming Dave Garroway as the head of its multiplication table. He's moving up fast. Garroway now has three radio shows, including two five-times-a-week programs, and one television show. Keep your eye on Garroway. In fact, you'll have difficulty averting your eye, Garroway being a fairly ubiquitous character.

Eggs Came First, but Chickens Stayed

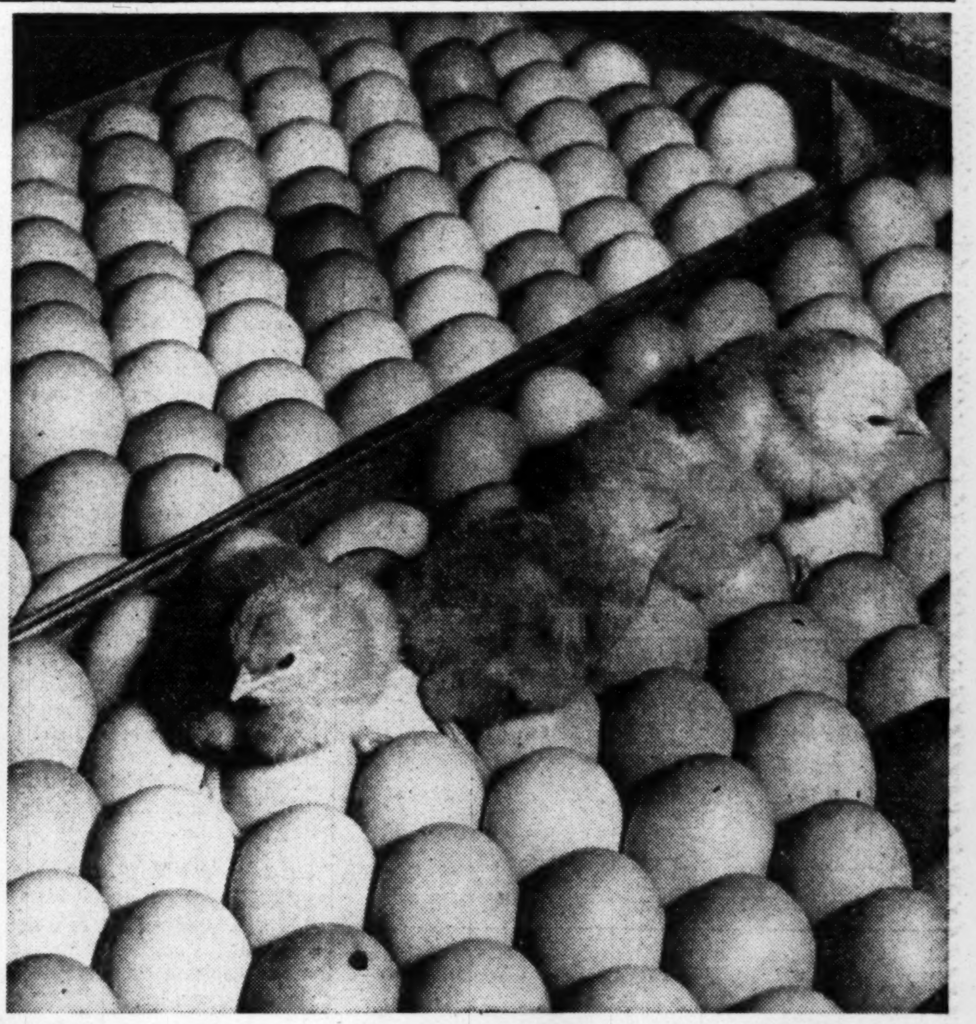
ACRES of chickens—some 40,000 head—live a hothouse existence in this huge broiler house on the Del-Mar-Va Penninsula. Here they thrive in semidarkness on vitamin-rich feeds, weigh around 4 pounds apiece when they go to market at the age of 12 weeks



By Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

D. C. Takes Advantage Of Big Broiler Industry

This is the second in a series of six articles on how food from farm, field and fishing grounds reaches the Washington market.

By Lucia Brown

THE succulent chicken you serve for supper is not only a treat for the whole family. It's big business as well.

Picture an army of 12 million chickens converging on Washington—marching 50 abreast down the avenues, fluttering across L'Enfant's famous circles—and you'll get some idea of the number that reach the metropolitan area yearly.

As a chicken-eating city, the Nation's Capital is above average, sandwiched as it is between two of the greatest broiler-producing areas in the country. Better than a third of the chickens we serve here are "broilers," defined as birds under 16 weeks in age and 4 pounds in weight. Most of these are from across the Chesapeake on the Eastern Shore or over the mountains in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia and West Virginia.

The Eastern Shore—known as the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula in chicken-raising circles—is the greatest broiler-producing section in the whole wide world. Almost half the broiler production in the United States centers there.

The Shenandoah Valley is way behind Del-Mar-Va in chicken statistics, but is still the third largest broiler-producing section in the country. It embraces Rockingham County, also famous for its turkeys, and raises 11 percent of the Nation's broiler crop.

From Egg To Table

TO FIND OUT about the broiler and the way it progresses from an Eastern Shore egg to a platter on your table, we went over to Del-Mar-Va early this week. The peninsula is a revelation to anyone who has thought of chicken production in terms of one old hen and a setting of 15 eggs.

Here they're hatched in batches of a million or more. Chicks are reared in vast houses with 40,000 feathered companions. Poultry is dressed and frozen in a string of plants stretching through seven counties.

Depression-Born Industry

HARD times in the seafood business led to chicken prosperity on the Eastern Shore. It all started with Mrs. Wilmer Steele of Ocean View, Del., back in 1923. Deciding she was raising too big a laying flock, Mrs. Steele sold off a few hundred 2-pound chickens, got 62 cents a pound for them. Her husband quit his Coast Guard job and started building chicken houses. Neighbors, discouraged over fish profits, began buying lumber, too.

It was in the mid-30s—the "depression" to you—that really got the broiler business into its stride. Pullorum, dread poultry disease, was under control. New dietary knowledge put the know-how into feeds to produce more and better meat per bird. In the 40s, the war and its red meat shortages gave the broiler industry another big boost. Production hopped from 50 million broilers in 1940 to 124,500,000 in 1949.

Waiting for Hatching Day

ON OUR trip to the peninsula we started at the beginning of the chicken line. At the suggestion of Dr. J. M. Gevin of the University of Maryland, we visited a hatchery first. It was near Salisbury, Md., in Wicomico, second largest broiler-producing county in Maryland. The hatchery, one of six big ones in the county, has a battery of 18 incubators—the kind you can walk inside to take a look at the 78,000 eggs peacefully waiting for hatching day.

"These trays turn the eggs automatically every two hours," said

Chicken for Dinner

Tom Bell, manager, as we stood in the warm, steamy interior. "They do a better job than the hen does scratching around. Regular turning prevents malformed chicks."

Boxes and boxes of fluffy little chickens—some yellow, some black—were stacked nearby, ready to take a ride in a huge truck to a nearby broiler farm.

"Still looking a little 'green,'" said Mr. Bell, as the young birds peeped at us in a dazed sort of way. "They'll get their strength in an hour or so."

They were of the New Hampshire variety, he explained, with some a cross between New Hampshires and Plymouth Rocks—both big, meat-producing chickens. Most of the hatching eggs come down from New England by 10-wheel truck.

"About 25 percent of the eggs don't hatch," Mr. Bell explained, "then we grade out about 3 percent more weakling chicks. The chicks are sorted according to sex. Japs used to be the only people skilled in this work, but Americans have learned it lately. It's a difficult job and commands high pay."

Live in Heated Houses

ONCE arrived at the broiler farm, the chicks are hurried into a "hothouse" existence. They live in heated one-story houses, some of which stretch for a third of a mile, and never go outdoors. Here, in a crowded chicken community, every bird has less than 1 square foot to live and grow in. Though there are windows along the side, the rooms are generally kept dark so the birds won't pick at each other. They sleep, scratch around a bit, eat, drink, and get bigger and bigger. And, oh yes, they each get vaccinated, too, for Newcastle's disease.

"Nowadays, you can raise a 4-pound bird in 12 weeks," Perry Twining, University of Maryland poultry specialist, told us. "Before improvements in feed and methods, it took 15 weeks to raise a 3-pound bird."

The feed also explains how the birds can flourish without sunlight. They're getting their vitamins from the mash and pellets they gulp down.

On the Assembly Line

FROM the broiler pens, it's a quick trip to the dressing plant. The birds make it at various weights, depending on the demands of the market. The plant we visited was one in Salisbury, where they turn out "ready-to-cook" poultry, completely cleaned, minus feet and heads.

It's done by assembly line methods, with the chickens suspended on a huge conveyor belt for defeathering and cleaning. Employes line each side of the belt, each having a special task in the processing. Three Government inspectors are there, too, to see that the birds are in tip-top condition. The poultry is graded later, this company having its own grading system. Some others use the new United States Government grading standards which aim at making poultry grades the same over the country, in the same manner as egg grades.

Going to Market

AFTER dressing and grading, some of the chickens—the biggest of them—are either refrigerated or frozen whole. Others are cut up and frozen, going to market as packaged frying chickens. This firm is a pioneer in the packing of parts. Only a few months ago they started sorting out drumsticks, thighs, breasts, even backs, and packaging and freezing them separately.

"People buy pork chops and steaks as separate cuts," said George E. Melbourne, manager of the plant, "so why not separate chicken parts?"

Demand for the parts is high, even for the backs. These sell at only 15 cents a pound compared to 90 cents per pound for the breasts.

Broilers Are Tops

THE broiler is now being plugged as an all-purpose or many-purpose chicken and Mr. Melbourne is all for this idea. No sense in broiling—or even frying—them all, he thinks. He admits, however, that he thinks they're tops when split down the middle and broiled with a basting of vinegar and melted butter.

"The tenderest, best meat you put in your mouth," says a man who still loves to eat chicken after 25 years in the business.

MARLENE DIETRICH
. . . Glamourour proof that grandchildren are not aging

Grandma Too, Can Be Glamorous

By Ida Jean Kain

IN SPITE of protective nutrition, nourishing creams and a keeping-young philosophy, along about 40 the chinline starts to lose its grip on youth, and the triceps muscles, on the backs of the upper arms sag sadly. And that's not all . . . a pincushion of fat may sneak up behind your back to perch brazenly on the scruff of the neck. All told, the effect is more aging than grandchildren.

The glamorous actresses, even those with grandchildren, do not let these signs of age catch up with them . . . and they have no longer a lease on youth than the rest of us, so what is their secret? Beautiful head carriage, backed up with beauty care.

Nourish the skin on the inside with the right food, and on the outside with beauty creams; keep tone in the bracing muscles with a little regular exercise; and acquire the habit of beautiful head carriage.

Creams, Astringents Keep Skin Pliable

BEAUTY CREAMS and toning astringents help keep the skin pliable and firm which wards off wrinkles. In smoothing on cream, work against gravity. With an upward and outward motion, gently massage cream on the throat and face, beginning at the base of the throat. Do not use any downward motions and take care not to stretch the skin.

Leave the cream on while you do this beauty routine, which takes three minutes, and done night and morning, works wonders. Sit in front of a dressing table mirror. Take a deep breath and turn head firmly to the left until chin is over left shoulder. From this position, tip chin up . . . hold a second, lower, turn back to center and exhale. Repeat to the other side and continue four to six times. To prevent stretching the skin, always turn head before tipping chin up.

Try muscle resistance . . . Rest chin on knuckles of doubled fists, chin level. Resisting with fists, slowly lower chin. Then resisting with throat muscles, push upward with the fists until chin is level. Relax and repeat, four to six counts only.

Take Up Slack In Upper Arms

NOW to take up the slack on upper arms. Extend arms straight out at sides and make tiny backward circles, keeping arms at shoulder level. And to act on right muscles, keep the radius of the circles very small.

Directly to reach the muscle which helps support the bust and beautify chest, hold arms out in front of chest, crossed at wrists. With a quick criss-cross motion, elbows straight, change position of hands, under and over about eight times . . . then fling arms out to the side. Repeat the criss-cross and the side fling three complete times.

Finish the routine with shoulder-blade pinching to help banish the dowager's hump. Raise shoulders and bring them as close together in back as possible, putting the squeeze on the hump. Reeat three times, vigorously, head erect.

Practice beautiful head carriage. Keep your head squarely on your shoulders, chin level, and pull up with the line at the back of the neck.

Two Summers Ago Girl at Vacation Resort Was Gripped by Panic at Table, Unable to Convey Food to Her Mouth; Fear Lingers, Baffles Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two summers ago I was away on holiday and after being out late a few evenings, smoking and drinking to an unaccustomed extent, I was unable to eat at dinner time because I was shaking too much to take my utensils or cup to my mouth.

This frightened me and I have been frightened ever since, to a point that makes me physically ill and my heart seems to be worst affected. At the time I thought I'd have to go home before my fortnight was up; and fear of being too shaky to eat in company became an obsession.

I got medical advice and the specialist said the symptoms weren't uncommon in cases of overtiredness. I wasn't much helped by taking a sedative, getting lots of sleep and exercise and giving up coffee, tea, liquor and cigarettes. I have been treated by various nerve specialists since, without success. I think the trouble is neurotic; lack of self confidence and absolutely no self control.

If I go to lunch with a friend I get that choking feeling and it reaches its peak as I enter the restaurant. My heart seems to swell, my limbs are weak, I feel my eyes get a glassy fixed look and I am unable to concentrate on the conversation. Will all this end up in insanity? I have tried in vain to find a cure, and I simply must get better soon, but I seem to have lost ground lately.

I am engaged to be married and I don't want to be a burden to my future husband whom I love, and who seems to love me very much also. I cannot afford expensive psychiatry, and would prefer other help anyway, as I must forget my condition soon, and going back and forth to the doctor would only remind me that I am sick and might prolong the illness. But if you think I should have psychiatric treatment, please tell me where I can get it at reasonable cost. B. R.

Anxiety Isn't About Eating

DEAR B. R.: In the two years since you were first overtaken by panic in a public dining room, you've been inducing hysteria by fearfully anticipating a return of those wretched sensations in all comparable situations. In that respect your recurrent restaurant jitters are unconsciously manufactured on the spot each time, and have no significant connection with whatever events or factors precipitated the original blast of terror.

However, underneath this chain reaction of surface agitation a serious anxiety neurosis exists. This threatened to kick up a volcanic disturbance that time at the resort when you were too tired and tense from vacation excesses to keep your emotions firmly locked up, and your mind closed against any thoughts or impulses your conscience would disapprove.

As to the nature of your anxiety neurosis, diagnostic inquiry into the meaning of phobic self-consciousness about eating in company brings evidence to indicate that ordinarily it is linked to guilt feelings about sex hunger.

It seems to associate with deeply inhibited craving for types of emotional gratification that the patient doesn't even know he desires, because his conscious mind if confronted with the unconscious wish would reject it as shameful, disgraceful, etc., according to conventional notions.

Needs to Know What She Fights

IF THIS is somewhat the story, the cure for panic consists in bringing to light the impulses you are blindly resisting, so that you can disassociate them from the business of eating, and put them out of mind with sensible awareness of why you eliminate them from your philosophy of behavior.

In all probability your symptoms wouldn't baffle a mature hygienist whose psychiatric training was rounded out with analytic experience, and I advise you to consult a therapist with those qualifications. As a private patient, short-term intensive study of the case might turn the tide in six months or less. But if you cannot afford even that, there are excellent psychiatric clinics in your community, that serve the public free of charge—"wait in line and take your turn." Better this than no psychiatric help at all, and if it is the best you can do, it may be enough to pull you through. M. H.

Ask Anne

Yum-Yummy Rum Pie Tantalizes Reader in Restaurant; Anne Offers Tried and True Favorite Recipe

DEAR ANNE:
Can you give me a recipe for rum pie? We had some that was delicious at a local restaurant and I would like to try my luck at it. Mrs. C. M. A., Arlington.

Most restaurants are rather loath to part with their recipes—after all, these earn them their living and their reputation. But here's a Rum Pie recipe that has proven quite popular among "Ask Anne" readers. It was contributed by F.W.F. to the column several years ago, and we have had repeated requests for it.

RUM PIE

- 3 egg yolks
- 1½ cups milk
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1½ tablespoons gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water
- 4 tablespoons light rum
- 3 egg whites
- 1 baked pie shell
- Thin slices of sponge or pound cake
- ½ cup cream, whipped
- 3 tablespoons grated semi-sweet chocolate

Beat egg yolks slightly. Add milk, salt and sugar. Cook over low heat until of soft custard consistency. Remove from heat. Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Add to hot mixture. Cool until mixture begins to congeal. Fold in rum and stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour 1/3 of mixture into baked pie shell. Place thin slices of sponge or pound cake on top of custard. Pour on remaining custard and place in refrigerator until firm. Before serving, spread with whipped cream which has been sweetened to taste. Sprinkle grated chocolate over top.

DEAR ANNE:
We have a set of lovely door chimes. I have never cleaned the pipes and want to do so but I am wondering if the tone will be affected by the way I clean them. They are dusty, a little gummy and tarnished in places. What should I use on them?
A. K., Alexandria.

First, wipe off the pipes with a soapy cloth to get rid of the surface dirt. Rinse by wiping with a cloth wrung out of clear water, then rub dry with a soft cloth. Use any good metal polish to get off the tarnish. You won't affect the tone of the chimes by either of these treatments.

DEAR ANNE:
I would like to pass on a couple of suggestions about short cuts that may help others as they have helped me.

Often, I put tomatoes in boiling water for a minute or longer, then put them in the refrigerator and peel when ready to be served. This simplifies last-minute "dunking" in hot water.

My solution for softening hard brown sugar is to put the box in a moderate oven, one of the fastest methods of all.
ELLEN L. DAHLKE,
4800 South 28th St., Arlington.

DEAR ANNE:
Keeping brown sugar soft was always a headache for me until I just dumped it out of the box into a tin cannister. Just to make sure, I put a double layer of wax paper over the cannister before I put the lid on.
N. Y., Arlington

THREE women's clubs in Maryland communities adjacent to Washington won top prizes this week in the Maryland portion of the National Federation of Women's Clubs contest to promote better communities.

Winners in the State contest, who are now eligible for the national contest, are the Silver Spring Woman's Club, the Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase and the Woman's Club of Garrett Park.

The Silver Spring Club's sickroom loan closet won first prize for clubs of its size—over 100—and also the "sweepstakes" prize which went to the club having the best project regardless of size. The closest, started about nine years ago at the suggestion of Miss Minna Loeschke, has grown from a handful of hot-water bottles and thermometers, to a substantial supply of invalids' equipment, including nine hospital type beds, six wheelchairs, a walker, and a number of pairs of crutches.

Items Contributed

The supplies not in use are kept in the basement garage of Miss Loeschke's home, where they may be phoned for at any hour of the day or night. Some of the items have been contributed to the closet by club members, some by sympathetic doctors or other friends of the idea, and some have been purchased through funds raised by the club.

The prize money—$100 plus the $200 "sweepstakes" bonus—will probably be used by the club for some related project. The club's president, Mrs. James W. Douthat, says that a nursing scholarship has been a dream of the club for a long time, and that a building fund is also being started since more space is needed to house the sickroom supplies and because the club has no meeting place of its own.

(The club will hold a card party May 23 at 1 p. m. at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Building in Silver Spring to raise money for the building fund.)

Children's Programs

In Group B, clubs of a hundred members or less, the Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase won a $100 award for activities, including the radio show the club produces on alternate Saturday mornings at 10:30 on Station WBCC. Written—or adapted from well-known stories—and narrated by club members, the programs are designed for children. The prize also went for the club's other major service activity, which was the donation of $500 to provide school luncheons for underprivileged children in Montgomery County. Miss Doris Long is president of the club.

Community Center

The award in the third group—clubs of less than 50 members—was won by the Woman's Club of Garrett Park, which started the entire community working on a community center. By contributing the first $5 to the project, and sparking the campaign as a whole, the club succeeded in bringing an old barracks from Fort Meade and turning it into a community center for meetings, a public library, a teenagers room and other civic activities. The building was dismantled and reconstructed, painted and polished by the men and women of Garrett Park. Not quite finished, the building has already been in use for several months, filling a very serious need in the community.

The project was accomplished under the chairmanship of Mrs. John Thurston, who preceded Mrs. Kenneth Sonners, the current president, in that office.

What Good Is 5 Gs On a Check Stub?

By Richard L. Coe

IF YOU THINK you have tax problems, give a thought to those of two glamorous visitors to our town.

Tallulah Swanson and Gloria Bankhead (which is one way of putting both ladies first) are two of the supposedly enviable gals and boys who pay Uncle Sam 80 percent and more of their earnings.

Considering the length of time they have to go between jobs and the fact that their incomes naturally go down rapidly with the passing of years, the girls don't think the set-up is just. Authors and other creative artists, they point out, can claim the years they spent thinking about a work as part of the tax basis. This isn't true of the glamour girls, who may reap thousands a week but have to take it off as though it's their set, annual income.

Miss Swanson was on Mrs. Roosevelt's television program a few weeks ago discussing the matter and, to her surprise, she found that several tax officials even agreed with her.

Glaria puts it this way, pointing from her toes to her thick, graying hair: "This is all there is to Swanson. Office buildings and real estate deteriorate and so, alas, do actresses. What's more, my stock in trade is that I'm supposed to be chic, a fashion plate.

"Lord knows, I don't need 40-odd hats and dresses and wouldn't dream of having them if I weren't working. But they're my business. The tax people allow me about a third of their value for business purposes, but if at the end of this three-month tour of 30 cities telling people about 'Sunset Boulevard,' anyone thinks those hats and dresses will be in any condition to be worn, they're nuts.

"Agents, maids and secretaries are part of the business, too, but you can only include part of that setup as your business expenses. I don't like to seem as though I'm beefing too bitterly, but this business of making a big salary one year, paying a whacking tax on it and not knowing when you're going to get half that much again is no simple matter. We've all got our futures and security to think about. What's more, the unemployment insurance we're presumably putting in for isn't something we can easily pick up."

Miss Bankhead's problems are much the same. There's a lot of gagging in theatrical circles that this summer will again find Tallulah playing "Private Lives" at $5000 a week so she can pay taxes on what she made acting it last winter, and that, come fall, she'll have to take it out again to pay taxes on her summer earnings.

The gag has its foundations in sad fact. Apparently the tax people are hawk-eyed when it comes to inspecting top-bracket tax returns, for both ladies and others often find that what was allowable for business purposes one year isn't the next. Consequently, they're frequently learning to their sorrow that there's still something like $18,000 due, after all, for the fiscal year, 1947.

No Sure Security

The biggest problem of all, of course, is never being sure of the future and knowing that the money you think might be coming in will not be. And the specter of not being able to follow up a "Sunset Boulevard" or a "Private Lives" can cost the girls sound sleep.

The ladies, by the way, are the first to laugh (mayhap in a hollow tone) when a minor salaried smilingly reporter manages to sympathize with their plight. To him it all sounds as unreal as it probably does to you over your 80-cents-a-pound breakfast coffee.

The fact remains, making big money and thereby being envied has its drawbacks. Sometimes it just doesn't seem worth it.

Now this reporter hopes the tax inspectors don't get to looking at his files. Just thinking about it gives him the chills.

EPISCOPAL HIGH School's dramatic club, grins and grimaces, will play "The Man Who Came to Dinner" tonight and tomorrow night in Stewart Gymnasium of the Alexandria school . . . To Daffin Cope goes the Sheridan Whiteside part, with Anne Williams, a George Washington High student, in the feminine lead . . . Steve Bryan is production manager and John A. Willett has done the settings . . . Keith Kreitner, of the theological seminary across the road, is directing, and states that the group has "an entirely different approach to the play than the original" . . . Which sounds logical for a respectable boys' school.

"TRIAL BY JURY, the Gilbert and Sullivan favorite, will be played tonight by singers of the St. Mary's Episcopal Church of Arlington and the Associated Singers, in the Claude Swanson Junior High, 5800 North Washington blvd. . . . The case includes Rober Allen, Mrs. Sylvia Rhine, William Hughs, Edwin A. Buchanan, Carrel I. Tod and D. H. Reynolds.

TONIGHT: Gloria Swanson helps open the Home Show at the Armory . . . Finals of the Groups G-K One Act Play Tourney at Banneker Junior High at 8:30 . . . Last of the Gabriel Figueroa films at the Pan American Union, "Rio Escondido," at 8 o'clock . . . The Horace Heidt troupe gets back from touring United States bases in Germany, prepping for its broadcast from Fort Myer Sunday night.

AT TEMULEHOF: Montgomery Clift and Paul, Douglas in "The Big Lift," which arrives tomorrow on the Palace screen. Setting for the story is "Operation Vittles," the Air Force Berlin airlift of last year, filmed in Germany by 20th Century-Fox

Married Women Show Lower Death Rate Than Unmarried

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has come up with figures to discount the perennial plaint of housewives about the rigors of married life.

During the past half century, the company's statisticians say, the general health of women, as reflected by prevailing mortality, has improved much faster among the married than the unmarried. The death rate for married women at ages 20 and over has been cut in half—from 16 per 1000 in 1900 to 8 in 1000 in 1948—while the improvement among spinsters, widows and divorcees was only two fifths.

Since 1900 the mortality decline among men has been much less pronounced—less than one third for both married and unmarried—with the figures somewhat more favorable to the married than unmarried.

Progress in safeguarding pregnancy and childbirth has played a major part in bringing about the mortality gains of married women, according to the satisticians. At the turn of the century, married women at ages under 35 actually experienced a higher death rate than the unmarried, largely because of the hazards of childbearing. At present, the married have a lower mortality at every age.

"Due to the more rapid improvement in life expectancy for women than for men in recent years, the chances have been increased further that a wife will outlive her husband," the statisticians comment. "The need to provide for the future economic security of the wife, accordingly, has become even greater."

20,000 School Safety Patrol Children Parade Saturday With Floats and Bands

More than 20,000 youngsters will march down Constitution ave. Saturday in the fourteenth annual parade of the School Safety Patrols.

Heading the parade will be the Honor Medal Division, composed of those youngsters who have been singled out for special awards for their part in saving a schoolmate's life during the past year.

They will receive their medals from Vice President Alben W. Barkley, who will review the parade from a stand on Constitution ave. between 15th and 17th sts. Other notables in the receiving stand will include Attorney General Howard McGrath, Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, Secretary of War Frank Pace, jr., and Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.).

The parade will feature floats, more than 30 bands and smartly uniformed drill teams. Prizes will be awarded to the outstanding performers.

School safety patrol members from the following States will participate: Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Michigan, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Some of the youngsters, scheduled to attend the annual affair, which is sponsored by the American Automobile Association, may have to miss the trip because of the railroad strike.

An Associated Press report yesterday said some 1000 children from Fulton County, Ga., will not be able to attend. An AAA spokesman here said, however, that most of the groups were able to find substitute transportation on buses and railroad lines, unaffected by the strike, and that the AAA had not been informed of any cancellations to date.

The parade is scheduled to start at 9:15 a. m. at 4th st. and Constitution ave. nw. and to end at 12:30 p. m. before the reviewing stand.

Norwegian Dance Tonight

Lodge Washington, Sons of Norway, will celebrate Norway's independence day with a dinner-dance tonight at 8 p. m. in the hall at 419 7th st. nw. Past presidents of the lodge will be awarded Sons of Norway past president pins.

Bob's Practices Wreck Bob's Theory

Bob Gillman of 1102 Mississippi ave. se. thinks he can shed some light on the reason some folks "hear better" with their glasses on. He says:

"I guess it's a combination of several things—lip-reading, observing the facial expressions and gestures of the speaker, and increased ability to concentrate when the source of the words is visible.

"However, I begin to question my theory when I have to put on my specs to listen to the radio."

"Lovely male and female kittens, 4 weeks old." (Dupont 9228 from 10 to noon and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.)

"Very affectionate, housebroken 8-month-old mixture Airedale and police needs room to run." (Lawrence 6-9502.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Can you settle an argument for us? A friend of mine claims that Milton Caniff and George Wunder are one and the same person, and that Caniff merely draws "Terry" under a pseudonym. I'm sure he's wrong, but I can't prove it. Can you?

G. E. Zimmerman
Braddock Heighs, Md.

Dear Zimmy:

You're right, your friend is wrong. I know them both, and they're not only two different people, they're as different as day and night.

Caniff originated "Terry," and drew him for years. When he changed syndicates he originated "Steve Canyon" who is Milt's personal property. "Terry," who still belongs to the syndicate, was assigned to Wunder, who has been drawing him ever since. Naturally, he keeps the characters looking just as they looked when Caniff drew them—therefore the similarity.

Caniff is the perfect extrovert, full of bounce and zing, the life of every party, and as friendly as a puppy. His private-life chatter is as hep as the lines he gives his characters.

Wunder is more reserved. He's a painstaking workman, wears the biggest wrist watch I've ever seen, and has the biggest appetite at breakfast of anybody I've ever lost to while matching for the check. Bill

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. M. T.: I've decided not to use the story of the abusive (but anonymous) policeman. Maybe I'm wrong, but here's my reason: If you identify the man, a useful purpose is served. His superiors can investigate and take appropriate action. But if you don't identify him, you cast suspicion on all policemen. And that isn't fair. There are some bad actors in any large group of men, but that's no basis for stigmatizing the entire group.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

The fellow with the highball looked at his watch and said: "I'd better get going. The old lady'll murder me if I don't get home pretty soon."

"Aw," said the man with the beer, "stick around a while. The worst she can do is jaw at you for a while."

"No," replied the first one, "I'm in the dog house as it is."

"I'll tell you what," said the beer drinker. "Call her up and tell her it's raining cats and dogs and you've got to wait until it lets up. That's worked for me a number of times."

His companion looked out into the street dubiously. "But it's not raining," he observed.

"That's all right. She won't know the difference over there in Virginia where you live. Tell her that downtown here it's pouring. That happens all the time around this part of the country."

"Well," said the hesitant one, "I'll try it. But I'll bet she doesn't go for it."

He walked over to the phone booth, made his call, and in a few minutes was back at the table with a puzzled frown on his face.

"Did she believe you?" asked the beer drinker.

"Believe me?" echoed the other, "she said it was raining a blue streak out there, too, and she wouldn't dream of having me go out in such a storm."

Millions of Fish Are Found Dead In Norfolk, Va.

Norfolk, Va., May 11 (AP).—Millions of small dead fish today were found lining the shores of tributaries to the Lafayette River in Norfolk. They were identified as menhaden, averaging in length from three to about four inches.

The reason for the mass death of the fish was a mystery. Said State Game Warden D. A. Robertson, jr.:

"There's definitely something in the water killing these fish. It's happened before and I suppose it'll happen again. It's the first time, however, that I've ever heard of menhaden being killed alone. Usually food and game fish are found dead also."

Even Cows Are Happy Under This Ruling

Point Pleasant, W. Va., May 11 (AP).—The judge recessed the trial and told the jurors they would have to remain together overnight. Up spoke Juror Clifford Carter:

"If Your Honor please, my cows have to be milked."

So Judge Lewis H. Miller sent the whole jury to Carter's farm, where the cows got milked under the supervision of a sheriff, a deputy and two State troopers.

Keystone Primary, a Focal One

By Drew Pearson

One of the most significant primaries in the country takes place in Pennsylvania next week. And long-range political observers believe it may help to decide three things:

DUFF

1. Whether the Republicans can cast off the old-fashioned leadership which lost them five straight presidential elections.

2. Whether the Republicans can elect a President in 1952.

3. And to some extent, the Pennsylvania primary may help to pick a presidential nominee for 1952.

The issue in Pennsylvania is not whether Jim Duff, scrappy, redheaded, liberal Governor, will get the senatorial nomination. Of that he is almost certain. The real issue is whether the famed Grundy machine and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, which for years have exploited the State's natural resources and the State's political vote, can be unseated.

That's what GOP leaders in other states will be watching. For if Grundyism is definitely and categorically defeated in Pennsylvania, then it may mean a contagious, progressive turning point in the Republican Party.

Grundy's Heyday

Joe Grundy himself, 86 years old and a staunch advocate of the old GOP theory that a high tariff will cure everything, is now only a symbol. But he is a powerful symbol of Pennsylvania's industrial heyday when factories polluted rivers, railroads ran the Legislature, mine operators refused to keep props in coal shafts and the streets of coal-mining cities caved in as a result of the public-be-damned attitude of the Grundy group.

Grundyism got a terrific jolt, however, when a Democrat, George Earle, was swept into office in 1934 and when the Secretary of the United Mine Workers, Tom Kennedy, became lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania.

This was the first Democratic regime to rule rock-ribbed Pennsylvania in half a century, and it put across sweeping social and economic reforms. Significantly, Republican Legislatures which followed did not remove any of those reforms. And Governor Duff, a progressive Republican, has now gone further than the Democrats by providing 50 million dollars to clean up the polluted Schuylkill River, by planning new bridges across the Delaware, reforming the State's overcrowded insane asylums, and in making Pennsylvania's teachers the second highest paid in the United States.

Duff Fights

Furthermore, Duff made the Grundyites gnash their teeth and howl to the high heavens by plumping for special taxes on cigarettes, capital stocks, and soft drinks.

"If you think," the Governor told Grundy's Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, "that I'm going to give you a free seat in the grandstand at the same time I'm raising the price of the bleacher seats, you're crazy."

And in the primary next week, they have no great objection to sending Duff to Washington as a Senator, where he will be out of the way and can't meddle too much with the State of Pennsylvania. But what they do object to is nominating Duff's friend and running-mate, Judge John S. Fine, to be the new Republican Governor.

Miner vs. Aristocrat

For the man Duff has selected to be Governor, Judge Fine, is a former coal miner, now vice president of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, with an excellent record as judge in the anthracite coal region. Fine, like Duff, was a Teddy Roosevelt Bull-Mooser and a lieutenant of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, Progressive Republican.

Against him the Grundyites are running one of the most aristocratic Republicans in the State, war hero Jay Cooke, whose great-grandfather helped finance the Civil War, and founded the Union League Club.

Cooke, a Philadelphia banker, has as his running mate, charming, staid, conservative Congressman John Kunkel of Harrisburg, whose grandfather was a member of Congress before him, and whose great-grandfather ran for Vice President with Henry Clay in 1852. Kunkel is running for Senator against Duff in the primary.

Cooke has been a strong Stassen man, helped make Stassen president of the University of Pennsylvania. Therefore should Cooke be the next Governor of Pennsylvania, it will be a big boost for Stassen's presidential chances, since he will control Pennsylvania's big bloc of delegates at the 1952 convention.

But should Jim Duff wipe out Grundyism and win both the Senate and the governorship for his team, then GOP leaders will look to the big, burly, redheaded progressive as one of the most important possibilities to break the 20-year GOP losing streak and recapture the White House.

Note—Whoever the Republicans nominate will face a stiff run-off with the Democrats in November. For seldom has the Democratic ticket been stronger. Senator Francis Myers, Democrat and popular with many Republicans, is running for reelection; while the Democratic candidate for Governor is Philadelphia's treasurer. Hugh Dilworth, who will also have Republican support. Whatever happens, Pennsylvania will be an interesting political State to watch between now and November.

Our biggest, slickest, smartest collection of slacks yet. Slacks for every man, woman and child. In every size, pattern, and color. Take a look at our gallery of satisfied, slack-happy friends. Reading from left to right, there's Anthony Anguish with his comfortable lightweight tropical worsted. He's ready for anything from a business conference to an African safari. Next to him is daughter Penelope, who really doesn't mind dripping strawberry ice cream on her new washable jeans, because Mommy cleans them so nice with one tubbing. Mommy flatters herself with carefully styled butcher rayons, while old man Winterbottom sports a pair of clear cut worsteds. His expansive golf partner is very comfortable, thank you, in fine all wool gabardines that hug his "trim" waistline, keep his shirt from slipping. And radiant young Lydia in her "faded blue" denims is all ready for fun, frolic and picnic ants. Of course the picture wouldn't be complete without that bronco buster and his little friend on the end there. We don't know exactly how to describe him, but we do know that no matter what the particular fancy, no matter what the purpose or style... you'll find the right slacks priced right at The Hecht Co.
